Probers Digging In Files

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Private files of three deposed White House aides have been removed from their offices and are being examined for any material relating to the Watergate scandal, it was learned today.

The bulky file cabinets, most or all of them reportedly equipped with combination locks, were taken from the offices of H. R. Haldeman, John D. Ehrlichman and John W. Dean III to a central location in the White House by FBI agents.

The agents were posted at the offices of the trio within hours after President Nixon announced their resignations Monday. The White House said the move was not intended to cast aspersions on anyone, and simply was intended to safeguard presidential papers.

Haldeman and Ehrlichman, Nixon's most trusted aides and among the most powerful men in the administration, are scheduled to appear Thursday before a grand jury investigating Watergate, it was learned.

Haldeman, Ehrlichman and former Attorney General John W. Mitchell were named in new, published disclosures today about the Watergate.

The New York Times said government prosecutors were told the three joined in a concerted effort to cover up the scope of the burglary and bugging break-in of Democratic headquarters soon after it occurred last year.

Haldeman and Ehrlichman, who also arranged to meet with Senate Watergate investigators later this week, have denied any wrongdoing. Nixon said in announcing their resignations that it should not be taken as any suggestion they were involved.

Mitchell issued a statement saying the Times' account of his alleged part in a cover-up was "absolutely false and without factual foundation."

The Times said Mitchell, Haldeman, Ehrlichman, Dean and several others formerly connected with the administration or the Nixon re-election campaign last year were expected to be indicted by the Watergate grand jury.

The Times said Haldeman, Ehrlichman and Mitchell devised a cover-up plan shortly after the June 17 bugging.

Meanwhile, Nixon was moving swiftly to reorganize his staff, with Vice President Spiro T. Agnew given a greater part in the power structure. White House sources said the President had decided to make Agnew the vice-chairman of the domestic council, the chief forum for formulation of domestic policy. The President is chairman.

It was learned that Nixon does not plan to give anyone the

BUSTING IN IN BERKELEY

Angry residents of Berkeley climb the walls outside city hall to gain entry to council chambers through a second-story transom. Inside the city council last night, voted in a smoke-filled and crowded chamber, that policemen don't need their approval to make marijuana arrests. The protesting crowd sent up clouds of marijuana smoke but police made no arrests. Voted down was a motion to force police to comply with a marijuana initiative. The council, unable to do further business, adjourned until tonight for further business.

Call For 'Team Effort' On Any Reorganization

By ERIK M. INGRAM

Marin County supervisors called yesterday for a "team effort" by the county administrator and department heads in drafting new ideas for reorganization of the departments of planning, public works and parks and recreation. (Other supervisors stories, page 10.)

The team approach was proposed by Chairman Arnold M. Baptiste shortly after he and fellow supervisors hastily buried a proposal from County Administrator John F. Barrows for total consolidation of the three departments.

Baptiste's suggestion was contained in an alternative reorganization plan unveiled immediately after supervisors without discussion voted 4-to-1 to junk the county administrator's plan. They had requested it from him earlier this year. (Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. cast the lone dissenting vote but changed it later in the day.)

While members of the large audience, which turned out in opposition to Barrows' plan, applauded the team study, they criticized much of Baptiste's proposal as simply another consolidation.

His idea called for an Environmental Planning Department, to be headed by one administrator, under whom Public Works Director Ray W. Foreaker Jr., Planning Director Werner von Gundell and Parks Director Pierre W. Joske would serve.

These three, with their departments left intact, would coordinate projects among themselves utilizing the skills and disciplines found in each department.

This would continue "until final recommendations for consolidation" from the new department head and three existing department heads are acted upon by the board, Baptiste's proposal said.

"This is just another name for the same thing," declared former planning director Mary Summers.

Mrs. Summers, speaking for the Marin Conservation League, said the proposals "would take the spirit out of the planning and parks and recreation departments."

Mary Donnelly of San Anselmo, like others in the audience, questioned the need for any reorganization, saying it would be "disruptive and harmful."

She asked whether savings or better efficiency really would be achieved.

Tightened Phase III Controls Expected

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon has decided to toughen some aspects of his wage-price stabilization program, administration officials said today.

In a further move to combat the worst inflation in a generation, officials said Nixon probably would again require big companies to get prior approval for price increases of more than 1.5 per cent and raise the possibility of orders to roll back price rises exceeding increases in costs.

Details of Nixon's revised economic policy were to be revealed this afternoon after he had conferred with his top advisers as well as business and union leaders.

It appeared that the President's measures would be less sweeping than the general freeze or rollback proposals urged by some members of Congress. One top economic adviser said the President's statement would be "constructive but not startling."

Administration officials suggested that Nixon intended in his statement to try to boost confidence in the largely volun-

Redevelop Feud Is At Close

A long and bitter dispute between San Rafael and Marin County officials ended unceremoniously yesterday as county supervisors voted 3-to-2 to approve the city's controversial redevelopment project.

Approval, over the objections of Supervisors Arnold M. Baptiste and Gary T. Giacomini, came in the form of signing an agreement to lift two county lawsuits blocking the project in return for city assurances that redevelopment would meet certain conditions.

San Rafael Mayor C. Paul Bettini signed the document a week ago after supervisors threatened to reconsider verbal promises of ending the dispute if their conditions were not met.

The county-imposed conditions restrict the city to a $6 million redevelopment project over the next eight years and reserve veto power over enlargement of the project which will upgrade downtown and east side portions of the city.

The board's action came over the appeal of Ann Reeves of Santa Venetia that supervisors delay until a study is made of how successful other cities redevelopment projects have been.

Giacomini, who has fluctuated between supporting and opposing the city's plan, presented no argument in opposing it yesterday. To do so would be "whipping a dead horse," he said.

Baptiste, meanwhile, repeated his views that "taxpayers will have the answers" about redevelopment in a few years once they see how much they are paying. He alone on the board has consistently opposed the project.

Supervisor Michael Wornum, who like Giacomini and Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. has shifted positions, voted for redevelopment yesterday saying it is a way of correcting San Rafael's past planning mistakes, which he called "self-inflicted wounds."

He said he is opposed to the way redevelopment is financed, by siphoning off other agencies' tax revenues, but noted the law allows it.

Wornum doubted that the county's two lawsuits testing the constitutionality of the law, among other things, would have been successful.

He was joined by Arrigoni and Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere in approving the agreement. Roumiguiere, outspoken supporter of the city's plans, made the motion for approval.

Before the city's project can

North Vietnam Agrees To Talk With Kissinger

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger said today North Vietnam had agreed to a meeting between himself and Hanoi's chief negotiator Le Duc Tho to discuss the crumbling cease-fire. He conceded there has been no agreement on a date for the talks.

At a White House briefing, Kissinger said the agreement on talks had been reached in diplomatic messages between Washington and Hanoi.

North Vietnamese Deputy Foreign Minister Nguyen Co Thach told newsmen yesterday in Paris that "the atmosphere is not favorable at present" for Kissinger-Tho talks. Thach indicated that such a meeting had been ruled out in the immediate future at least.

Novato Tax Election Plans Are Approved

Schools Hit By Closing Of Air Base

By JEFF GREER

Expecting to lose about $2.2 million in federal and state funds due to the closing of Hamilton Air Force Base, Novato Unified School District trustees last night turned to the taxpayers for help. (Another Novato schools story, page 3.)

The board members unanimously approved plans to hold a special tax rate election July 31. If approved by a simple majority vote, the district tax rate could increase a maximum of 43 cents per $100 assessed valuation over this year's rate, according to Supt. James G. Bunker.

If the tax rate election fails, next year's tax rate will be lower than this year's because of Senate Bill 90, the tax reform bill, Bunker pointed out. He said this year's operating tax rate is $4.66 and SB 90 will trim that to $3.74 unless voters raise the maximum to $5.09 for fiscal 1973-74. The special rate would be for one year only, the board members stressed.

Board Chairman Ronald D. Schenck and Trustee Carolyn M. Crabtree estimated the special one-year ceiling increase could add between $25 to $32 to the property taxes on the average $30,000 Novato home.

Trustee Marret B. Boissevain said he would support the tax rate increase "only if we do not get assistance from the state and federal governments" to make up for the loss due to closing the air base. Bunker said the tax rate increase would give the district "about the same" financial position next year as it would have had under SB 90 if the base had not been ordered closed.

Schenck opened the meeting before a standing-room-only audience by reading a prepared statement reviewing the district situation resulting from loss of pupils, loss of federal and state funds and faculty demands for pay raises.

He said the district is in "a desperate financial crisis" facing a deficit of some $1.3 million next year, in addition to which teachers are asking for a 21.2 per cent raise.

He said board members and district officials have asked legislators and government officials in Sacramento and Washington to counteract the base closing's financial impact.

Had the base not been closed, Schenck said, the district would have enjoyed a surplus of about $920,000 next year, enabling "significant improvements" in salaries and programs. He said the board pledged that if the picture brightened either through the tax rate election or through aid from Sacramento or Washington "in excess of . . . our absolute minimum budget needs, the first priority will be certificated and classified salary increases."

He denied that the trustees

Connally Switch To GOP Official

HOUSTON (UPI) — John B. Connally, 56, the conservative former Texas governor and Treasury Secretary and a lifelong Democrat, today switched to the Republican party "to help it meet the needs and aspirations of all Americans."

Connally, who resigned a year ago after 18 months as the only Democrat in Nixon's cabinet, did not say he would run for President to succeed Nixon in 1976.

"I believe that in our time, the Republican Party best represents the broad views of most Americans, whatever their formal political affiliation," Connally said in a statement at his Houston law office.

"I believe it can best provide the strength and stability and unite our people to deal effectively with our problems," Connally said of the GOP.

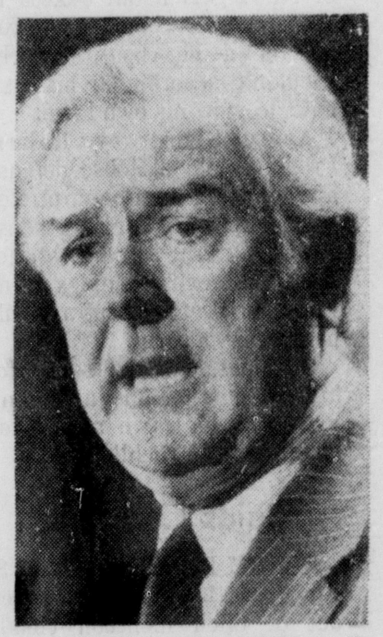
"I know it best represents my own personal conviction. Accordingly, I am announcing my decision to affiliate with the Republican Party and make any contribution to help it meet the needs and aspirations of all Americans," Connally said.

Connally's announcement came at the height of the Watergate case and followed by just two days Nixon's announcement that he had accepted the resignations of several trusted White House aides.

Today, Connally said he believes every American has an obligation to take part in the political system and he said he will continue to play a role in that system. But he made no particular reference to his own political plans.

Connally's statement came in advance of a news conference at which he was to formally announce his political switch.

Sen. John G. Tower, R-Tex., was among the first to hail



JOHN B. CONNALLY
Becomes a Republican

Connally's move to the Republican Party.

"I hope that like-minded Democrats will follow his example and that his action will accelerate a growing trend toward realistic political realignment," Towersaid.

Only three months ago, Connally said on national television that if he did switch from the Democratic to the Republican Party, the change would not mean he would seek the White House in 1976.

"If I do (switch), it's not going to be on the basis of seeking the presidential nomination," Connally said on Feb. 2. "It is based on which party I can be most comfortable in."

Connally served 18 months as Nixon's Treasury secretary and was one of the President's closest advisers during that time. When Connally resigned from the cabinet —just one month before the Watergate break-in at Democratic headquarters in Washington —he did so in a warm exchange of praise with Nixon.

North Marin Water Connections Banned

By FRANK FARRARA

The North Marin County Water District board last night unanimously declared a water shortage emergency and set an immediate moratorium on new connections and water main extensions. (Another North Marin water district story, page 11.)

The moratorium applies only to the area served by Russian River water and Lake Stafford and doesn't apply to areas of West Marin served by the district.

The board, reversing a 3-to-2 vote on March 6 against declaring a water shortage, enacted its ban just a day after similar action by the Marin Municipal Water District board.

Directors set the ban for an indefinite period with the provision that as water becomes available, it will serve applicants for connections in order.

As mentioned several times during a public hearing attended by about 50 persons, the district's problem isn't a shortage of water supply byt inability to deliver during peak use periods in the summer.

Developers and representatives of the building industry suggested the board delay declaring a shortage until after a $4.1 million bond election June 12.

If passed, the bond funds would finance the district's share of a new pipeline from Cotati to the Russian River, the part of the Russian River Water Delivery System that is now a bottleneck.

Chairman William W. Wright said consumers "have first call" on the water and the board doesn't want to deprive them of water for lawns or fire protection.

Just before the moratorium was voted the board approved agreements on 14 developments, representing 886 dwelling units, the first agreements since February and apparently the last for a while.

District Mgr. John O. Nelson said those agreements use up all the district's available capacity.

"At this time we are without capacity to take on new agree-

Nuclear Proposal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Nixon administration has rejected a proposal being pushed in the Senate for a unilateral halt to U.S. underground nuclear testing, possibly when Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev visits here in June.

Philip J. Farley, acting director of the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency and Pentagon research chief Dr. John Foster testified yesterday that the proposal is unacceptable because the United States lacks the technical means to tell whether Russia is secretly testing underground.

Against Mowing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Gen. Creighton Abrams, Army chief of staff, gets about $45,000 in pay and allowances plus free use of a big house but he shouldn't, according to his boss, have to mow his own lawn.

Army Secretary Robert Froehlke told a House defense appropriations subcommittee yesterday that "it makes sense from a management standpoint" for enlisted aides to do such work rather than a highly paid, busy general.

"It doesn't make sense for him to hurry home at 5 p.m. and mow his lawn and spade his garden," Froehlke said.

Raids Continue

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — U. S. Air Force jet fighters swooped out of thick monsoon clouds over Phnom Penh today to drop napalm and 500-pound bombs on suspected Communist positions just across the Mekong River.

The strikes came despite government claims the rebels had been driven from the area by a 1,500-man government drive Monday.

Earlier today, the Cambodian command reported diminishing Communist activity on all battlefronts, but raids last night by U.S. B52 bombers shook Phnom Penh and more fighting was reported south of the capital.

Antitest Action

CANBERRA (UPI) — Prime Minister Gough Whitlam announced today that Australia will take legal action against France in the International Court of Justice to block further nuclear tests in the Pacific.

Whitlam told the House of Representatives that scientific reports established clearly that the French tests had contaminated the Australian environment with radioactive fallout.

New York Riot

NEW YORK (UPI) — Nine policemen were injured yesterday in clashes with 400 demonstrators protesting the fatal shooting of 10-year-old Clifford Glover by a plainclothes police officer last weekend.

Seven persons were arrested in scattered incidents in the tense Queens County neighborhood where 150 policemen, some in riot gear, were called out to disperse crowds stoning buses and setting street fires.

Clash In Lebanon

BEIRUT (UPI) — Lebanese troops firing machine guns clashed with guerrillas today near a Palestinian refugee camp on the southern fringe of Beirut.

Witnesses said there were several explosions during the fighting. There were no reports of casualties.

Extradition Set

NEW YORK (UPI) — For the past several years Mrs. Hermine Braunsteiner Ryan has been leading the life of a quiet housewife in the borough of Queens.

Yesterday a federal judge approved her extradition to West Germany to face charges of killing and torturing Jews in a Nazi concentration camp.

The decision by Judge Jacob Mishler resulted from a request by the West German government that Mrs. Ryan, a former Nazi prison guard, be deported to stand trial on the basis of evidence given by death camp survivors.

Hunt For Killers

MADRID (UPI) — Authorities launched a nationwide hunt today for the killers of a policeman in May Day violence, the first such reported murder since 1939 when Generalissimo Francisco Franco came to power.

Police said they were holding 145 persons in an effort to trace the attackers who killed policeman Jose Antonio Fernandez Gutierrez, 20, in Madrid during a demonstration.

Belfast Murder

BELFAST (UPI) — Gunmen shot and killed a man then dumped his body on the outskirts of Belfast today. The murder came after a night of bombing and rioting in and near Londonderry.

Police said they discovered the body with a single bullet wound in the head after receiving an anonymous telephone call shortly after dawn.

Drop In Federal Deficit Is Seen

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The economy is producing so much unanticipated tax revenue that the federal deficit this fiscal year will be $5 billion less than predicted in January, Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz told Congress Tuesday.

He said the deficit will be $19.8 billion instead of the predicted $24.8 billion.

Gas Pump Pinch Growing Tighter

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The nation's fuel crisis, with higher prices and declining supplies, is taking a marked turn for the worse.

A gasoline rationing program for its 31,000 retail stations was announced Tuesday by Amoco Oil Co., the same day Cities Service Oil Co. instituted across-the-board price increases.

Texaco, one of the nation's largest petroleum refiners, predicted in Congressional testimony that there will be industry-wide gasoline "run-outs" this summer.

Kerr-McGee sharply reduced the number of self service pumps at stations in the Oklahoma City area, raising its average selling price. Signs prominantly displayed a few days ago were removed, apparently so motorists could not see prices until they got close to the pumps.

Local governments, which generally buy their gasoline in bulk from the major companies, reported the companies are increasingly reluctant to renew contracts to supply fuel.

Chicago, Detroit, Indianapolis, Los Angeles and several other cities are now operating on a week-to-week basis and are unable to obtain written contracts assuring continued deliveries. Birmingham, Ala., was getting its supplies on a monthly basis, but said it also was unable to get future commitments for gas in writing.

Several airline and trucking companies also reported they had been hit by the fuel shortages. A spokesman for Trans World Airlines (TWA) said flights from the West into Chicago are carrying extra fuel to counteract shortages.

National Airlines said it had been placed on notice of fuel shortage by several suppliers and Delta Airlines said it had been experiencing an increase in prices.

Prof. Morris A. Adelman of the Massachusetts Institute of Techology, a top economist in the field, said one of the problems is that "there is no refinery construction now. There are a variety of factors. Consumption is up. Price controls discourage refinery building. There are environmental restrictions and other reasons."

Adelman said there is no immediate solution, even if a large supply of crude oil were made available.

Fred L. Hartley, president of Union Oil Co. told the company's annual meeting in Los Angeles Tuesday, "I don't see how we can go through the next few years, or more likely few months, without some kind of energy curtailment."

Acupuncture Is Used In Drug Cures

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A new "cure" for heroin and opium addiction: Stick a needle in your ear.

The needle is an acupuncture implement attached to an electric vibrator, which produces a "sensation just below that of pain," when stuck in the ear.

Dr. Donald J. Kubitz of San Francisco, who just returned from a trip to Hong Kong to see the threatment developed by Dr. H. L. Wen, described the method and said it appeared successful on 40 addicts.

Kubitz, who is associated with a foundation doing medical and psychic research, said 10 heroin addicts and 30 opium addicts appeared to give up their cravings without withdrawal pains after five days of treatment.

The physician said the Hong Kong acupuncturist's method must be researched further under scientifically controlled conditions.

But he added that he tried the vibrating needle in the ear treatment himself and it felt "good."

The color of the stamp will be banknote green.

Two Truce Helicopters Fired Upon

SAIGON (UPI) — Two international truce team helicopters were fired on from Communist-held territory while on a mission in northern South Vietnam today and Canadian Ambassador Michel Gauvin termed the shooting a "deplorable act."

A Canadian member of the International Commission of Control and Supervision (ICCS) said the two ICCS helicopters were fired on as they left Quang Tri City 400 miles north of Saigon.

Gauvin told reporters: "I don't know yet the details of the shooting but it was a deplorable act."

The attack today caused no damage and no one was injured, he said.

A Blackout On News At Reservation

PINE RIDGE, S.D. (UPI) — Federal negotiator Richard Hellstern has announced a blackout of all news pertaining to negotiating sessions in the 64-day-old impasse at Wounded Knee. He declined to answer newsmen's questions concerning the reason for it.

However, it was understood that American Indian Movement (AIM) leaders at Wounded Knee have protested the former government policy of holding news conferences expressing the government's view of negotiating sessions.

Newsmen have not been permitted into the besieged hamlet to interview AIM leaders since March 27.

Hellstern refused to confirm reports that a negotiating session was held Tuesday near Wounded Knee. However, he and others federal negotiators were absent from the government's headquarters in the Bureau of Indian Affairs Building in Pine Ridge Tuesday afternoon.

Negotiations have stalled for two days because of a dispute over burial of the body of Frank Clearwater, 47, an AIM militant fatally wounded two weeks ago.

Funds Spent To Win Approval Of Mining

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon's re-election campaign committee spent between $5,000 and $6,000 in contributions to finance demonstrations supporting the 1972 mining of Haiphong Harbor, according to a committee official.

Robert C. Odle Jr., director of administration for the committee, made the disclosure in a deposition in the Democrat's $6.4 million damage suit against the committee for political espionage.

Odle said he spent between $3,000 and $4,000 for that purpose. And he recalled that Paul Jones, director of the committee's black vote division, received another $2,000 to bring people to a rally on Capitol Hill to support the mining.

The General Accounting Office said these expenditures had not been reported, as required under the 1971 federal Election Campaign Act. Nixon ordered the mining of the North Vietnamese harbor last May 8, during the Presidential primary election.

Odle said he received his money from Herbert L. Porter, the committee's scheduling director, and gave it to various division directors "to let them charter buses and buy lunches and food and supplies, signs and things like that" for rallies in the Washington area.

Odle, 29, who has held the committee post since May, 1971, also told of meeting Watergate conspirator G. Gordon Liddy, in a hallway in the committee headquarters the afternoon of the June 17 bugging of the Democratic National Committee headquarters. Liddy since has been vonvicted in the bugging conspiracy.

"He asked me where the paper shredder was, the large paper shredder that we used for all the wastebaskets, and I directed him to it," Odle said. Five or 10 minutes later, he said, he saw Liddy carrying a large stack of papers toward the shredding machine.

"At that time," he said, "I don't think I thought a great deal of it."

Liddy, finance counsel to the re-election committee, shared a suite of offices with Odle, according to the testimony.

Asked whether he had any prior knowledge of the eavesdropping at the Democratic headquarters, Odle replied: "Absolutely none."

Trustees Reverse Office Vote

Novato Unified School District trustees last night reversed their earlier, split-vote decision to move the district offices into rented quarters and also voted to shut down Pacheco School next September. (Another Novato schools story, page 1.)

The two unanimous actions were part of a four-part recommendation by Dist. Supt. James G. Bunker brought on by fiscal problems connected with closing Hamilton Air Force Base and other issues.

As adopted last night, Bunker's report called for keeping the district offices where they are, instead of moving them into rented space in the San Marin Professional Center. The North Marin Continuation High School, which earlier was slated to move into the district office building from its presently rented quarters, will instead share space at Pacheco School with classes from Indian Valley Colleges.

Last night's vote settled some long-standing controversies, but wasn't uniformly popular with trustees, teachers and parents.

Board Chairman Ronald D. Schenck and Trustee William Eckhoff condemned "backing down" from the earlier decision to rent new quarters for the district administration, and said the reversion to status quo was "poor planning."

Trustees Elizabeth Mertle and Carolyn M. Crabtree said housing the continuation classes at Pacheco School would be "bad for the program" but voted for the package anyway.

Several Pacheco parents repeated made at made earlier, similarly packed hearings on the controversy over closing the school.

Trustee-elect Betty Machado asked the board to defer its decision until September, and to request Virgil W. Hollis, county superintendent of schools, to survey district property needs and building use before acting. Trustees said they could "retract" their decisions later if need be, but went ahead with the vote.

Novato Unified School District Board also:

JUNIOR HIGH — Postponed choosing between two plans for revising attendance boundaries for the district's three junior high schools, after lengthy argument. The vote to table action to May 15 was 4-2, with trustees Schenck and Marett B. Boissevain dissenting and William G. Schneeflock absent.

COURSE — Approved adding a second year of Italian to the high school modern language studies, but tabled to May 15 a proposal to change junior high school graduation requirements.

SUMMER SCHOOL — Approved plans to offer 35 classes at the summer school for junior and senior high students, from June 25 to Aug. 4. Signups will be June 25 at Novato High School.

MULTI-ETHNIC — Announced a public meeting at 8 p.m. May 7 in the library of Hill Junior High School to plan public observance of multi-ethnic week next January.

PERSONNEL — Approved 36 teachers for summer school courses.

CLOSED SESSION — Adjourned to closed session to instruct the board's representative on salary negotiations.

Irate Taxpayers of Marin, meanwhile, was one of the few to say a reorganization of the departments has merit but she recommended a consolidation of public works and planning only.

In a written statement passed out, Mrs. Frederick said her group endorses Foreaker to head a consolidated department because "he is an administrator. . . the planning department has long needed someone of Mr. Foreaker's caliber."

The parks and recreation department, she said, does not have functions similar to the others and should be left untouched.

Pam Lloyd of Mill Valley also supported some form of consolidation — as suggested in Baptiste's proposal — for better coordination of environmental protection.

Other speakers included Grace Wellman of Ross, Planning Commissioner Margaret B. Azevedo, former San Anselmo Mayor James Reed, Charles L. Brouse of Larkspur, Carol Staley of the League of Women Voters of Central Marin, Alex McMillian of the Audubon Society, Leroy M. Gerner of the county parks and recreation commission and Francis Stewart of Bolinas. All opposed consolidation.

Amid the criticism, Arrigoni, who had requested Barrows' proposal, said he felt the session "was a healthy discussion."

He said he had earlier voted against junking the county administrator's proposal "because I wanted the public to speak. If the vote was now, I would have voted for killing it," he told the audience. He later changed the vote in the minutes.

He said he strongly supported Baptiste's idea of referring the matter to the department heads to work on new recommendations short of consolidation.

His comments yesterday were in sharp contrast with those of three weeks ago when he scoffed at a similar proposal from Supervisor Gary T. Giacomini that the department heads rework Barrows's plan.

"I don't want a consensus of what the three departments think we will accept," Arrigoni said at that time, urging the administrator's proposal be considered as submitted.

Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere said yesterday the discussion had brought forth many ideas for better coordination and internal reorganization of departments. He urged further study.

Baptiste agreed but assured those in the audience changes within and between departments would be made. "When the conservation league talks of keeping the status quo, you're missing the boat. . . there is a need for improvement," he said.

He requested Barrows and the others to return as soon as possible with new reorganization proposals.

Girl Reported Satisfactory After Accident

Cynthia Stephens, 16, of 344 Ferndale Avenue, Mill Valley, was reported in satisfactory condition today at Marin General Hospital with a compound fracture of the left leg suffered yesterday when she was struck by a car.

The California Highway Patrol reported she was trying to cross Shoreline Highway near the Howard Johnson motel at 10:35 p.m. when she was struck by a car driven by Charles C. Eskilosen, 20, of 14 Grove Street, San Rafael.

Officers said Eskilosen told them she walked in front of his car and he was unable to stop.

Potted Grass Confiscated

The springtime urge to garden, is not confined to suburban and rural areas, it even hits apartment dwellers.

According to San Rafael police, someone reported that he saw marijuana plants growing in Apt. C, 25 Valencia Avenue. Barbara Susan Coleman, 21, and Heidi Lee Purcell, 18, surrendered 19 marijuana plants about eight inches tall. No charges have been filed against them.

Tiburon policeman Ronmo Reier told San Rafael police that he saw two marijuana plants on the roof of 65 Bayo Vista from a nearby apartment. San Rafael police confiscated the two potted marijuana plants, but did not find out who owned them.

No Cause Found In Explosion

ROSEVILLE (UPI) — A boxcar fire which triggered a series of bomb blasts last weekend did not result from "physical or mechanical malfunction," but the exact cause may never be known, a Southern Pacific Railroad (SP) official said Tuesday.

R. D. Spence, SP director of operations, said the railroad and five federal agencies, including the FBI, considered the initial blaze crucial to their investigations.

"There is nothing to indicate that any physical or mechanical malfunction caused the blaze," Spence said. But he pointed out that the impact of the repeated blasts could have destroyed any physical evidence.

The explosions, which began Saturday and continued through Sunday, resulted in injuries to about 50 persons, forced evacuation of thousands of residents, riddled 700 homes with shrapnel and blew out windows and buckled walls in a 10-square mile area.

Damage to the SP yard, where 204 boxcars were destroyed, was estimated at $6 million. The surrounding community suffered an estimated $4 million in damage.

The last handful of evacuated families returned to their homes yesterday.

Another railroad spokesman, Henry Ortiz, said the 21 ammunition cars were "kept under observation from time to time" while they were in the sprawling switching yard after their arrival from the Hawthorne, Nev. Naval Depot. But he also said there was no specific guard.

ments," and there are applications pending representing about 1,000 dwelling units, he said.

Wright said that the choice was declaring a moratorium or rationing and that rationing would be unfair to present users.

Robert Burke, president of the San Marin Improvement Association, said the board's duty "is to the present users."

Joseph Y. Seminario of 8 Anton Way, Black Point, said the water shortage declaration appeared to be "somewhat of a play to pass the bond issue," and another speaker said voters may feel they are being manipulated and vote against the bond issue as a backlash.

Nelson indicated if the general obligation bond measure doesn't get the necessary two-thirds favorable vote in June, the district will consider a revenue bond issue which requires a 50 per cent favorable vote.

The U.S. Development Corp., which plans to build 700 homes on the Pacheco Ranch in South Novato, failed to obtain an agreement, but directors said it will be "first in line" when water is available.

Directors also agreed they should have a joint meeting with the Marin Municipal Water District, which has a water supply problem. Director George A. Amaroli said perhaps the North Marin district could supply Marin Municipal with water during the winter and in return receive water during the summer.

Projects which received agreement just under the wire before the moratorium and the number of dwelling units are:

Ignacio Boulevard Apartments, 189; Ignacio Industrial Park, 26; Diable Triangle Apartments, 105; Rancho Del Pantano Industrial Park, 7; San Jose Willabe, 79; Oaks Apartments, 58; Rowland Boulevard Apartments, 32; La Casa Novato, 96; Indian Acres, 10; Deer Island, none; Andreas Gardens, 16; San Marin Apartments, 224; Valley Oaks, 73; and Glenhill One Subdivision; 19.

Guilty Verdict In Check Trial

A Marin Superior Court jury in the court of Judge Charles Read Best found Fernando Thompson guilty after seven hours of considering the evidence from five days of trial.

Thompson tried to open an account with a $125 check June 11, 1971, at a Wells Fargo Bank, but fled when the manager became suspicious.

Thompson was charged in April 1972, after a Wells Fargo detective traced the check, made out on the acocount of a Santa Rosa service station, to Thompson.

power that Haldeman had as chief of staff to coordinate all presidential appointments and communications. Sources said Nixon now felt the tight controls at the top of the staff deprived him of receiving some vital information.

The Times quoted one investigator as saying, "Haldeman and Ehrlichman were running the cover-up. We don't know whether Nixon to this day knows what really happened. He really thinks they're all clean."

Dean has been reported as trying to seek a grant of immunity from prosecution before testifying before the grand jury. He has talked with prosecutors, however, and allegedly has implicated Haldeman and Ehrlichman.

The Times quoted an investigator with respect to Dean's role: "I don't think Dean had prior knowledge of the bugging. He agreed to go along with the cover-up. Once he found out how many people would be hurt, he was convinced that the scandal would damage the country."

The investigator was quoted that after talking with Haldeman and Ehrlichman, Dean "went into the bag and falsified his report to the President" on Dean's own investigation for Nixon of the bugging.

The Times said the "basic scheme" in the cover-up effort included having officials involved in the operation deny knowledge of it, and promising payments as well as executive clemency if convicted to five men arrested at the Watergate.

The Times quoted investigators that soon after the bugging arrests, G. Gordon Liddy, who was convicted in January as a leading conspirator, was selected as the person "to blame it all" on.

"Everybody knew that Gordon knew how to keep his mouth shut," investigators were quoted, "and they were right —he did."

Liddy has been given a sentence of at least six years in prison for his part in the plot and has refused to tell grand jurors about details of the bugging.

In another fresh development, Martha Mitchell, wife of the former attorney general who was head of the Nixon reelection campaign at the time of the bugging, was subpoenaed to give sworn testimony Thursday about what she knows about Watergate.

Her testimony will be taken in New York as a deposition in a $6.4 million civil damage suit the Democratic party brought against principals in the bugging case.

Nixon was reported planning to complete the White House shake-up by next week. There was no indication whether he intended to bring in new faces to succeed the three departing aides or to have present assistants take over their roles. A long-time political associate and erstwhile Cabinet member and counselor, Robert H. Finch, offered to help out in the reorganization temporarily.

The association's Marin branch also announced that the Mill Valley Middle School will be awarded a $500 grant as a result of participation by its students in the walk. The money is to be used for health education programs.

Mrs. Zellers said 60 per cent of the persons who registered as walkers turned in money pledged by sponsors.

Stolen Property Hearing Is Set

A preliminary hearing for Gregory Crawford Gocher, 21, of San Rafael on a felony count of concealing stolen property has been scheduled for Tuesday in Marin Municipal Court.

Gocher, arrested last Thursday, pleaded innocent Monday.

Dried Clothing Reported Stolen

Clothing valued at $300 was taken from the driers of the Laundry Bag at 1817 Fourth Street, San Rafael, police reported.

Duncan Walker MacKinnon, 21, of 15 Jessup Street, San Rafael, told police that he put the clothes in the drier and went home for a few minutes. When he returned at 11:50 p.m., the clothing was gone.

Petaluma Cycle Rider Injured As Bike Hits Car

A Petaluma man was reported in good condition today at Hillcrest Hospital with abdominal injuries suffered last night when his motorcycle hit a car broadside on Petaluma Boulevard North.

Robert R. Daggett, 28, of 17 El Rose Drive, was hurt, according to California Highway Patrol officers, at 7:15 p.m. when James B. Smith, 65, of 300 Stony Point Road, Petaluma, started to turn left off Petaluma Boulevard onto Corona Road.

Daggett, who was driving north on a Honda, was unable to avoid Smith's car, officers said, and skidded into it broadside. Smith, who was not injured, will be cited for failing to yield the right of way to Daggett, according to officers.

planned to cut district staff or to seek special legislation enabling such cuts of tenured personnel, despite claims by some teachers that such was the case.

About 100 teachers attended the meetings, with Iris Cloudt, spokesman for the Novato Federated Teachers declaring that the faculty can "no longer bear the brunt" of the district's financial woes.

Schenck suggested that the teachers and the district negotiate a salary package on "a contingent basis" depending on financial help from the taxpayers or government.

Schenck also appointed Mrs. Crabtree and Trustees Elizabeth Mertel and Jan Murray to lead a district-wide committee in organizing a citizens' campaign to write and wire lawmakers to fight the federal cutbacks. Each parent-teacher association in the district has been asked to donate $15 toward mailing costs for a circular the district will prepare outlining the campaign.

Bunker said the Novato district suffered the most of any California school system under the military base cuts ordered last month by the Department of Defense. He said he will meet tomorrow with superintendents of four other major districts to compare strategies.

Ship Channel Dredging Set

GALVESTON, Tex. (AP) — A contract for $854,064 to dredge 20 miles of the Matagorda Ship Channel has been awarded.

Col. Nolan C. Rhodes, district engineer of the Corps of Engineers, said work will restore the channel to authorize dimensions of 38 feet deep by 200 feet wide.

The project calls for dredging approximately 4.3 million cubic yards of material.

Two Marinites Receive Awards

Two Marin County high school students have been given awards for having the best entry from their school in the Annual Economic Discussion and Journalism Invest-In-America Competition held in San Francisco.

Vivienne Todd, a student at San Domenico School was given one share of stock in Crocker National Corp., and Eric Rayner of Tamalpais High School was given one share of Crum and Foster Co. stock. The contest was sponsored by the Northern California Council of Invest-In-America of San Francisco.

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — Heart transplant pioneer Christiaan Barnard has become the first faculty member of the University of Cape Town to be named a full professor by ad hoc merit promotion.

Previously an honorary professor of surgical science. Prof. Barnard is now a full professor in the university's medical school.

tary Phase III wage and price controls that have prevailed for most of this year.

Nixon began by meeting for 40 minutes with his five ranking economic strategists —Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz, Budget Director Roy L. Ash, Federal Reserve Chairman Arthur F. Burns, Chairman Herbert Stein of the Council of Economic Advisers, and Director John T. Dunlop of the Cost of Living Council.

Joining the session were Vice President Spiro T. Agnew and Kenneth Cole, who has been serving temporarily as Nixon's top domestic affairs adviser since the resignation Monday of John D. Ehrlichman.

Also summoned to the White House was the 10-member Labor-Management Advisory Committee on Phase III.

The committee's membership includes AFL-CIO President George Meany, a sharp critic of administration economic policy. Meany has said that unless prices are brought under control soon, labor will be unable to cooperate with programs aimed at keeping wage increases to an average of 5.5 per cent a year.

Nixon has been under increasing pressure to take some new dramatic action to control soaring prices. Pushed up by some of the sharpest increases in food prices ever recorded, the government's cost of living index in the first three months of this year increased faster than any time since the early days of the Korean War.

Shultz, Nixon's chief economic spokesman, has said repeatedly that the administration is not considering another wage-price freeze.

proceed, however, the redevelopment agency board, made up of city councilmen, must reach similar agreement with the Marin Community College District board which had joined the county in its suits.

Until the suits are cleared, the city is blocked,in effect, from selling redevelopment bonds because of the possibility of a court setback.

If the college follows the county's lead in dropping legal action, members of the Marin Council for Civic Affairs claim they will file suit to block the project.

Benefit Case For Unborn

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — California Welfare Rights Organization has asked the State Supreme Court to rule that unborn children are eligible for welfare benefits.

The organization filed a petition Monday seeking the reversal of lower court decisions allowing state officials to grant partial benefits to fetuses because they have less needs than a child.

The suit said federal and state law requires an unborn child be counted as a person eligible for welfare under the Aid to Families with Dependent Children program.

Renzullo Head Of Two Schools

Armando Renzullo, Sausalito School District administrator who was offered reemployment with the district next year at a salary of $21,000, will be principal of both Bayside and Martin Luther King Schools.

The Independent-Journal yesterday identified Renzullo as principal only at Bayside School. Actually, he was named principal at King School for the spring semester of this year in addition to his duties at Bayside.

Closer Controls On Drugs Asked

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) has recommended that nine sedatives—including three of the most widely abused "downers" —be placed under stricter government control.

The barbituates are Butabarbital, Cyclobarbital, Heptabarbital, Probarbital, Talbutal, Vinbarbital, Amobarbital, Secobarbital and Pentobarbital.

It said Monday that the last three are known on the street as "blue devils," "red birds," and "yellow jackets" and are among the ten most abused drugs in the United States.

A Flying Honor For Hughes

HAMMONDSPORT, N. Y. (UPI) — Millionaire recluse Howard Hughes will be one of 17 persons inducted into the National Aviation Hall of Fame here May 19.

A spokesman for the aviation society said Hughes will be honored because he set a world land-plane record in 1935, reaching a speed of 325 miles per hour.

Hughes, in 1938, set another world record when he flew around the world in a time of 3 days, 19 hours, and 14 minutes.

The spokesman said it was "very doubtful" that Hughes, who hasn't been seen publicly in years, would attend the ceremony.

'His', 'Hers' Out — 'Yours'

JACKSON, Mich. (UPI) — The sign on the bathroom at the Moonlight Chalet here just says "Yours."

Hank Lewis, the owner of the restaurant bar, is tearing down the "His" and "Hers" signs in favor of a more unisex approach.

Lewis said Tuesday he was building two restrooms in the upstairs of his bar, but after the completion of one, both sexes started to use it.

"Nobody seemed to mind," he said. ""so we decided to take down the 'His' and 'Hers' signs and put up one sign that says 'Yours.' We don't anticipate any problems."

Associate Planner Will Give Talk

Frank Gray, associate planner for the City of Petaluma, will be the guest speaker for the Heritage Homes of Petaluma meeting at 8 p.m. tomorrow in the city hall's municipal court chambers.

Gray will describe a system of preservation of historic buildings in San Jose, a subject on which he did a thesis, and will discuss what is being done in this field by the Petaluma city planning staff.

Novato Councilmen Approve Warehouses

The Novato City Council last night approved building two warehouses in the Novato Creek flood plain across the creek from homes on Yukon Way which were flooded last winter.

The Novato Planning Commission on April 9 had approved variances for a warehouse and office for Stan's For Sports and a warehouse for Paul Ciampi, both located at Ford Way and Hill Road.

An emergency ordinance passed by the council froze building on the plain except when a variance is granted, and James L. Hallstrom of 1235 Yukon Way, last night had carried his appeal of planning commission variance grants to the city council.

After hearing more than two and a half hours of arguments as to how much the two warehouses would increase flooding, the council unanimously denied the appeal.

Atty. John D. McQuaid, representing the homeowners who were flooded or threatened by flood waters, accused Clifford E. Temps, public works director, of withholding a report in which the Army Corps of Engineers said the proposed warehouses would have "considerable effect" on increasing the height of flood water. McQuaid said that Temps had withheld the report from the planning commission when it considered the two variances.

He also accused the staff of being lax in its duty for not requiring environmental impact reports on the two proposed warehouses.

Residents of the area showed slide pictures of the area and how the proposed development across the creek would turn flood waters into their homes.

Patrick Healey, a civil engineer, told the council that the Murray-McCormick environmental group report on the effect of the buildings on flooding did not have "sufficient engineering" to be accurate.

Councilman F. Wayne Sartain said the council had no alternative but to base its decision on the Murray-McCormick report and the advice of the city's public works director.

The other councilmen agreed and the appeal was denied.

McQuaid, representing 35 residents of the area, has filed a $3,275,750 claim against the city of Novato, County of Marin, Marin County Flood Control District, North Marin County Water District, the State of California and the state Division of Highways for damage suffered in last winter's flooding.

The Novato City Council Also:

BIDS — Called for bids on widening Tamalpais Avenue between Novato Boulevard and Center Road, with bids to be opened May 23 and the contract to be awarded June 5. The project is estimated cost $150,000 with completion due in late September.

HEALTH SERVICE — Approved a contract with Marin County under which the county health department would provide health services and inspections for the city.

TREES — Sent a proposed street tree list back to the environmental quality committee to consider removing liquid amber and sycamore trees from the list previously approved. Mayor Fred F. Ruegg was against the liquid amber trees unless they had constant root pruning to keep them from breaking sidewalks.

FUNDS — Approved an agreement with the town of Corte Madera that their treasurers may jointly invest funds to save the service charge on investments under $100,000.

MUSEUM — Approved paying the quarterly amount of $250 to the Novato Prehistory Museum.

VALLEJO — Accepted the Vallejo Avenue reconstruction from Highway 101 to Seventh Street as complete. The contract with W. R. Forde Construction Co. was for $187,055 for the job.

SUBDIVISION — Approved the final map of Andreas Gardens, a subdivision of 12 lots on San Andreas Court for Zahorenko Construction Co. Inc.

REZONING — Passed an ordinance rezoning from limited agriculture to planned industrial and planned commercial for Richard R. Hanna on 35 acres east of Highway 101, north of Highway 37 and west of the Northwestern Pacific Railroad.

ADJOURNED — Adjourned to 7:30 a.m. next Tuesday to a meeting with the Novato Fire Protection District board at Alvarado Inn. The regular council meeting is at 8 p.m. that day.

LOSES SUIT — Manson family killer Susan Atkins was the loser yesterday when a Superior Court judge threw out a $2 million malpractice suit she had filed against her former attorney, Richard Caballero, lawyer Paul Caruso and Deputy District Attorney Vincent Bugliosi. Miss Atkins claimed she was promised Bugliosi would not seek the death penalty in return for her testimony, but he did.

Development Freeze In Sausalito Is Rejected

A proposal that Sausalito freeze all development for six months was rejected by the city council last night, even though the city's new planning director pleaded that he needed a breather to work on the city's open space element and on zoning ordinance changes.

Last month, the council had voted down another proposal from Councilman Evert Heynneman for a moratorium on waterfront development. This time the council voted 3-to-2 against setting a date for a hearing on an ordinance for a citywide freeze.

After the vote, Councilman Stephen A. Fraser, who opposed the moratorium, suggested to Planning Director Herb Case that he gain time by asking developers to let him set aside their projects for a while.

In asking for the moratorium, Case reminded the council that the state has required that by June 30 the open space element must be written and changes made to bring zoning ordinances into accord with the city's general plan. At the same time, he said, he has to consider $100 million in major development plans including the proposed Schoonmaker and Deak waterfront projects, residential proposals for Wolfback Ridge and others.

His request was supported by Heynneman and Mayor Robin Sweeny who urged the council to set a date for a public hearing on the matter.

Fraser argued that the staff has enough time and that there had been enough discussion on how to develop open land throughout the city. "There's an awful lot of jobs at stake in the development process and somewhere along the line we're going to reach the point where everything stops," he said.

He and others noted, however, that if Case cannot write the open space element in time there could be a de facto moratorium. Under state law, building permits will be invalid in cities which have not completed plans for open space.

Several developers in the audience also opposed Case.

Homeowners Will Hear About Bonds

George A. Amaroli, a director of the North Marin County Water District, will talk about the district's $4.1 million bond measure at a public meeting of the Loma Verde Homeowners Association at 8 p.m. tomorrow at Loma Verde School library.

The homeowners also will discuss the cutbacks at Hamilton Air Force Base and the future of Raphael Village, the government housing area near Loma Verde.

Topless Dancers Lose Court Case

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Nine years after Carol Doda introduced the topless with a bare-bosomed dance in North Beach, the California Supreme Court ruled she could be told to cover up.

Miss Doda, who now dances nude in the San Francisco night club district, promptly offered to perform before the judges to show them their Tuesday decision was wrong.

The state court decided local communities could adopt ordinances prohibiting topless - bottomless in bars and restaurants. The decision came on the heels of a U.S. Supreme Court ruling that nude dancing could be barred in clubs where liquor is served.

Mrs. Ruckelshaus Will Keep Post

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Mrs. Jill Ruckelshaus, whose husband has been named acting FBI chief, has gotten approval to keep her part-time White House job.

Mrs. Ruckelshaus had asked her husband, William D. Ruckelshaus, for a legal opinion on whether there was a conflict of interest with her position in the White House and his at the Justice Department. A spokesman said he gave her the go-ahead to stay on at the White House.

Policy On Retail Shops Is Debated

The Sausalito City Council last night inconclusively debated a revised zoning ordinance prohibiting tourist-oriented retail shops in the city's central waterfront area.

After discussion broke off, no date was set to reconsider the ordinance, originally approved by the planning commission more than a year ago and recently reconsidered by the council.

In the area approximately between Napa and Johnson streets, the new ordinance would continue to permit hotels, restaurants, houseboats, office buildings and marine uses such as boat sales and rentals and yacht harbors. But retail stores, now permitted, would not be allowed.

Most discussion centered on Councilman Evert Heynneman's comment that there was a "moral issue" involved in bringing up the ordinance at a time when restaurateur Sam Zakessian is proposing a 20-acre development with many retail shops which would be located on the central waterfront.

"I find it weird at this point that we're changing the ordinance," Heynneman said. "I'm not in agreement with the proposal for the Zakessian property, but I'd rather leave the zoning as it is and review the proposal on its own merits."

Councilman Stephen A. Fraser, who had asked the staff to put the ordinance on the agenda, said that Zakessian and any other developer had to be aware that the city had been considering such a zoning change for years.

"It's a moral issue," said Fraser, "Only if we'd pulled this out of our hip pocket and said, 'here it is.' "

Without the ordinance, Fraser said the waterfront would turn into a "high density visitor-oriented project."

Zakessian said he was willing to listen to "ideas of what you don't want." But he said he opposes "continuous rezoning which has reached the point of being ridiculous."

Last week, the council sent Zakessian's proposal to the planning commission for further study.

Mayor Robin Sweeny broke off discussion on the zoning ordinance without indicating what would happen to it next.

The Sausalito City Council also:

TREES — Introduced a tree ordinance which would make it a misdemeanor for residents to cut down or alter large trees on their property without obtaining a permit.

ART FAIR — Approved having the Sausalito Business Association and chamber of commerce take over production of the annual city art festival previously handled by the Sausalito Arts Center. But the council asked that the fair be geared largely for city residents.

PARKING LOT — Adopted on second reading a proposal to remove meters from City Parking Lot No. 3 and turn it into an attendant-run lot.

Malcolm X Author Shot And Killed

BOSTON (UPI) — Hakim Jamal, who police said was the author of a book on black militant Malcolm X, was shot and killed late Tuesday. Police said his assailants were four members of a black militant group called the "Mau Mau."

Police said four men were in custody and would be arraigned on murder charges today.

THE PRICE WAS REALLY RIGHT!

With the price of beef going out of sight, one Dallas restaurant celebrated its first anniversary yesterday by cutting prices and residents by the hundreds took advantage of the situation. Highest-priced item on the menu was a New Yorker sirloin steak for 44 cents. Shrimp was 38 cents and a club sandwich 18 cents. The owner of TGI Friday's expects the anniversary special to cost him nearly $10,000.

Reagan Backs Boost In College Financing

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Ronald Reagan has agreed to support legislation giving California's 96 community colleges the biggest boost in state financial aid in their history, college leaders said today.

Bills backed by the governor would pump an additional $65 million into the two-year colleges this year, said Dr. Robert E. Swenson, president of Cabrillo College in Aptos.

(Norman D. Bird, business manager for the Marin Community College District, said it's been estimated that the new legislation would bring in an extra $200,000 to $300,000 in state revenues in fiscal 1973-74.

(Bird added, however, that the estimates are based on at least a 4.5 per cent growth in enrollment at College of Marin and Indian Valley Colleges in the fall.

(Added state revenues could mean a drop of 1 or 2 cents in the college district's tax rate for 1973-74, said Bird.)

The legislation will be sponsored by Assemblyman John Vasconcellos and state Sen. Alfred Alquist, both San Jose Democrats, Swenson said in a statement released by the California Junior College Association in Sacramento. He said the package would be amended into bills they have already introduced.

Swenson said $13 million of the $65 million will go toward lowering property taxes in 50 of California's 69 community college districts.

Sidney W. Brossman, chancellor of the California Community Colleges, said the property tax reduction is similar to that achieved in the tax reform bill pushed through the Legislature last year by Reagan and Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti, D-Van Nuys.

The proposed legislation will contain a "guaranteed revenue base" of state and local funds which will be adjusted annually, based on an index of costs and inflation factors put together by the Reagan's Department of Finance and the colleges, Swenson said.

He said the current $125 in state aid per year for nonresident or foreign students would be eliminated but districts will be permitted to add it to the tuition fees already charged such students.

Derailment Halts Santa Fe Freight

MADERA (UPI) — Eighteen cars tumbled off the tracks halting a northbound Santa Fe freight train about 10 miles north of here early today.

A spokesman for the Santa Fe said there were no injuries. The engines and caboose remained on the tracks.

Acrobat Injured Slightly In Fall

NEW YORK (UPI) — A circus acrobat billed as "The Great Atlas" fell approximately 55 feet from near the ceiling of Madison Square Garden Tuesday night when a rope used in his act malfunctioned.

The performer with the Ringling Brothers, Barnum and Bailey Circus was not seriously injured.

Atlas' act called for him to fall from a platform but to stop short of hitting the ground by a rope tied to his wrist. The act apparently worked well enough to break the fall and keep Atlas from being seriously injured.

The next act came on and the acrobat was carried off in a stretcher.

45 Cars Are Expected In Weekend Road Rally

More than 45 cars are expected to take part in the Exploring Grand National Safe Driving Road Rally on Saturday.

The rally, open to all drivers under 21, will start at Marin Bay Lincoln-Mercury on Francisco Boulevard, San Rafael. It will cover a 250-mile course through Marin and Sonoma counties, ending at the Veteran of Foreign Wars in San Anselmo. A barbecue dinner and awards program will conclude the rally.

All competitors in the race on Saturday must attend the rally school at 7:30 p.m., Thursday at Henry C. Hall School in Larkspur.

There is an entry fee, which includes the dinner in the evening. Explorer Scouts and National Sports Car Rally Association are sponsoring the rally.

Awards will be given on the basis of safe driving, time and tallied scores. All cars will be inspected at Marin Bay Lincoln-Mercury car sales before they can enter the competition.

Open House Is Sunday At Museum

Novato Federated Republican Women will mark the opening of the Novato Pre-History Museum at Miwok Park, 2100 Novato Boulevard, with a champagne reception from 3 to 5 p.m. Sunday.

The museum, owned by the City of Novato and operated by the Marin Museum Society, houses a collection of artifacts from the Miwok Indian Culture.

Coast Miwok Indian villages and camps were located throughout Marin County and the artifacts uncovered at various sites.

The museum also serves as an educational center for students of archeology, an educational resource for school children, and site of classes such as the one on basket weaving now being taught by a Pomo Indian.

The open house Sunday is to acquaint the community with the museum, its collection, displays, work and services, according to Ruth Pignaz, chairman of the event. Donations for the museum will be accepted at the open house, she said.

The museum is seeking materials connected with the coast Miwok Indians or early Marin, either for donation or loan, Mrs. Pignaz said.

The museum is open Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. and by special appointment.

Waterfront Project On Agenda

A $35 million development proposal for the A. G. Schoonmaker property on Sausalito's waterfront will go before the Sausalito Planning Commission in city hall tonight at 8 o'clock but chances are it won't be acted upon.

Asst. Planner Jerry Cormack said he is recommending the commission postpone consideration of the residential-commercial-recreational development until after the city's building moratorium expires June 30.

The moratorium was adopted in March 1972 and extended last month until July 1, the state's deadline for cities to submit open space elements to their general plans. It was enacted to give city officials time to revise the subdivision ordinance and prepare an open space plan.

Cormack said the 39.2-acre parcel falls within the moratorium, which includes all developments which may conflict with open space plans.

Action tonight could come, however, on the environmental impact report on the Schoonmaker project, but Cormack said he is recommending that consideration of the requested rezoning and planned unit development be put over.

Also on tonight's agenda is a request by the Charlie Noble Restaurant, 707 Bridgeway, for relief from a requirement that four off-street parking spaces be provided when the restaurant expands its seating by 15.

Myschool Sets Special Events

A spaghetti dinner and a "Mother's Day fun fair" have been scheduled as fund-raising events this month by Myschool, a day care center in Cotati which serves primarily student parents at Sonoma State College.

The dinner will be at 7 p.m. next Tuesday at the Inn of the Beginning in Cotati. Entertainment will include reading of poetry by local poets and country and western music by the Sonoma Mountain Make-Believe Band.

The fair will be from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. May 13 at the Cotati Plaza in the center of Cotati and will feature entertainment, music, puppets, crafts, a children's parade and a rummage and bake sale.

Cotati Tree Flap Enters Court Arena

A tree hassle in Cotati, one of the issues dividing three younger city councilmen from two older members, also has led to filing of misdemeanor violations against the little city's biggest developer.

Forhim Corp., builders of Holiday Park, Cotati's only large subdivision, has been ordered to appear in Santa Rosa Municipal Court today in connection with 10 counts of city ordinance violations.

The violations could lead to a maximum $5,000 fine and or 300 days in jail.

At issue is the cutting down of 38 Cottonwood trees in a condominium development.

The Cotati Planning Commission in April gave Forhim Corp. permission to remove sapling cottonwood trees to make room for carports. Later the city received complaints that mature trees were being destroyed as well as small ones.

Mayor Geoffrey Dunham, one of the three youth majority members on the city council, charged that when complaints were called into city hall, city Mgr. Paul W. Salfen promptly warned Forhim representatives.

This, Dunham claimed, gave the developer time to finish removing the trees before an official appeal could be filed.

On April 19 appeals were filed by Lee Gray and Robert Davis of the parks and recreation commission and City Atty. Jay Cantor was instructed to determine if Forhim Corp. had violated the city's tree ordinance.

The result was the complaint filed in court. The 10 counts charged indicate the cutting of the trees during each day of the appeal period allowed by the ordinance.

In the meantime, majority members of the council moved at the April 19 meeting to get rid of Salfen, excoriating him for his handling of the tree matter.

They voted to change an ordinance so that only a 3-to-2 vote would be needed to fire him. This ordinance change will come before the council again at a metting tomorrow night.

Orchestra Still Seeks Trip Funds

Two $500 donations have brought the youth chamber ensemble Orchestra Piccola within $4,000 of its $32,000 goal to finance its trip to the Festival of Two Worlds in Spoleto, Italy, this summer.

Donations were from the Independent-Journal and the Marin County Board of Supervisors. The figures were announced by the Marin Symphony Association.

Orchestra Piccola, a 27-member chamber ensemble of the Marin Youth Orchestra, is scheduled to leave for Spoleto June 17 for three appearances during the festival. The orchestra, conducted by Hugo Rinaldi of San Rafael, is the first amateur group ever to receive an invitation to the event.

Among businesses and organizations that have made contributions are Chevron Companies, Bechtel Corp., Ross Valley Savings, Bank of Marin, Kaufman's, Ernest Ongaro and Sons and the Rotary Clubs of Mill Valley, San Rafael, Terra Linda and San Anselmo.

The finance committee expects to raise the balance of funds during a concert by the orchestra from 4 p.m. to 7 p.m. Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Roth of Ross.

Benefit Concert Set May 13

Cellist Gabor Rejto and pianist Adolph Baller will do a concert to benefit a scholarship fund for young musicians at 7:30 p.m., May 13, in Angelico Hall at Dominican College in San Rafael.

The program will include Beethoven's "Sonata in F Major, Opus 5," and "Sonata in D Major, Opus 102," and works by Kodaly and Brahms.

The concert will support the Maurice Wilk Memorial Scholarship fund which aids Dominican students.

Rejto, who studied with Pablo Casals, is chairman of the string department at the University of Southern California. Baller, who traveled for 14 years as accompanist to Yehudi Menuhin, is now teaching at Dominican College, Stanford University and the San Francisco Conservatory of Music.

Child Support Plan Is Endorsed

Marin County supervisors yesterday approved the idea of making collection of child support payments entirely the responsibility of the district attorney's office, but delayed actually doing so until June budget hearings.

Dist. Atty. Bruce B. Bales said he would accept the responsibility only with increased staff.

The proposal was suggested by the county grand jury which agreed that Bales should be given "adequate staff" to locate and prosecute, if necessary, fathers who are failing to pay child support.

Currently, collection of child support payments is divided among four county agencies with the district attorney's office and the welfare department carrying the bulk of the load. Probation and the county clerk are involved to lesser degrees.

By consolidating in the district attorney's office, better overall coordination can be achieved — a major stumbling block in the present multidepartment operation, the grand jury said.

Under the proposal endorsed yesterday, the welfare department's three-member staff assigned to child support cases would be transferred to the district attorney's present six-member staff.

In addition, Bales has requaested three more positions, making a child support staff of 12.

Supervisors refused to go along with that portion of the proposal, saying they were not certain Bales's three additional positions are warranted. It was referred to County Administrator John F. Barrows for study.

The board's unanimous support was fueled by comments from William Knudson of the state Department of Welfare who said the state will reward Marin for making child support collections for welfare families on Aid to Families with Dependent Children.

The state's reward program is designed so the county can not only cover its costs of operating a child support office but also can make a profit.

Napa County, with a population half of Marin's, last year netted $99,000 under the state reward program, he said, adding collection of child support takes families off welfare.

Further, Knudson said, collecting for families not on welfare helps keep them off.

The Marin County Board of Supervisors Also:

HELIPORT — Rejected the county aviation commission's recommendation that the county work to locate a heliport at the proposed Golden Gate Bridge District ferry terminal in Larkspur. The commission was asked to look for another site. Local residents and the City of Larkspur were opposed.

SECURITY — Authorized Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere, Auditor-Controller Michael Mitchell and a member of the county counsel's staff to travel to Sacramento to complain of the state nonpayment of $283,000 in Civic Center security costs.

HOUSING — Postponed to May 8 action on a grand jury report on the county housing authority. The board said it wants a reaction from the housing authority board before referring the report to the federal department of housing and urban development.

MORATORIUM — Requested a staff report, including information from the county assessor, on the Marin Municipal Water District's ban on future water connections and the tax impact on the county. The staff report was urged by David G. Greenlee of the Marin Builders' Exchange.

JUNIPERS — Heard a request from Roumiguiere that the county ask the state to reimburse property owners whose Tam junipers are torn out by inspectors because of rust disease. The county's agricultural commissioner will be asked to report next week on halting the abatement of the plants.

MILK — Referred to the county's agricultural commission a request from Supervisor Gary T. Giacomini that the county support a hike in milk prices to offset an increase in the price of hay to dairy ranchers.

BOUNDARIES — Set May 8 for discussion of proposed boundary changes around Stinson Beach to the Golden Gate National Recreation Area. The changes are requested by a citizens' group to free funds for inclusion of Wolfback Ridge in Sausalito.

TRIP — Authorized Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. and Asst. County Counsel Richard V. Godino to travel to Washington D.C. to testify before congressional committees urging funding for the Golden Gate National Recreation Area.

ELECTION — Set June 12 for special elections in Marin. The City of Sausalito and the North Marin County Water District both requested the date.

WELFARE — Heard a report from Thomas F. Campanella, general relief hearing officer, that since February, 269 cases were heard. Some 192 were approved, 77 denied and 26 appealed to the board.

DIRECTORIES — Authorized $1,850 for changing 12 building directories in the Administration Building and Hall of Justice.

SUIT — Authorized the county counsel's office to defend the county in a $10 million suit against the county, Town of Corte Madera, state and Bay Conservation and Development Commission. The suit was filed by owners of the Heerdt Marsh in Corte Madera on grounds they have been unfairly denied use of their land.

AIRPORT — Approved a letter to the public utilities commission noting the county's interest in having Stol Air, a commercial airline, operate out of Gnoss Field.

Dismissal From Only One Post

Several lines of type dropped from a story appearing in yesterday's Independent-Journal yesterday distorted comments made by Marin City Council chairman Melvin Atkins to the Marin County Redevelopment Agency on Monday.

Atkins urged that Wallace K. Shepherd be dismissed from his post as executive director of the agency, and not his job as executive director of the Marin County Housing Authority as the story made it appear.

Lines deleted included a notation that Nesbit Crutchfield, also a Marin City Councilman, last week urged the housing authority to dismiss Shepherd as executive director of the authority.

Meetings This Month In Marin

Marin County Chamber of Commerce and Visitors Bureau announced that the following meetings are scheduled in Marin County this month by out-of-town groups:

Through May 11 — Standard Oil Co. at Tiburon Lodge.

Tomorrow through 11 — Holiday Magic at Holiday Inn, San Rafael.

May 9 through 12 — Eighth annual Pacific regional ballet festival '73 at Holiday Inn, 700 persons expected.

15,000 Dimes Reported Taken

OAKLAND (UPI) — A San Jose coin collector is missing 15,000 dimes, valued at $2,250.

Beaulieu, historian of the California State Numismatic Association, said the coins' value was due to their high silver content.

Mrs. Sessi Will Fill Nixon's Slot

Marie J. Sessi of Rafael Meadows, an unsuccessful candidate last month for the San Rafael Board of Education, was appointed yesterday to the Marin County Planning Commission. (Other supervisors stories, page 1.)

Mrs. Sessi, appointed from among eight applicants by Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere, is treasurer of the Las Gallinas Valley Master Plan Committee and a member of the Los Ranchitos Improvement Association.

She replaces Jack G. Nixon who stepped down last month after winning a seat on the San Rafael City Council.

She and her husband, Gimi, have six children and reside at 195 Circle Road.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Detroit automotive heiress Charlotte Ford, divorced wife of Greek shipping tycoon Stavros Niarchos, was married Tuesday to J. Anthony Forstmann, a partner in a New York investment firm.

Transit Board Delays Action On Fare Zones

The Marin County Transit District board deferred action yesterday on a proposal to create fare zones in Marin for local bus routes pending further study.

The fare zones had been suggested last month as a way of covering an expected $82,000 operating deficit next fiscal year and equalizing bus fares.

Currently, patrons pay 25 cents on any route, whether between two neighboring communities or all the way to West Marin.

Board members agreed with their staff that until more is known about route usage it would be best not to attempt to set up fare zones. They said, however, they will review the matter in January.

The Marin County Transit District board also:

BUDGET — Set July 3 for a public hearing on the district's proposed $654,307 budget for fiscal 1973-74. The bulk of budget funds are slated for intra-county bus service.

RAILROAD — Urged the Golden Gate Bridge District to expedite application for federal funds for acquisition of the Northwestern Pacific Railroad right-of-way between Larkspur and Sausalito.

CONTRACT — Rejected a $360,000 claim against the district from the Marin Transit Systems Inc., which maintains the district breached its contract with the firm when it withdrew a subsidy this year.

Gail Fisher Wed

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Actress Gail Fisher, who plays the secretary on the popular "Mannix" detective TV series, was married to writer Robert A. Walker in Tijuana, Mexico, three weeks ago.

Syndicate Buys First School Quake Bonds

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — State Treasurer Ivy Baker Priest Tuesday sold $25 million in school earthquake bonds to a banking syndicate at an average net interest rate of 4.6 per cent.

The bonds were the first to be sold out of a total of $350 million approved by voters last year to finance repair of school buildings to make them earthquake-safe.

Mrs. Priest said the bonds were sold to a syndicate made up of First National City Bank of New York, United California Bank, Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. of New York and Salomon Brothers and Associates of New York.

More than 115 school districts in 43 counties have filed applications for school earthquake construction funds, Mrs. Priest said. Allocation of funds, she said, will be made to districts on a formula-matching basis as districts follow up their applications with construction plans and bids.

Connection Fees Hiked For Water

The North Marin Water District, seeking revenue to finance capital improvements programs, last night boosted its connection fees and indicated water rates would be hiked, possibly 10 per cent next January. (Another North Marin water district story, page 1.)

The connection fee, $300 a dwelling unit, was raised to $400 immediately, to $500 by June 1, to $525 on Jan. 1, 1974, and $25 a year thereafter.

Dist. Mgr. John O. Nelson said that the district has three ways to raise revenue, connection fees, water rates and property tax and that he had eliminated raising the tax rate from consideration.

The intent of raising the connection fee is to have new growth pay its share of the capital improvements, Nelson said.

Under this principle, the district would be justified in hiking the connection fees by $445, he said. Directors agreed it wouldn't be fair to enact such a steep hike immediately and compromised for increases with a longer period.

Spokesmen for persons with connection agreements pending before the board last night requested agreements under the old fee schedule.

David L. Greenlee, manager of Marin Builders Exchange, reminded board members that fee increase would be passed on to the home buyer and cost him more than a water rate increase.

Robert Burke, president of the San Marin Improvement Association, said it has been "obvious for some time the new construction hasn't been carrying near its fair share" of capital improvements.

Directors agreed that a public hearing will be held before water rates are increased. Nelson estimated the water bill for an average home in Novato is about $84 a year.

Park Official's Wife Is Killed

YOSEMITE (UPI) — The body of the wife of the assistant superintendent of Yosemite National Park was found Tuesday in a pool at the base of Vernal Falls.

Mrs. Leah Good, 49, had disappeared the day before after leaving her home on a hike to hunt spring wild flowers on the Mist Trail near the 317- foot high falls, said rangers.

John Good, her husband, said she had left a note saying she was making the hike alone.

After rangers and volunteers conducted an all night search unsuccessfully, visitors spotted the body.

Search For Lost Teen Fruitless

Petaluma police yesterday unsuccessfully searched the river area of the city by boat and helicopter for a 16-year-old high school boy who mysteriously disappeared April 23.

Young McKernan was last seen about 10 a.m. April 23, when he left the family home at 1621 Weaverly Drive to go to a Petaluma market to pay a bill for his mother, Mrs. Francis McKernan.

Both the mother and the youth's sister, Mrs. Bonnie Jerozal of Napa, have told police they know no reason why he would run away.

Young McKernan's unlocked bicycle was found at the Petaluma library about three hours after his disappearance. His family said "he never left it unlocked."

The youth was described as 5 feet, 9 inches tall, weighing about 125 pounds. He has moderately long brown hair and was believed wearing a white pinstriped shirt and gray pants when he disappeared.

RECOVERING FROM SURGERY

An ancient bay tree exposes a freshly treated wound to filtered sunlight on the Indian Valley Colleges site in Ignacio yesterday, unaware that soon it will overlook the bookstore and interim library of the Marin Community College District's new North Marin campus. The district engaged J and B Tree Service of Woodacre to doctor 200 oaks and laurels in the beautiful valley. The experts did root pruning and aerating, topping and pruning. This laurel had a low limb amputated so it wouldn't be bruised by construction equipment, and the scar sealed with tree paint so it wouldn't bleed sap. Construction of the roads and parking lots starts in June.

Musicians Plead Innocent In Dope

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Four rock musicians, two of them from Marin, have pleaded innocent to charges arising from seizure of 24 ounces of cocaine said by authorities to have a street value of $250,000.

The four — Larry K. Brown, 30, and Anthony L. Cruse, 25, both of Kentfield; Michael John McMahon, 26, of British Columbia, and Peter Ferst, 31, of San Francisco — were arrested April 10 in both Marin and San Francisco after an agent negotiated sale of the cocaine.

All are accused of conspiracy, with McMahon and Ferst also charged with distributing the drug and Brown and Cruse with possessing it. The four pleaded Monday before U.S. District Court Judge Alfonso J. Zirpoli, and the next court appearance was set for May 22.

896 Fire Deaths Recorded In 1972

LONDON (AP) — Fire claimed a record 896 lives throughout Britain and Northern Ireland during 1972, the Fire Research Station announced.

The figure exceeded the previous record of 865 dead in 1968 and was at least 100 above the average for the past four years.

Driver Injured As Car Hits Parked Auto

A Corte Madera woman was hospitalized with injuries suffered yesterday when her car hit a parked car and bicycle, San Rafael police reported.

Mary Dunford Reid, 27, of 303 Prince Royal Drive, was reported in satisfactory condition today at Marin General Hospital with head injuries.

According to police, she was northbound on Lincoln Avenue about 11:30 a.m. when her car hit the rear of a parked car belonging to Kevin Scott Ancic, 21, of 106 Union Street, knocking it onto the sidewalk where it hit a bicycle belonging to Dee Brunal of 106 Union Street.

Year-Round School Program Is Approved

A year-round program for children in the John Reed and Waldo Rohnert Schools in Rohnert Park was approved last night by the Cotati-Rohnert Park School District board, despite opposition by many parents.

Two trustees, Andrew J. Camozzi and Gloria A. Garrett, voted against the so-called "45-15" plan, but the other three voted for it.

The new program will start for kindergarten-through-sixth grade pupils on July 9, according to board secretary Miriam Horne.

Children will attend school for 45-day periods followed by 15 days vacation throughout the year.

This is the district's first venture into year-round use of schools, an effort to cope with swelling enrollment in Rohnert Park.

Overall, however, the district's enrollment dropped by four pupils to 1,992, Dist. Supt. James H. Davidson told the board last night.

The board voted to abandon a long-time policy of naming schools after "deceased historical personages."

Residents of the district will be asked for suggestions for a name for a new school in the new Holiday Park subdivision, Mrs. Horne said. The board placed no limitation on the type of name.

101 Projects Will Alter Traffic

Projects in progress on Highway 101 which will alter traffic patterns or affect the flow of traffic tomorrow were announced today by the State Division of Highways.

Sections of freeway involved are:

1. Southbound, traffic will be permitted to pass through work area at southbound off-ramp to Shoreline Highway during paving at various times between 8 a.m. and 3:30 p.m.

2. Northbound between foot of Waldo Grade and south end of Richardson Bay Bridge, traffic will be routed into two lanes between noon and 3:30 p.m. during paving.

Mother In Guilty Plea On Aid

A Marin City woman, who received public aid for her seven children while her husband was working full time, has pleaded guilty in Marin Municipal Court to a felony charge of welfare fraud.

The guilty plea by Marie Coleman before Judge Peter Allen Smith depended on a promise that she would receive jail time only if a probation report recommended it. Sentencing was set for May 24 in Superior Court.

The 36-year-old housewife began receiving $216 in aid to families with dependent children in August 1969 because her husband, a construction worker had moved out of the home, according to Deputy Dist. Atty. Milton M. Hyams.

However, she failed to tell authorities he returned in May of 1970. She is charged with improperly receiving $4,187.50 welfare between November 1970 and January 1972.

Aid was finally cut off last year when a social worker became suspicious. A day after the worker went to the Coleman home and saw a man driving up, Mrs. Coleman tried to have the welfare payments stopped, Hyams said.

Jail Term Set For Auto Theft

An ex-convict from Healdsburg has been ordered to spend nine months in jail for auto theft.

In addition to the jail sentence Monday, Judge David Menary of Marin Superior Court gave Robert Hale Herbst, 29, three years of probation.

Herbst was arrested Feb. 1 by a San Rafael policeman, who saw him pouring oil into the engine of an auto on Fifth Avenue and stopped to help. A computer check showed the car was stolen, police said.

With prior arrests for burglary and auto theft and a prison term for concealing stolen property, "Mr. Herbst has certainly shown he is incapable of functioning at liberty in the community, either on parole or probation," Probation Officer Jesse W. Johnson told the judge.

Twister Takes Lives Of Two

KAHOKA, Mo. (UPI) — A tornado struck this northeastern Missouri town late Tuesday, killing two persons and injuring several other persons, state police reported.

"We have at least two persons killed, a 15-month-old boy and a 50-year-old woman. Several were hurt, but we don't know how many yet," said Highway Patrolman Donald Alvord.

He said the twister hit about 9 p.m. in the small town just south of the Iowa border and west of the Illinois border.

Bill Would Legalize Home Grown 'Grass'

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Marijuana smokers could grow their own in backyard "victory gardens" and legally use the crop under legislation approved by an Assembly committee and sent to the house floor.

Californians overwhelmingly rejected an identical ballot initiative, Prop. 19, by a 2 to 1 margin last November.

It was the first time a bill to legalize marijuana smoking has reached the floor of either legislative house.

With no votes to spare, the Assembly Criminal Justice Committee Tuesday voted 4 to 2 for the bill (AB376) by Assemblyman Henry A. Waxman, D-Los Angeles.

It would legalize private use, possession and cultivation. But selling the drug still would be illegal.

The committee also sent to the floor a much milder bill (AB449), by Assemblyman Alan Sieroty, D-Beverly Hills, to remove all felony penalties for marijuana possession. Convictions would be treated as misdemeanors. The vote was 7 to 0.

Gov. Ronald Reagan vetoed an identical bill last year.

Another measure legalizing marijuana smoking but not cultivation was rejected on a 3 to 3 vote. That bill, also by Waxman, was patterned after recommendations of President Nixon's National Commission on Marijuana and Drug Abuse.

The deciding "swing" vote for the cultivation bill was cast by a Republican, Assemblyman Kenneth L. Maddy of Fresno. All other yes votes were cast by Democrats.

Maddy told a newsman he was not commmitted to voting for the bill on the floor but believed it should be fully debated there. He also reported being impressed by arguments that home cultivation would head off commercialization of the drug.

Dr. Leo Hollister, medical investigator at the Veterans Administration hospital in Palo Alto, said Madison Avenue-style promotion of marijuana could be avoided by allowing smokers to grow their own in "victory gardens."

Robert Ashford, state coordinator of the rejected ballot initiative, said "by allowing people to grow their own we can deprive marijuana dealers of large numbers of their best customers..

"People will grow their own marijuana," Ashford continued, "and the market price will adily drop. Complicated, expensive airplane and boat smuggling operations will become less feasible and less profitable."

But Carl W. Anderson, lobbyist for the California Peace Officers Association, countered: "In the process of returning young Americans to the farm you're going to have a lot of problems."

He also said legalizing marijuana smoking would "stimulate the underworld into home delivery."

NOT WORRIED — Julie Nixon Eisenhower predicted Tuesday that the Watergate affair will not swamp the Republican party, telling reporters she believes "the GOP and the rest of the nation will realize that this was just seven men who made a mistake and others made a mistake trying to cover it up.

Scholarship Awarded To Marin Youth

William Louis Larkins Jr., a senior at Marin Catholic High School, last night was awarded a $4,000 four-year college scholarship by Pacific Gas and Electric Co.

Larkins, who lives at 222 Evergreen Drive, Kentfield, was one of 12 Northern and Central California high school seniors to win the scholarships for which 3,500 students were competing on the basis of scholastic ability alone.

Two other scholarships were awarded by the company for need as well as ability and two were awarded to outstanding children of company employees.

The awards were presented at a banquet in San Francisco, at which 32 runners-up in the competition received shares of common stock. These include Carlita Kay Horst, a senior at Petaluma High School.

Water Is Off At Watergate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Apartment dwellers in one section of the Watergate complex —which gained notoriety by the political bugging case — were bugged by something else Tuesday: lack of water.

Tenants in the plush Watergate South building were without water for nine hours while workmen repaired a break in a water main.

A Housing Victory For Family

Overriding the objections of its staff, the Marin County Housing Authority board last night authorized a young San Rafael family to place its Woodland Avenue apartment on the leased housing program.

Ed Emond and his family claim to have been accepted for the program only to be told, two weeks after moving into the apartment, that they did not qualify because they exceeded a 20 per cent limit on the number of subsidized units allowed in any one apartment house.

Emond appealed to the Marin County Human Rights Department, claiming he had been treated unfairly by the housing authority staff.

The housing authority staff countered that since no lease had ever been signed, and no written authorization given, Emonds was out of luck and could not receive the $124 subsidy on the $160 per month apartment.

The housing authority board last week heard the appeal but delayed action until its staff could meet with Emonds and human rights officials to iron out the differences.

That meeting took place yesterday, and last night Robert Lee, who heads the leased housing program, said he could not change his recommendation, even though the City of San Rafael had waived its 20 per cent limitation.

Executive Director Wallace K. Shepherd told the board the staff's negative recommendation "doesn't mean we can't feel for Mr. Emonds but we have to stick by the rules."

Board member Philip S. Ehrlich Jr. responded that no rule was being violated if the city was willing to waive the 20 per cent limitation in this case.

Shepherd responded that "Emonds is not the issue. . .It's the (20 per cent) policy and whether we go along with an exception" for one person and not another.

"What do we tell those people we turned away because of the 20 per cent limitation?" asked George Brady, Shepherd's assistant.

"If this passes, I will wager that the repercussions from Marin City will be that Emonds was accepted because of the pigmentation of his skin," he said, referring to the fact that Emond is white.

"We can't allow special treatment because of his unwarranted sponsorship by the human rights department," Shepherd said, adding Emonds showed a "lack of human values" by jumping the waiting list for housing.

Ehrlich and board member Harold A. Strauss responded that such was not the case since Emonds had found the apartment and brought it into the leased housing program under established procedure.

The waiting list is for those who have not found their own apartments or homes acceptable to the program, they said.

Strauss, who attended yesterday's staff meeting with Emonds, said he was surprised many of the arguments had not been expressed during that meeting.

Gerald J. Hood, executive director of the human rights department, said the important thing was "finding housing for the Emond family."

"An honest error has been committed and there's a chance to correct it," he said.

Strauss agreed saying he didn't know who to blame for the foulup but that it wasn't important.

His motion to approve the Emond application drew support from Ehrlich and James G. McDonald and opposition from Arthur Miller Jr., who said rules should be followed. Irving Perlman abstained from voting.

Zeppo Divorced

PALM SPRINGS (UPI) — Zeppo Marx, youngest member of the four Marx Brothers comedy team, was divorced Tuesday by his wife of 14 years, Barbara Marx.

POTTERY — Helen Michel of the Lawrence Berkeley Laboratory at 4 p.m. next Monday in Room 108 of Darwin Hall of Sonoma State College will describe how nuclear devices can be used to determine where ancient pottery was made.

Remodeling Of Office Is Paid Off

The Marin County Housing Authority board last night approved a $750 final payment to one board member's architectural firm for remodeling of the agency's new offices at Northgate Industrial Park.

James G. McDonald, a partner in the San Anselmo firm of Wagstaff and McDonald which did the work, abstained from voting.

In answer to questions McDonald said the total contract was for "about $1,600 or $1,700" and saw no impropriety about it. He added that the work had been done for a lower than usual price.

In other action last night, the board requested its staff to develop cost figures on remodeling four Marin City public housing units at a time as opposed to 12.

The Marin County Grand Jury recommended four at a time thus freeing eight for occupancy but Executive Director Wallace K. Shepherd said the work could be done cheaper if contractors were given 12 at a time.

Some 150 units in the high rise apartment buildings are slated to be remodeled with $525,000 in federal funds. The architect has yet to be hired.

The board also signed a $7,000 agreement with the Marin County sheriff's office for special protection at the agency's Marin City office. Residents said the special deputy should be assigned to patrol the streets.

House Bill Seeks Ash Confirmation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House has voted 229 to 171 to make the present director of the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) and his deputy subject to Senate confirmation.

Republicans Tuesday lost in an attempt to have Senate confirmation apply only to future holders of the two offices but not the present director, Roy L. Ash, or his deputy, Frederic V. Malek.

The House measure would abolish the jobs of Ash and Malek and then immediately reestablish them subject to confirmation. The Senate had passed a milder version 63 to 17 in February.

Grant For TV Dramatic Series

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Exxon Corp. and the Corporation for Public Broadcasting Tuesday announced a combined grant of $2 million to WNET-TV for the production of a major drama series, "Theater in America."

The Exxon grant of $1 million is the largest sum ever given to educational television by a corporation for a single season's domestic production.

"Theater in America" will include 18 to 20 dramas to be broadcast nationally. About a dozen of these will be based on regional theater groups.

Proponents Of Guns To Meet Tomorrow

DAYLIGHT SAVING COMES LATE

City workers struggle inside one face of the Cincinnati City Hall clock tower, to free the hour hand from its shaft so it can be moved ahead one hour for Eastern Daylight Saving Time. Judicious use of oil and heavy wrenches did the job, but adjusting all four faces of the clock overlooking downtown Cincinnati was an all-day job Monday.

Byrd Calls On Nixon To Name FBI Chief

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The FBI officially today ignored the first anniversary of the death of J. Edgar Hoover, but Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., took the occasion to urge President Nixon to name a permanent successor to the late FBI director.

Bureau morale has hit a low ebb since Hoover's death with employes now serving under their second temporary director. The monthly FBI Law Enforcement Bulletin, which Hoover founded, ignored in its May issue the first anniversary of his death and no official tributes were planned.

Byrd, however, called for a permanent director in a Senate speech prepared less than a week after Nixon appointed William D. Ruckelshaus to succeed L. Patrick Gray as acting director.

"I earnestly hope that the President will act very quickly to name a non-partisan, highly qualified director before the serious damage that has already been done to the bureau in the last year becomes irreparable," said Byrd.

Gray resigned after it was disclosed he burned records belonging to one of the Watergate conspirators and Ruckelshaus made it clear he did not want to be the permanent director. Earlier, Nixon had withdrawn his nomination of Gray to be the permanent director after Gray ran into Senate opposition based on his part in the Watergate investigation.

Ruckleshaus met with 58 of the 59 special agents in charge of FBI bureaus over the nation Wednesday and expressed sympathy for those agents who telegraphed Nixon last week urging that he choose an FBI career man, not an outsider, to replace Hoover.

"There are men in this country, both inside and outside the bureau, who have a broad background in law enforcement and the investigative process," he said. "And it is from those ranks that a new directtor should be named. I agree with that concept and I assure you that the President recognizes that too.

"We've had so much trouble since Mr. Hoover died, we can't afford to live in the past," said one veteran FBI agent in noting that there was no observance of the day of Hoover's death. "But there's no question that this mess over finding a leader would sadden him."

As another FBI observer remarked, part of the problem might be Hoover himself because "Hoover was the FBI." He trained no one to succeed him and his death early on the morning of May 2, 1972, ended an FBI career that began in 1917 when he became a Justice Department Law clerk. He became FBI director seven years later and remained in the post the rest of his life.

Gray, who took over as acting director the day after Hoover's death, was credited with many improvements. He eased personal regulations governing agents, lightened their work load and established better liaison between field offices and the Washington headquarters.

Girl's Body Is Found Near Chico Campus

CHICO (AP) — Chico State University students were being questioned today in the rape-murder of an 18-year-old girl whose partially clad body was found in an orchard, Butte County sheriff's officers reported.

The victim, Patricia Cathy Farish of nearby Durham, was found yesterday morning about 100 yards from the Tau Gamma Theta fraternity house.

Investigators said she was one of an estimated 1,700 to 2,200 persons who attended a beer party that night at the fraternity house and surrounding orchard. It was one of the opening events of the school's annual Pioneer Week spring festival.

The body was found by James Brashier, a nearby resident. His wife told investigators she had heard what sounded like screaming about 3:30 a.m. Tuesday.

An autopsy showed that she had been raped and strangled, the sheriff's office said.

The girl was not a student at the college, authorities said. They added that their preliminary investigation indicated she was in the process of obtaining a divorce.

University president Stanford Cazier banned similar beer parties, called "open keggers," planned for Pioneer Week.

The girl's death was the fourth homicide reported in Chico in four days.

On Saturday, an elderly couple was found dead in their home. Officers said they had apparently been killed around April 5. They said Myron Allen, the husband, investigators said was killed with a blunt instrument. The cause of death of his wife Emma was not immediately determined. Their expensive imported car was missing.

Shooting Leads To Jail Order

A 28-year-old Mill Valley man was sentenced yesterday to 90 days in jail on a reduced misdemeanor charge of using a gun during a quarrel.

In sentencing Ephorn Freeman Jr., Judge Henry J. Broderick of Marin Superior Court accepted an arrangement he voided last month, when he reinstated the original charge of assault with a deadly weapon, a felony, and ordered a trial because attorney James Murray began arguing his client's innocence.

However, Freeman, a self-employed vitamin salesman, again admitted yesterday the misdemeanor allegation stemming from a quarrel Nov. 17 in Lytton Square in Mill Valley that ended when Charles Dobson of Mill Valley was wounded.

Auto Crash Is Fatal To Sailor, 20

A 19-year-old sailor from Skaggs Island diedearly today in a Petaluma hospital of massive injuries suffered when his car ran off Lakeville Road in Southern Sonoma County some time before 3 a.m.

The dead youth was identified as Delvin Glair Mitchel son of Anna Gelkreath of Santa Rosa.

California Highway Patrol officers said Mitchel may have dozed off while driving south on Lakeville Road, drifted to the right near Canon Lane, overcorrected and ran off the left side of the road. His small car overturned.

He was admitted to the intensive care unit at Hillcrest Hospital at 3:15 and died about 6 a.m.

Funeral arrangements were pending today at Eggen and Lance Mortuary in Santa Rosa.

The event will be followed by a tour of the Robson mansion and carriage house, according to Gary S. Howell, parks director.

FARMER'S FLOOD BUGGY

A farmer in St. Mary's, Mo., isn't going to be using his tractor for farming for awhile, because of heavy flooding, but that doesn't keep him from using it for transportation through the deep waters. Severe flooding has hit seven Mississippi River basin states and worse flooding is expected because of heavy rains in the upper Mississippi Valley.

Behr Joins Hospital Closing Probe Panel

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael, has been appointed to a committee charged with investigating the state administration's proposed phaseout of hospital services.

The select committee created by the Senate Rules Committee is headed by Sen. Alfred E. Alquist, D-San Jose, and includes Senators Alan Short, D-Stockton; Robert Lagomarsino, R-Santa Barbara; George Deukmejian, R-Los Angeles; Randolph Collier, D-Del Norte, and Howard Way, R-Fresno.

The committee, given subpoena power and authorized to hire what staff if needs, will look into complaints that state mental hospitals are set for closing before adequate care is arranged in local communities.

The committee will also investigate complaints of conflict of interest on the part of consultants who prepared a report on the state mental health program and will look into reports that mentally ill persons involved in crime end up in jail rather than in suitable treatment facilities.

Mayor Alioto's Son Takes Wife

RENO (UPI) — Thomas Alioto, 26, the astrologer son of San Francisco Mayor Joseph L. Alioto, has wed a young New Orleans woman.

It was disclosed Tuesday that Alioto married Nelda J. Jones, a 20-year-old black, two weeks ago. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Jones of New Orleans.

Records indicated the couple filed for a marriage license April 14 at the Washoe County Clerk's office and were wed the following day.

College Housing Need Is 'Acute'

An acute shortage of housing for students at College of Marin was reported yesterday by Julie Simpson, director of the student government's housing referral service.

Miss Simpson, a prenursing student, estimated that about one third of the student body is in need of housing at one time or another during the college year, and many are presently forced to "camp out" in vans.

She asked that landlords with quarters available for students list them with the service at the college and said the preference as to kind of tenant will be respected.

Most needed, according to Miss Simpson, are rooms renting for no more than $100 a month.

84 Strep Cases Reported Last Week

Eighty-four cases of streptococcus infection were reported last week in Marin County, making it the most prevalent communicable disease reported according to Dr. Carolyn B. Albrecht, Marin County health officer.

Eighteen cases of gonorrhea were reported; three of mumps; two each of syphillis and infectious hepatitis and one each of tuberculosis and salmonella.

Help Advances For Runaways

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate juvenile delinquency subcommittee Tuesday unanimously approved a bill to build temporary shelters and provide counseling for youngsters who run away from home.

The measure, sponsored by Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., subcommittee chairman, passed the Senate late last year but was never acted upon by the House.

The bill would authorize $10 million a year to finance houses to provide shelter, food and counseling for the estimated one million young Americans who run away from home every year.

FARMER'S FLOOD BUGGY

A farmer in St. Mary's, Mo., isn't going to be using his tractor for farming for awhile, because of heavy flooding, but that doesn't keep him from using it for transportation through the deep waters. Severe flooding has hit seven Mississippi River basin states and worse flooding is expected because of heavy rains in the upper Mississippi Valley.

Behr Joins Hospital Closing Probe Panel

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael, has been appointed to a committee charged with investigating the state administration's proposed phaseout of hospital services.

The select committee created by the Senate Rules Committee is headed by Sen. Alfred E. Alquist, D-San Jose, and includes Senators Alan Short, D-Stockton; Robert Lagomarsino, R-Santa Barbara; George Deukmejian, R-Los Angeles; Randolph Collier, D-Del Norte, and Howard Way, R-Fresno.

The committee, given subpoena power and authorized to hire what staff if needs, will look into complaints that state mental hospitals are set for closing before adequate care is arranged in local communities.

The committee will also investigate complaints of conflict of interest on the part of consultants who prepared a report on the state mental health program and will look into reports that mentally ill persons involved in crime end up in jail rather than in suitable treatment facilities.

GRECIAN FESTIVAL

Variety Of Foods Will Be Offered

"Flavor of Greece" is the theme for the second annual Grecian festival, which will be held Saturday and Sunday at the Marin Veterans Memorial Building and on the adjoining fairgrounds.

Those who attend the festival to eat will find a variety of flavors in Grecian foods prepared by the women of the Greek Orthodox Church and served both in the taverna, a sidewalk cafe, and the kaffenion, a coffee shop.

The women have prepared mousaka, egg plant and beef pie; tiropetes, pastry and feta cheese rolls; dolmathes, stuffed grape leaves with rice; spanakopita, a cheese and spinach dish; pilaf; souvalakia, barbecued beef on a skewer; baklava, layered pastry with honey and nuts; diples, deep fried pastry covered with honey and nuts; koulourakia, butter cookies; daridopita, spicy nut cake; kourambiethes, butter cookies showered with powdered sugar; and loukomades, deep fried honey and nut balls.

Recipes for the dishes are being compiled into a cookbook, which will be available later in the year. Included in the book will be Mrs. Chris Christo's mousaka and Mrs. Gus Stathis' dolmades. Mrs. Christo and Mrs. Stathis are both San Rafael residents.

MOUSAKA

4 large egg plants
Olive oil (for brushing eggplant)
3½ to 4 lb. ground beef
2 large onions-chopped
1 tsp. salt
½ tsp pepper
½ tsp. garlic powder

1 can whole tomatoes (16 oz)
1 can tomato sauce (8 oz)
½ tsp. oregano
1 tsp. salt
½ tsp. pepper
grated cheese
1 cup chopped parsley

¼ lb. butter
¾ cup flour
1 quart milk
1 tsp. salt (heaping)
white pepper
6 eggs

Add one-half teaspoon garlic powder, one-half teaspoon pepper, one teaspoon salt to ground meat. Brown until partially cooked, add onions to meat and continue browning.

In large sauce pan combine tomatoes and tomato sauce. Crush the whole tomatoes, add one-half teaspoon oregano, one teaspoon salt, one-half teaspoon pepper and one cup parsley.

Peel and slice egg plant length-wise, one-fourth inch thick. Brush both sides with oil and season lightly with salt and pepper. Broil on both sides til just golden brown.

Using pan approximately 17 x 12 x 2, put a layer of eggplant on bottom of pan, slightly overlapping each slice. Sprinkle evenly with grated cheese. Next add half of meat sauce on top of egg plant. Repeat ending with egg plant on top. Set aside.

In saucepan, melt one-fourth pound butter, add one teaspoon salt, a few dashes white pepper. Add three-fourths cup flour, stir and lightly brown. Slowly add one quart milk, stirring constantly. Cook until very thick.

Beat six eggs very well. Add a little cream sauce to eggs, then add eggs back into sauce and mix well. Pour about half of sauce evenly over casserole. Bake 10 minutes at 350 degrees.

Remove pan and add rest of cream sauce evenly over casserole. Sprinkle generously with cheese. Bake 30-40 min. until lightly brown.

DOLMADES

1 lb. ground round
1 big yellow onion — chopped fine
⅓ bunch of parsley, mint and dill
1 egg
⅔ cup of rice
Salt, pepper and ½ cup of olive oil.
1 jar grape leaves (12 oz)
Brown onion with olive oil.

Mix ground round, egg, rice and the greens.

Add the already brown onion and enough water til mixture is very moist.

Blanch grape leaves, remove long stem on leaves and lay them but one at a time with stem side up.

Place approximately 1 teaspoon of meat mixture (more or less, depending on size of grape leaf) on leaf, closest to stem.

Turn the edges of the leaf up over meat and roll leaf toward the points.

Add 2 cups water, sprinkle salt and pepper on top.

For a Quick Sauce

Beat yolks of two eggs and whites separately.

Heat the dolmathes and its juice. Have hot juice to add to egg mixture.

Fold egg whites into yolk mixture, add hot juice slowly. A little flour may be added to thicken. About two tablespoons.

Add juice of one or two lemons to juice, as sourness required.

Fold in some sour cream for added flavor and texture.

This is best made over double boiler.

Also preparing the delicacies will be Mmes. James George and James Cordello of Sonoma, Mrs. James Adams, Mrs. Markos Perivolaris of Novato and Mrs. Michael Balopoulos of San Anselmo.

Meatless Dish List Expanded

One more meatless meal to add to the family repertory is a tuna-mushroom ring, suggested by Peggy Hopkins, Pacific Gas and Electric Co. home economist in San Rafael.

It is served with a spinach sauce for added flavor as well as nutrition.

She also suggests a low calorie tapioca pudding to complete the low cost meal.

TUNA-MUSHROOM RING

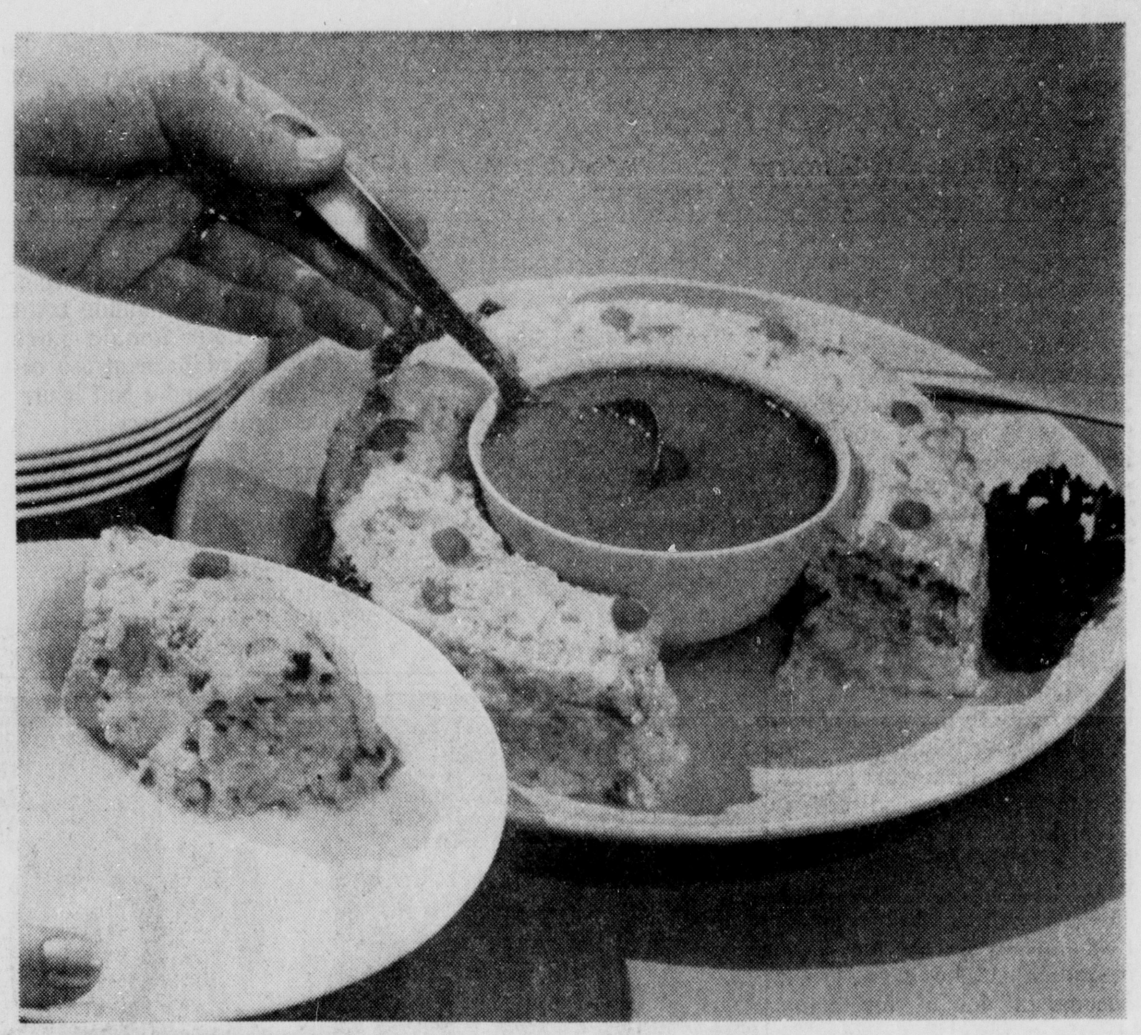
1 7-ounce can chunk-style tuna, drained
1 10½-ounce can cream of mushroom soup
2 eggs, beaten
2 cups cooked rice
1 cup milk
1 3-ounce can chopped mushrooms (⅔ cup)
1 tablespoon chopped pimiento
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
1 tablespoon grated onion
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper

Rinse tuna; drain well then break apart; set aside. Place soup in bowl and stir to make smooth.Blend in eggs. Stir in tuna, rice, milk, and remaining ingredients, mixing well. Turn into well greased one-and-a-half-quart ring mold. Set in pan of water and bake in 325-degree preheated oven for one hour. Remove from oven; let stand five minutes; turn out on heated platter. Fill center with buttered vegetable or a cream sauce such as cheese, mushrooms or Spinach Sauce (recipe below). Makes six servings. Approximate cost: 20 cents per serving.

SPINACH SAUCE

1 10-ounce package frozen chopped spinach, thawed
1 cup milk
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 tablespoon minced onion
2 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon seasoned salt
Dash Tabasco
2 teaspoons lemon juice

Place thawed spinach and milk in blender bowl; blend until spinach is pureed. Set aside. Melt butter in saucepan; add onion and saute until it is limp. Stir in flour; let simmer for two minutes. Blend in milk-spinach mixture and cook, stirring, until mixture boils. Add salt, Tabasco and lemon juice. Serve hot over Tuna-Mushroom Ring. Makes two cups; six servings. Approximately 5 cents per serving.



TUNA MUSHROOM ring is a low cost meatless meal and can be combined with a spinach sauce or a cream or cheese sauce for variation.

TAPIOCA IS an old favorite among desserts. This version of the pudding has only 106 calories per serving and is easy to make.

LOW CARLORIE TAPIOCA PUDDING

½ cup instant non-fat milk
3 tablespoons quick cooking tapioca
4 tablespoons sugar
⅛ teaspoon salt
1¾ cups water
1 egg, separated
¾ teaspoon vanilla

Combine milk, tapioca, two tablespoons sugar and salt in saucepan, mixing well. Add enough water, stirring, to make medium thick paste. Stir in egg yolk. Blend in remaining water. Let stand five minutes.

Meanwhile, in small mixer bowl beat egg white until foamy; gradually beat in two tablespoons sugar. Continue beating until soft meringue; let stand with beaters in mixture to be used later.

Cook tapioca mixture over medium heat, stirring constantly, until it comes to a full rolling boil. Remove from heat. Start beating until evenly blended. Remove beaters and cool slightly: Stir in vanilla. Chill thoroughly.

Makes about three cups, or five servings. One hundred six calories per serving.

How To Cut Meat Costs Is Shared: A Flank Steak Roll

Merle Ellis was the guest on Diane MacMillan's "Kitchen Time in Marin" KTIM radio show yesterday, giving tips on how to save money by cutting up meat at home.

He shared a stuffed flank steak recipe with listeners and readers:

ROLL OF STUFFED FLANK STEAK

1 flank steak (as thick as you can find)
1 tablespoon olive oil
1 tablespoon butter
6 to 8 mushrooms, chopped
6 to 8 green onions, chopped
½ cup ham, diced (this can be left over, boiled ham, Canadian bacon)
1 or 2 Polish sausage, diced (this can also be a variety of other smoked sausages)
1 cup pine nuts (slivered almonds)
1 recipe Neva's Quick Pilaf (recipe below)
1 cup grated cheese (Gruyere, Swiss or Cheddar)
1 more tablespoon each, butter and olive oil
1 cup flour seasoned with salt, pepper and tarragon
1 10½ ounce can beef bouillon or 1½ cups beef stock
1 cup red wine

In a heavy skillet saute in butter and oil the mushrooms and onions until limp. Add ham, sausages, nuts and pilaf. Mix well and set aside. Butterfly the flank steak. Place flank steak on counter and with a sharp knife slice almost through lengthwise so that, when folded over, the steak is twice as large.

With a mallet, heavy frying pan or rolling pin pound the steak until as thin as possible. Liberally spread with grated cheese and cover with a layer of dressing. Save leftover stuffing or something else. Or stuff two flank steaks and freeze for future use.

Roll the stuffed flank steak like a jelly roll and secure with tooth picks and lace with string. Roll in seasoned flour and brown in oil and butter. Add beef stock and wine and simmer until tender, approximately two hours. Add more stock as needed.

To serve: slice and serve on warmed platter. Thicken sauce with a couple of teaspoons of arrowroot dissolved in an equal amount of water. Pour over slices. Serve with salad, French bread and hearty red wine.

NEVA'S QUICK PILAF

1 cup rice
2 tablespoons butter
½ package dry onion soup mix
2 cups water

Brown rice in butter and add onion soup mix.

Shake first to blend seasonings.) Add water, cover and simmer until moisture is absorbed, approximately 30 minutes.

Swedish Salad Is Good With Ham And Potatoes

This Swedish salad combines a variety of fruits and is a fine accompaniment to baked ham and scalloped potatoes dinner.

SWEDISH SALAD

A grand molded salad chockful of fruit.

1 can (1 pound and 4 ounces) crushed pineapple in heavy syrup
1 envelope unflavored gelatin
2 eggs
1½ teaspoons prepared yellow mustard
1½ teaspoons cider vinegar
⅛ teaspoon salt
½ cup heavy cream, whipped
½ cup diced celery
1 red Delicious apple, unpeeled and diced

Drain pineapple well; to the syrup add enough water to make one and one-fourth cups and pour into the top of a double boiler. Sprinkle gelatin over pineapple syrup and allow to stand five minutes to soften. Add eggs, mustard, vinegar and salt; beat until blended.

Cook over boiling water, stirring constantly, until gelatin dissolves and mixture thickens slightly — about five minutes. Chill until slightly thicker than unbeaten egg white. Fold in whipped cream.

Fold in drained crushed pineapple, celery and apple. Turn into one-half cup molds or custard cups. Chill until firm. Unmold and garnish with salad greens. Makes eight servings.

Liquor Amounts For Reception

Will you serve cocktails and mixed drinks at the reception after a champagne toast to the bride and groom?

Figure on 13 to 17 1½ to 2-ounce drinks from each fifth of liquor, or 16 to 21 drinks from each quart, says the Women's Division of Licensed Beverage Industries, Inc.

One hundred ice cubes, or an 8-10-ounce bag of commercially made ones, supplies enough cooling for 30 to 35 drinks. But a large block of ice chills punch best.

'Good Cheap Food' Book Just Too Late

Boycotting of red meats has caused the grocery meat departments to come up with substitutes to help fight the spiraling costs of meats.

Turkey provides excellent amounts of protein, vitamins, while keeping fats at a minimum. It is available in many convenient forms, from whole turkeys to parts. Some of the latest developments are turkey steaks, cutlets and ground turkey.

Today's modern broad-breasted turkey comes to the house ready to thaw and place in the oven for roasting.

The hottest turkey product as of right now... ground turkey. Ground, dark turkey is a most interesting ground meat that is being used in most dishes that call for other ground meat. Economically priced and high in protein and low in fat, it has become a delight for many homemakers, especially dieters.

Try one of these turkey recipes:

STUFFED TURKEY LOAF

2 pounds ground turkey
½ cup chopped onion
¾ cup chopped celery
¼ cup butter
3 cups prepared stuffing mix
2 eggs, slightly beaten
½ cup water
½ cup tomato juice

Brown onion and celery in butter in medium hot skillet. Combine with stuffing mix, eggs and water to make a stuffing. Add half of stuffing to ground turkey, mixing well. Pat out half of meat mixture in a two-quart loaf pan (4½ x 8½ x 3 inches), spread with stuffing, then top with remaining meat mixture. Pour tomato juice over loaf and bake at 350 degrees for one and a half hours. Makes eight to 10 servings.

TURKEY WINGS SWEET 'N SOUR

4 turkey wings (4-5 lbs.)
2 tablespoons cooking oil
½ cup water
2 tablespoons cornstarch
⅓ cup brown sugar
¼ cup vinegar
¼ cup soy sauce
¼ cup catsup or chili sauce
4 cups hot fluffy rice (1⅓ cups uncooked)

Disjoint turkey wings at both joints and set aside wing tips.* Wash, pat dry, and brown well in hot fat in skillet; drain off excess fat. Add water, lower heat and cover; simmer turkey wings for about two hours or until tender.

Remove wings from skillet and measure drippings; add enough turkey stock or water to make three-quarter cup and return to skillet. Combine cornstarch, brown sugar, vinegar, soy sauce, and catsup and blend until smooth. Stir into turkey drippings and cook and stir until thick and smooth. Add turkey wings and heat through. Serve wings on hot fluffy rice and pass additional sweet-sour sauce. Makes four servings.

(*Wing tips may be simmered for two hours in water barely to cover with pieces of carrot, celery, and onion, also with three or four peppercorns. Stock may be used for this or other recipes.)

SPANISH TURKEY LEGS

2 turkey drumsticks (about 3 lbs.)
2 tablespoons cooking oil
1 cup chopped celery
½ cup chopped onion
1 small green pepper, slivered
1 cup fresh chopped or canned tomatoes
1 cup water
1 bay leaf
1 teaspoon salt
6 stuffed olives, sliced (if desired)
2 cups dry noodles

Wash drumsticks and pat dry with paper towel. Brown on all sides in hot oil in heavy skillet. Stir in celery, onion, and green pepper, and saute lightly. Add tomatoes, water, bay leaf, and salt; simmer, covered, for two hours, or until turkey meat is tender. Add olives and noodles, cover and simmer for 20 minutes or until noodles are tender, adding more liquid if necessary. Separate meat from turkey legs, discarding the bones, and serve at once. Makes six servings.

Tuna Ribbon Sandwiches For Showers

For the spring party occasion or bridal shower, these small tuna ribbon sandwiches are excellent and nutritious as well.

TUNA RIBBON SANDWICHES

Increase quantities as needed.

¼ cup mayonnaise
¼ cup minced celery
2 teaspoons capers, minced
2 teaspoons lemon juice
8 slices thin-sliced white bread
4 slices thin-sliced whole-wheat bread

Turn tuna, including oil in can, into a small mixing bowl and flake. Add all the remaining ingredients except the bread; mix well. Spread tuna mixture (about two tablespoons for each) on two slices of white and one slice of whole-wheat bread. Press the slices together, having whole-wheat slice in center, sandwich style. Repeat with remaining filling and bread. Wrap in transparent plastic film and chill several hours. At serving time cut off crusts and cut each sandwich into four long slices. Makes 16 ribbon sandwiches.

Can Openers

The safety experts caution never to use a can opener that leaves jagged edges. These can be the source of deep and painful cuts. Always remove the tops rather than bending them back.

To make a little meat go a long way, combine it with meat extenders such as rice, spaghetti, macaroni, noodles, crackers, bread crumbs, or cereals.

ANNUAL BOAT PARADE IS SUNDAY

Yachters Prepare For The Season

Marin Women

SCRUBBING THE "Nepenthe" for opening day of yachting season on San Francisco Bay on Sunday, Mrs. Thomas Corn waxes the deck of her Columbia 28 at Sausalito Marine Boat Yard. Encouraging her is Mrs. J. Paul Silvestri, who crewed for her husband to win the Corinthian Yacht Club Midwinter Series.

By PAT BALMES

Four Belvedere women whose family lives are oriented to yachting are lending a hand with preparations for the ferryboat ride to benefit Marin General Hospital on Sunday, opening day of yachting season on San Francisco Bay. And they are also helping prepare their families' yachts.

Members of the Raccoon Branch of Marin General Hospital Volunteers, Mmes. Thomas Corn, J. Paul Silvestri Jr., Bob Bernheim and Harvey Rogers are helping with the Raccoons' 10th annual opening day ferryboat ride which sails in and around the boat parade.

Boarding will be at 10 a.m. at the Windjammer Restaurant dock in Tiburon, departure at 10:30 a.m. and return at 12:30 p.m. Refreshments will be served aboard.

Tickets may be obtained from chairmen Mrs. K. L. Rice Jr. and Donald McCune, both of Tiburon.

BOATING ENTHUSIASTS, the four San Francisco Yacht Club members are readying their own yachts for a season of racing, ocean-going vacations, bay and delta cruising and entertaining aboard.

Wendy Corn and Shirley Silvestri chatted about their sailing activities on the sunny patio of the Silvestris' Belvedere Lagoon home last week where a Hobie Cat, Sun Fish and rowboat are docked.

Mrs. Corn said her family loves to cruise their Columbia 28 sailboat on the bay and anchor off Angel Island or on the other side of Tiburon. Her five children are very much at home aboard; one sits on the mast and the 5-year-old likes to stay up in front.

"The kids tow the little El Toro with us and explore; they love to play Robinson Crusoe. The two older ones can sail big boats as well as the El Toro. They want a 505 so they can hike out on the trapeze," she said.

Mr. and Mrs. Corn and their children, Sam, 14; Sallie, 12; Peter, 10; Polly, 6 and Alfred, 5 live on the water in a large, historic Beach Road house with its own dock. In the summer the "Nepenthe" is moored to a buoy there.

"My husband likes to come home in early afternoon sometimes and we go out sailing. Once Tom fell in and all the neighbors saw," Mrs. Corn said.

She likes to entertain with luncheons aboard and take friends up the delta or cruising on the bay. They anchor and swim, "although some people come out faster than they go in," she said.

AN "UPRIGHT" sailor, Wendy Corn prefers cruising and leaves the strenuous Yacht Racing Association regattas and ocean races to Shirley Silvestri's father and husband aboard the "Peregina," a Cal 39 owned by Shirley's father Dr. Alvin Haag.

"I am not an 'upright' sailor," Mrs. Silvestri said with a smile. "I like racing on the bay with lots of exciting changes in tide and wind. I feel I know the boat. I can do almost everything except for winches, which are a question of stamina," she said.

Paul and Shirley Silvestri also enjoy day sailing with friends and Shirley's parents.

"Dad bought a boat 10 years ago and we all took up sailing. My husband organizes the crew of seven needed for racing," she said.

When one of the men of the Peregina's crew cannot race, Mrs. Silvestri is called upon. When the Peregina competes in overnight regattas such as the upcoming Vallejo race, she is in charge of the galley.

"I'm not physically strong enough to crew in strong summer winds; the winches are too much for me," she said.

However she helped her husband win the Corinthian Yacht Club Midwinter Series — there was not too much weather and they had a light-hearted father and son crew, she said.

Their son Russell, 11, who sets the spinnaker, is the third generation in the family to sail the Peregina. He crewed in the Whitney Series off Los Angeles this spring.

The Silvestris' 8-year-old daughter Laura likes cruising on the Cal 39, but only races in their Sun Fish on the lagoon with her mother and brother.

"ANOTHER NICE thing about sailing is that when you are out on the bay you are at peace — no phones. It's man against environment; it takes energy, but a very different kind than the business world demands," she said.

Shirley Silvestri prefers bay racing to ocean sailing because the bay is more exciting. If you can race on the bay, you can race anywhere, she said.

Aboard the Mahalo, while they were helping their children scrub the family boats last week, sisters-in-law Mrs. Bob Bernheim and Mrs. Harvey Rogers discussed sailing plans.

"The kids of both families enjoy family sailing aboard the Cal 25," said Susan Bernheim. Last summer the two families took the Grand Slam and the Mahalo up the San Joaquin River to swim and sun until school started.

"In order to get back fast for the first day of school when the wind died, we towed the sailboat," said Mrs. Bernheim.

THIS SUMMER the two families plan to sail together aboard the Grand Slam down the southern coast, probably to Baja, Mexico, she mentioned.

Both families also enjoy cruises such as their last Memorial Day weekend sail to Ensenada Yacht Club in Alameda.

"Sometimes we just tie up to a tree, throw out the stern anchor and swim and barbecue on the stern. Or we go up the San Joaquin River to Tinsley, to the delta club house for St. Francis Yacht Club members to enjoy the lovely lawns and swimming pool," Mrs. Bernheim said.

Her father-in-law Jules Bernheim, now 80, who with his wife has summered on Corinthian Island since 1936, taught his son Bob and daughter Nancy to sail.

"Grandpa bought the Boston Whaler to give the children rides around the bay. The whole family went with him to pick up the boat and sang 'For He's a Jolly Good Fellow'," said Susan Bernheim.

In February her husband crewed on Jim Flood's "Samarkand" to Puerto Vallarta. He also has been crew to Mexico, Hawaii, Santa Barbara, Acapulco, Mazatlan and LaPaz.

"Very few women are invited on ocean racing unless you do it as a family," Nancy Rogers remarked.

A BAY YRA skipper, Mrs. Rogers raced the Mahalo to fourth place for the season in the Cal 25 division of YRA last year. And she came in second in the Cal 25 Perpetual Trophy Race last year.

Her sons, Ken, 14 and Steve, 12, sometimes crew for their mother. The Mahalo needs five or six people to race with a spinnaker. Ted Brash of Belvedere is "captain of the foredeck." Harvey Rogers maintains the Mahalo and enjoys racing his Sun Boat on the lagoon, according to Mrs. Rogers.

Nancy Rogers has been a semi-finalist in the Adams Cup, the women's national sailing competition.

Lady Yvette Walter Visits Marin Art, Garden Center

By MOLLY MARIN

Lady Yvette Walter of Mauritius Island in the Indian Ocean toured the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross Monday in the final leg of a tour of the United States arranged by the U.S. State Department.

She is the wife of the Mauritius minister of health, Sir Harold Water and has visited Washington, D.C., New York City, Boston, Buffalo, N.Y., Philadelphia, Santa Fe, N.M., Albuquerque, N.M., Phoenix, Ariz., and Los Angeles.

The purpose of the trip was to study craft projects that the women of Mauritius can use in establishing a cottage trade on the island, which is becoming a tourist mecca, according to Lady Yvette.

The island, which is 468 square miles, has a population of 850,000 with many races and cultures, she explained, but no indiginous art and her hope is to develop a dignified culture.

She was impressed with the dry flower arrangements in the Decorations Guild Shop at the art and garden center and surprised that many of the flowers used are native both to Marin County and her island. When she returns home later this week she will begin classes to teach the women what she has learned.

Lady Yvette will join her husband in London where he has been attending meetings on population control. As minister of heatlh he is concerned with overpopulation of the island because of the racial mixes, Lady Ymbtte explained, and wants to introduce family planning to avert racial problems.

SEVERAL MARINITES will be among the guests at a party Friday evening, which is a send off for Maestro Seiji Ozawa and the San Francisco Symphony prior to the departure for a European-Soviet Union tour.

At the party in the grand ballroom of the Fairmont Hotel will be the Rev. and Mrs. Angus Dun Jr. of Greenbrae and Messrs. and Mmes. Kenneth J. Baune and J.A. McQuown of Mill Valley and Mr. and Mrs. J.H. Dollar of Kentfield. Mrs. Courtney M. Benoist of Kentfield is a member of the committee arranging the party.

Other guests will be San Francisco consular officials from each of the eight countries the orchestra will visit — France, Belgium, England, Switzerland, Germany, Austria, Italy and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics — May 15 through June 24.

AN AFTERNOON of chamber music, champagne and sunshine is promised by the organizers of the final fund raising event for the Marin Youth Orchestra Piccola's trip to Spoleto, Italy this summer.

The party will be held Sunday from 4 to 7 p.m. in the garden of the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Matson Roth in Ross, and guests will be invited to sit among the young musicians on the veranda overlooking Mount Tamalpais and to join in with cymbals, triangles and percussion instruments as the orchestra plays Haydn's "Toy Symphony."

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Dog's A Big Deal, Children Not Welcome At This Shower

DEAR HELEN:

We were invited to a baby shower. One of my friends (who didn't know the hostess but was a friend of the honoree) arrived with her two children, 5 and 9, because at the last minute she was unable to find a sitter.

She was greeted at the door by the lady of the house with word that she was not prepared for children, so please take them elsewhere. She wasn't allowed in, but had to leave her gift at the door.

The rest of us watched gifts being distributed by the hostess' pet dog who carried them in his mouth to the honoree. Terribly "cute." We were all supposed to make much of him.

Granted, the woman should have called and related her sitter problems, but the verdict would have been the same. And these are good kids.

This is hospitality? — T.J.

DEAR T.:

It's more like hostility. But, face it, there are people who can't stand children, just as others cringe at "performing" dogs. Since the rejected guest and the uppity hostess need never see each other again, let's just say "to each her own" — and hope the dog didn't slobber! — H.

DEAR HELEN:

Our 23-year-old attractive, well-educated daughter has been living with a recently divorced man for almost two years. He chooses not to work because he can then avoid child support. (His children and former wife are now on welfare.)

Our daughter supports this parasite, who uses her for a meal ticket. But I recognize she has chosen her path and I try to include him in the family.

However, it wears thin! Apparently to justify her life style, she is glamorizing her liberalized attitudes to our 16-year-old son. She has urged him to come and live with them.

I've always said I would love my children even though I did not like what they did, but my antagonism is becoming so intense — especially since our daughter demands that her arrogant lover be included in every invitation — that I feel like a hypocrite, trying to be cordial. She glories in embarrassing me; he constantly brags about their non-marriage, and his non-job status.

It appears the only solution is to sever ties completely, for though I still care for her, I can't take him any longer.

Please, Helen, what do other parents do in similar situations? — LOSING HER

DEAR L.H:

What other parents do isn't relevant — for no two situations are exactly alike. If you feel more comfortable excluding your daughter and her man from family gatherings, then don't invite them. It appears they attend mainly to flaunt a life style which embarrasses you —and that's not daughterly love!

I suspect the rift grows wider each time you play the hypocrite and these two rub it in. Try honesty: at least they'll respect you more, even though they see you less.

Got a problem? An adult subject for discussion? A fun idea? You can talk it over in her column if you write to Helen Bottel, care of the Independent-Journal.

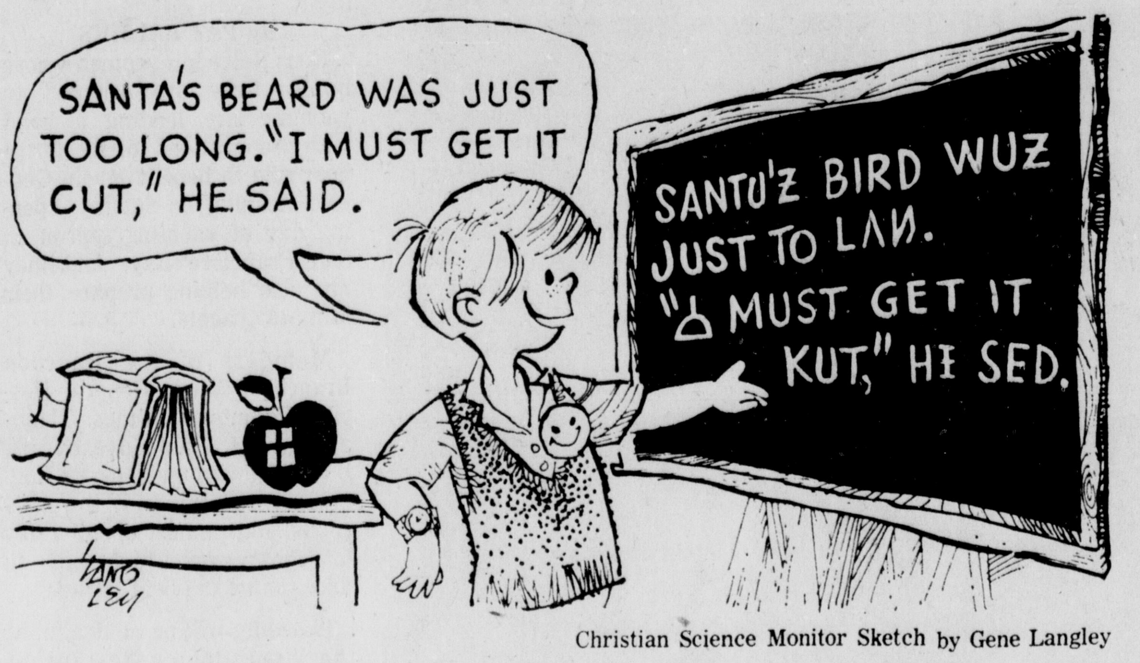
New System Simplifies English



SANTA'S BEARD WAS JUST TOO LONG. "I MUST GET IT CUT," HE SAID.

HAMMOND, Ind. — The sentences on the blackboard looked like a poor attempt at spelling. There was "sed" for "said" and "kut" for "cut" and "bigan" for "Began."

Much of the rest was even worse. Many of the letters were either backwards or not in the regular alphabet at all.

But the children in the room were not confused. They read the story without hesitation. This was a special way to learn to read and they were enjoying it.

The scene was set in the Lincoln Elementary School here in Hammond, and in seven other classrooms within the same district, last fall. The youngsters were using Unifon, a special 40-symbol alphabet, to find their way through the intricacies of the English language.

MOST ADULTS have probably forgotten how difficult English is to learn. But individuals studying it as a second language are acutely aware of its irregularities.

"There are at least nine ways to spell the long 'I' sound alone," comments Dr. Margaret Ratz, director of innovative programs in the Hammond schools. "Unifon eliminates the confusion by having just one symbol for the long 'I' — in fact, one symbol for each sound and one sound for each symbol."

Although this seems logical enough in its own way, a visitor to the Unifon classroom wonders about another kind of possible confusion. Pupils have to deal at some point with two sets of symbols, Unifon and the regular alphabet. How do they know one from the other and make the transition?

"No problem," replies Joyce Broclaw during a break in teaching in her Lincoln School classroom. "The first child began making the transition after Thanksgiving, having worked in Unifon since September. We keep traditional books out in the room. The kids pick them up and start reading them whenever they are ready."

When I visited Miss Broclaw's room she had seven "average" pupils ranged around a table with her, reading a simple story written in the standard alphabet. The youngsters were still in the transition period, going from Unifon to "traditional."

When a word such as "sails" (a double vowel for the long "A" sound) bothered them, Miss Broclaw reached around to the blackboard behind her and spelled the word in Unifon. That did it.

During this exercise, most of the children in the room were reading regular books on their own. A half-day aide moved among them. The four best readers were downstairs in the learning center (library), listening to tape recordings of bird calls and descriptive narration about them.

CHILDREN LEARN the Unifon alphabet quickly, in the first month, according to Mary Lukens, a teacher at Columbia Elementary School. "Once they've mastered Unifon, they can go to the board and write in it. Any word they can say, they can write," Mrs. Lukens explains. "It gives a child something he can count on."

Dr. Ratz elaborates on this point:

"With Unifon, children aren't bound to a little group of words as they are in traditional teaching. Anything they can say, they can spell because the spelling is consistent with the sound. That gives children a sense of confidence. They say, 'Gee I can function in school.' They're successful."

Hammond teachers who use Unifon seem sold on it.

Comments Mrs. Nancy Koselke at Irving Elementary: "I just love it. I don't have any kids who feel frustrated."

Remarks her colleague, Miss Mary Silvasi: "I would never go back to the other way. The children are so enthusiastic."

Another teacher is said to have been on the verge of resigning out of sheer frustration when Unifon came along. Now she is content because her pupils are progressing.

Unifon was devised about 10 years ago by John R. Malone, a Chicago newspaper economist. It has been used in Indianpolis and is currently found in Park Forest, Ill., and in New Orleans under a Ford Foundation grant.

"We need a fully tested program," declares Dr. Ratz, and this the Hammond schools are getting, with evaluation being handled by the Industrial Relations Center of the University of Chicago.

ALTHOUGH UNIFON made its appearance in Hammond classrooms last fall, the program actually began there with teacher preparation during the previous school year. Funding comes from Title III of the federal Elementary and Secondary Education Act.

A three-year grant, funding will continue at least through the next school year. This money has covered administrative, supervisory, and training costs, as well as underwriting the production of five readers in Unifon and a "codebreaker" book. It will also pay for evaluation.

At least eight more classrooms will be added next year.

Author Says We're All Good, Bad

By JOAN LISETOR

There is some good and some evil in all of us and we must accept the evil, according to humanist psychoanalyst Dr. Rollo May.

Dr. May spoke last night in the gymnasium of the College of Marin. His talk, "love and the Demonic," was sponsored by the Marin Association for Mental Health.

Dr. May is the author of seven books. The most recent, "Power and Innocence," covers the human potential movement he discussed last night.

Much of the talk was a definition of terms, which makes Dr. May easy to listen to but often difficult to understand.

The love of which he spoke, he said, was in a larger setting, a community, which is a group of people with compassion, sharing hopes, fears and anxieties. Compassion, he explained, is an expression of concern and makes communication possible.

In a community love is externalized, within a community people can disagree with one another and the dark side of life is made acceptable and livable.

The demonic is the aspect of a person with the power to take over the self in a disintegrating way, according to the psychoanalyst. It can be sex, rage or power, he said, or anything that has the capability of being both constructive and destructive.

"The demonic gives us the energy to love, create and defend. The aim is not for contentment, fulfillment or growth," he said. "Contentment is two steps away from apathy. A utopia will never succeed because it depends on perfection, which does not exist.

"Everyone has heard the saying from the popular novel, 'Love Story,' 'Love means never having to say you're sorry.' It is such a beautiful sentence but complete nonsense to believe love can be so perfect that a lover will always understand. Love is just the opposite. It is the freedom to say you are sorry and mean it."

If love and the demonic are so closely related what do we do with loneliness, Dr. May asked. Admitting there is no escape from loneliness he suggested shifting to constructive solitude.

Those ostracized and crucified by the community tend to become the heroes of the next generation, he said. The hero is one to face ostracism with courage giving the community its animation. Those of recent times to attack our apathy are Daniel Ellsberg and the Rev. Daniel Berrigan.

"I know Daniel Ellsberg and Daniel Berrigan. They are very sensitive men. They acted by compassion, expressing the demonic feeling within" he said.

Tragedy is more important than comedy because it gives dignity to human life with a simultaneous sense of fate and freedom, Dr. May said.

"Americans can't admit defeat because they don't understand tragedy," he said. "It is possible at this moment in time to accept a sense of tragedy as a people and no longer be dupes of Forest Lawn — we are never going to be sick, never die. We are uncomfortable as a result of a war, the Watergate affair. We (can) realize we are living in a world that is closing its eyes to the demonic. Destruction, even like what happened in Vietnam can be turned into something constructive."

If Eve hadn't performed an evil act we probably would not have had civilization.

HOW TO PLAY WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

A Word To Wise: Play For Long Suit Rather Than The Ruffers

South had a complicated choice in today's hand. He could try to ruff out his losing diamonds with dummy's trumps, or he could try to set up and cash dummy's long clubs. He had to think several moves ahead to make the right choice.

HEART ACTION

West opened the three of hearts, and East took two tricks in that suit. East next shifted to a low diamond and South's queen drove out the ace. West returned a trump, leaving it up to South to play for the rest of the tricks.

South considered his two lines of play. If he took the king of diamonds and ruffed a diamond in the dummy, he would have to return to his hand with a club in order to ruff the last diamond. Then he would have to get back to his own hand once more in order to draw the rest of the trumps.

CARDS NEEDED

South looked closely at the cards he would have to use up in the process. He would have to ruff a diamond with dummy's king of trumps. He would also eventually have to ruff a club with one of his own high trumps. This would surely set up a trump trick for one opponent or the other.

The other plan was far simpler. South won the first round of trumps with the king, cashed the king and ace of clubs and ruffed a low club with the jack of spades. This established dummy's long suit.

IN DUMMY

Now South drew trumps with the ace and finally with dummy's king. This landed him in the dummy with all trumps drawn. He could cash the rest of dummy's clubs to make his contract.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner deals and bids one spade and the next player passes.

♠ - 10 9 5
♥ - J 8 6 3 2
♦ - A 10 8
♣ - J 7.
What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two spades.

You are not strong enough to bid the hearts first and raise the spades later. Your first duty, when you can afford only one bid, is to raise partner's major suit.

BIRTHDAY QUIZ

By GORDON B. GREB

Quick change artists! Success changed the names of all of today's birthday greats. Who were they originally?

1. Bing Crosby is 69 today, but that's not the name his folks gave him after he was born in Tacoma, Wa. The nickname got firmly attached when he was a youth, everybody called him that at Gonzaga University, and soon he was starring on recordings, radio shows, movies and television, known even as "Der Bingle" during the war years. Twice married, he's simply "pop" to six sons and one daughter. His real name is (A) Bill Cosby, (B) John Crosby, (C) Harry Crosby.

2. Engelbert Humperdinck counts 37 birthday candles — that is, our 20th Century pop crooner does: Originally this name belonged to a famous German composer. Our modern artist, born in Madras, India, took the name on the advice of a publicist and made it famous all over again, singing "Release Me" and "The Last Waltz." His real name is (A) Arnold Dorsey, (B), Tommy Dorsey, (C) Jimmy Dorsey.

Marceau's Talents Mark Him As World Treasure

By JOHN BEAUFORT
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

NEW YORK, N.Y. — The other evening while watching Marcel Marceau "make the invisible visible" at New York City Center, it occurred to me that some appropriate international body should designate him a world cultural treasure. The designation — as the Japanese do with their master artists — would merely formalize the fact.

MIME MARCEL MARCEAU
Will Appear in Marin May 17

In the course of his career, Marceau has created some 80 numbers, of which he considers 20 classics. The program which opened the City Center engagement was divided between style pantomines and selections from the repertoire of Bip, his white-faced alter ego. Representing the former were such works as "The Trial," a marvel of multiple impersonations; "Sideshow," a Marceau carnival of circus acts; "The Dream," one of his most psychological works; and "The Mask Maker," which reaches a climax of near terror when a laughing mask gets stuck on his face.

With the indispensable Pierre Verry on hand again to make title-card holding itself a fine art, first nighters saw Bip in a variety of moods. Bip chased butterflies (quick motions of the head and a fluttering of the hands tell the story), painted a picture, baby sat, magically multiplied himself, went to a society party, tangoed, "tamed" a lion, and — almost — committed suicide. Whether new or familiar, each number was a revelation.

Marceau and his particular "art of silence" began entertaining the world outside France a quarter of a century ago. In 1947, Marceau and Bip, then newly created, began their international adventures with a tour of Switzerland, Belgium, Holland, and Italy. Since then, the white-faced Everyman of the striped pullover and culotte, battered top hat, and jaunty red flower has become familiar the world over.

Traveling to every continent and a number of islands, he has demonstrated before millions of delighted spectators the universality of the mime art.

Marceau will appear at the Marin Veterans Memorial Building at 8:30 p.m., May 17.

Marceau reached his commanding position on a world stage after a period of intense preparation. His youthful idols were the great figures of the silent screen: Chaplin, Keaton, Langdon, Laurel and Hardy. His master was the great Etienne Decroux, whom he credits with "reanimating mime in Europe."

Jean-Louise Barrault and Marceau were fellow students of Decroux and later fellow actors. Subsequently, Barrault committed himself to the spoken theater while Marceau became France's ambassador extraordinary of mime. Marceau and Bip have captivated North American audiences since 1955, when they made their first of nine visits to this continent.

Like all great performers, Marceau creates freshly for each occasion, each audience. He has, furthermore, over the years been exploring new areas, reaching for new depths.

He feels that his miming has become more psychological, more philosophical, more spiritual. He talks of drawing on a legacy of influences — Greek, Roman, Indian, African, Oriental.

"The mime creator rediscovers the signs that man has used since ancient times," he said when I talked with him.

Besides making people laugh, Marceau seeks to give audiences something to remember, to take away with them — some more profound experience. In such ways he sees mime fulfilling the function of art to bring light into the world.

"If I want to make a comment," he declared at another point, "I have to make the spectator see the wonder of the art which is the reflection of life."

Our visit in the vast City Center auditorium was preceded and interupted by Marceau's discussions with his stage manager, wig man, costumer, and the associate who works with him in "Bip, Illusionist," one of the new numbers.

After each interruption, Marceau, speaking fluent English, picked up the thread of the interview as if there had been no break. Offstage, he exhibits a relaxed concentration. He is a slight, neat man, with firm, well-ordered features, luxuriant dark hair in a stylish medium cut with long sideburns. The day we met he was wearing a deep blue velvet suit and red polka-dot shirt open at the throat.

At one point, when Marceau was called away for a stageside conference, an associate remarked that the mime's rigorous schedule on his biennial six- or seven-month tours is demandingly rigorous. Marceau devotes himself entirely to giving eight performances a week (four over weekends), publicizing his show, and allowing as much time as possible for the constant stream of students who seek him out.

The rise of student interest in Marceau and mime has grown directly out of his tours, which always include numerous campus engagements. Marceau told me that, in 1968, a new generation began coming to his shows. He added that 80 per cent of his present audiences are under 30 and that there are now 10 or more mime troupes on college and university campuses. When he operated his mime school in Paris, half of the 100 students were Americans.

Reopening the school is one of the projects high on his agenda because "if there were no schools of mime, the art would die out." He also intends organizing a new mime company to create and perform "mimo-dramas." During its 12 years of existence, his earlier company did 20 such dramas, including a memorable adaptation of Gogol's "The Overcoat."

Marceau intends touring for 10 more years before concentrating on teaching, directing, and producing. He also wishes to continue recording his pantomimes on films and tape; so far, he has done 20 films of his work. Mime, he explained, cannot be reduced to a scenario because "when you create numbers, it is not just the story but the style."

Mime he calls "the eliptic art, which can show within a few minutes a whole life." He does just that in the unforegetable Everyman capsule, "Youth, Maturity, Old age, and Death." In his view, "Mime is the art of metamorphoses . . . the shortest distance between two points."

A mime is "like a cartoonist, an impressionist." As "Bip, Illusionist" demonstrates, mime is also the art of illusion. And Marceau is a master illusionist.

A Close Vote On Growth In Novato

The Novato City Council has narrowly retained the proposed policy to limit growth in the city to 500 dwelling units a year.

Councilmen reviewing the revised Novato General Plan Monday night, voted 3-to-2 to keep the growth limit policy in the proposed new plan with Mayor Fred F. Ruegg and Councilman Dorothy P. Young dissenting, according to senior planner Mark Westfall.

The plan will be referred back to the planning commission which will have a joint meeting with the council at 8 p.m. May 10 and a public hearing on the plan May 14.

Councilmen also changed the map designation on the flatland owned by the John Kinney Estate, about 500 acres, near Black Point, a change that would permit up to 2,000 units.

The council designated the area for water oriented residential, erasing an earlier map designation of agricultural bay plain which would have permitted about 100 homes.

The Kinney estate has been seeking approval of plan to build 2,300 homes on 700 acres in the area, the majority in a lagoon-type development.

For the 460-acre Joseph Sanchez property near Pleasant Valley, the council approved from 100 to 300 homes.

Four-Hand Piano Concert Set In San Rafael

The piano team of William Corbett-Jones and Sylvia Jenkins will perform in concert at 7:30 p.m. May 20 at Caleruega Hall, Dominican College of San Rafael.

The concert, originally scheduled for next Sunday, is the last in the 1973-74 Music Associates Chamber Music Series.

Corbett-Jones and Miss Jenkins specialize in the art of four hands at one piano, and have played throughout Europe and North America.

Miss Jenkins is a faculty member at University of California, Santa Cruz and Lone Mountain College, and Corbett-Jones is an associate professor of music at California State University, San Francisco.

Marin Symphony's Salute To The Americas Well Received

By SYLVIA L. RUBY

A largely successful program of a variety of styles of music from the Americas was presented at the Veterans Memorial Building by the Marin Symphony last night.

In a fitting tribute for the celebration of the 25th anniversary of the signing of the charter of the Organization of American States, guest conductor Carmen Dragon selected works from the United States, Canada, Mexico, Brazil and Argentina. The auditorium was filled and the audience response enthusiastic.

Opening the program with the American sound of Aaron Copland's Outdoor Overture, Dragon delivered the clean articulation and square tempos called for in the "open prairie" theme. Mark Dodson did a fine job on trumpet.

William Schumann's New England Triptych and Leonard Bernstein's "Glitter and Be Gay" from Candide completed the United States' contribution to the evening.

The Triptych bears a strong resemblance to Charles Ives' Three Places in New England, especially in the last movement with alternating chordal hymns and parade marches of fifes — effectively portrayed by high woodwinds — and snare drum. The seven percussionists required had fun with this work. Oboist Jean Stevens and bassoonist Virginia Ojeda handled solos in the melodic quiet second movement very well.

The Bernstein song was a delightful vehicle for soprano Claudia Cummings. Her light and sophisticated voice was secure in pitch and her enunciation clear. Coloratura passages were handled with lightness and ease.

Less successful were the Villa Lobos selections from Bachianas Brasileiras No. 5. Miss Cummings lacked the necessary warmth of tone for the aria. The cello accompaniment sounded insecure in the Dansa due to Dragon's unclear conducting of the tricky rhythms and shifting meters.

Favorites of the audience were the Mexican traditional pieces arranged by the conductor, and the Ginastera dances from the ballet "Estancia." The Mexican songs brought the full orchestra sounds of the Hollywood Bowl to this Northern California community and Dragon made the most of the marvelous combination of Mexican melodic cliches from fiestas and bullfights.

Ginastera is a fairly complex Argentinian contemporary composer. His dances, too,include the Latin fire, but in a more refined manner. The flamboyant Danza Final consists of a constantly reiterated melody growing in intensity to a final cymbal crash. This was a fine performance.

The most unusual work in the program was the Lyric for Orchestra by the Canadian composer Harry Somers. This predominantly atonal piece developed great feelings of tension which somehow carried through moments of quiet droning and even pure silences. Although the music is made up largely of overlapping dissonant chords swelling and fading, the work was not lacking in melodic content. The orchestra was perfection in its careful timing and sensitive dynamic changes. Cellos were particularly solid in sound.

It was a night for brass and percussion instrumentalists. The Latin works, of course, included much variety of percussive instruments and warm brass sounds, but the Northern countries nearly equaled them in their demands. The orchestra is fortunate to have the fine musicians necessary.

Marin County can feel proud that this performance will be broadcast internationally by the Voice of America, reaching an audience potential of 40 million.

Margot Fonteyn To Perform In Marin Ballet

Dame Margot Fonteyn will appear as a guest artist with the New London Ballet in a performance at the Marin Veterans Memorial Auditorium at 8:30 p.m. June 20, John Kornfeld Associates Inc. has announced.

The company under the direction of Galina Samsova and Andre Prokovksy will open the program with short ballets and the famous pas de deux from the second act of "Swan Lake" to be danced by Miss Fonteyn and her partner, Heinz Bosi.

Prokovsky and Miss Samsova will be featured in "Othello," choreographed by Peter Darrell to music by Liszt, and the program will close with Miss Fonteyn in highlights from "Sleeping Beauty."

"Oliver!" To Open Hall At Dominican

The British film version of the musical "Oliver!" will be the first movie shown in the refurbished Angelico Hall at Dominican College, at 7:30 p.m., May 8.

Accoustical tile has been put in the hall. A new movie screen has been installed on the stage, according to Lillian Seaver, public relations officer at the college. An arc projector has been bought for the hall.

This is the first time that the college will be able to show a movie to more than 150 persons. It can now accommodate 1,000, she said.

The refurbishing of the hall was done through a gift of Laurence Bettis, a Boise, Ida. banker.

"Oliver!" is based on Charles Dickens' "Oliver Twist." It has the familiar characters of Oliver, Fagin, Nancy, Bill Sykes and the Artful Dodger. There is an admission fee.

Dominican Sets Preregistering

Preregistration for the fall semester at Dominican College in San Rafael, will be held tomorrow and Friday and Monday and Tuesday of next week.

Graduate students may register between 9 a.m. and noon in Room 10 of Guzman Hall on any one of the four days.

Undergraduate students must see their faculty advisors or department chairmen by appointment. Preregistration assures the students of a place in the classes of his choice.

Adviser Named

WASHINGTON (UPI) — William J. Handley, Ambassador to Turkey, has been named senior adviser to Secretary of State William P. Rogers and coordinator for international narcotics matters in the State Department, it was announced Tuesday.

Auditions For Youth Orchestra

Auditions for the Marin Youth Orchestra will be held during the last half of the month by the Marin Symphony Association.

All auditions will run from 3 to 6 p.m. at San Rafael High School's music building, except for soloist auditions, which will be at San Domenico School in San Ansemo.

Auditions for first violin, oboe and bassoon will be held May 16; for second violin, viola and clarinet, May 18; for piano, harp, flute, cello and bass, May 22; for percussion and brass, May 25, and for soloists, May 29.

To be elibible, students must already participate in their school orchestras or band.

Woodwinds and brass will be required to prepare a specific piece for the auditions.

Second Man Sentenced For Cocaine

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A second Sausalito man was sentenced yesterday in U.S. District Court in connection with seizure by agents of an ounce of cocaine last year.

Brian N. Smith, 27, of 80 Cloud View Avenue, was given four months at the Parlin Fork Conservation Camp in Mendocino County after pleading guilty earlier this year to possession of an ounce of cocaine Sept. 15 at the home of another Sausalitan.

That man, Marco F. Madio, 23, was given a sentence similar to Smith's last week.

George E. Miller, 31, a Washington, D.C., attorney, was sentenced with Smith yesterday. He was ordered by visiting Judge Charles Wyzanski to spend four months in a work furlough program in Santa Clara County.

The three men originally were accused of offering to sell agents 11 pounds of cocaine for $110,000. Federal, state and local narcotics agents seized the ounce of cocaine in a raid at the Madio home.

Chairman Is Dead

NEW YORK (UPI) — Frederick S. Beebe, chairman of the board of the Washington Post Co. and head of a communications network that included Newsweek magazine and several radio and television stations, died of cancer Tuesday. He was 59.

School May Go Alone On Deer Park Turf

The Fairfax School District board, faced with widespread opposition to turfing Deer Park School ballfields in cooperation with the county, last night decided to investigate ways of proceeding with the project on its own.

Original plans for the project included splitting a $37,000 tab with the county for turfing of two ballfields and providing a county access road through the unincorporated area near Fairfax. Residents have objected to the project, saying the access road would open up potential development of nearby watershed lands.

"The board is reluctant to give up the idea of the turfing" but last night abandoned any joint effort with the county, said Supt. H. Reginald Hammond. Instead, the board directed Hammond to look for ways to go it alone, perhaps with volunteer aid from residents.

The board last night also accepted with "restrained enthusiasm" a recommendation from the Fairfax Parks and Recreation Commission that turfing of the area not exceed two acres, and not include an access road, bridge, realignment of a nearby creek or any cutting of trees.

The commission made its recommendation after citizens argued that turfing a large portion of the area would attract crowds, create traffic congestion along Porteous Avenue and result in costly maintenance.

The school board, which has budgeted $15,000 for the project, will again consider the matter at 7:45 p.m. May 15, Hammond said.

The Fairfax School District board also:

EVALUATION — Heard a report from the district's evaluation committee that evaluation of teachers should include standardized testing, teacher observations, consultation and student progress.

BUDGET — Said the district will hold a "major" budget session at 7:45 p.m. May 15.

SURPLUS — Declared surplus a 20-by-100-foot strip of land at White Hill School so that resident Dennis D. Mellerick, of 21 Sherman Court can buy it. Mellerick's home is built to the property line of the school's playground.

Explosion Has Familiar Ring

WELLS, Nev. (UPI) — The Roseville ammunition train explosion was similar to one in 1969 at a remote section of the northeastern Nevada desert.

Five cars of a Western Pacific Railroad train, loaded with bombs and other ammunition, blew up 14 miles southeast of Wells then, injuring two crewmen and two transients.

Cause of that blast was not determined, officials said, although it gouged holes 15 feet deep in the rail bed.

Lot Will Be Turned Into Park

The Gallinas Village Community Services District board last night decided to proceed with plans to convert a weed-covered lot on Adrian Way into a minipark, a project that has been stalled for over a year.

Plans for the triangular parcel across from the recreational center, which was leased from the Las Gallinas Valley Sanitary District for $1 last year, include installation of walkways, gravel surfacing, landscaping and benches, according to Marguerite F. Clark, district secretary.

The board will meet at 8 p.m. tomorrow in the community center to consider the costs of improvement plans, she said.

The parcel now sports shuffle board and horseshoe facilities, she said.

In other business, the board last night said the district teen club will distribute the Village Voice, the district newsletter, for a $25 fee. Postage for mailing the newsletter has cost about $35 in the past, according to Mrs. Clark.

The teen club plans to hold a car wash at 10 a.m. May 30 at the Mobil station near the Civic Center on North San Pedro Road, she said.

Novato Campus Petition Signed

College of Marin faculty members, seeking reevaluation of plans to construct a campus at Novato, have forwarded petitions with 142 signatures to the Marin Community College District Board.

Robert W. Essig, a member of the committee which circulated the petitions, said Monday, "We got 142 signatures," including 109 from faculty members, "representing about two-thirds of the faculty."

The petitions are expected to be presented to the board tonight.

The petitions, citing small families, dropping elementary enrollment, population growth controls and the high cost of living in Marin, are asking the board to reconsider the need for a second campus in the district.

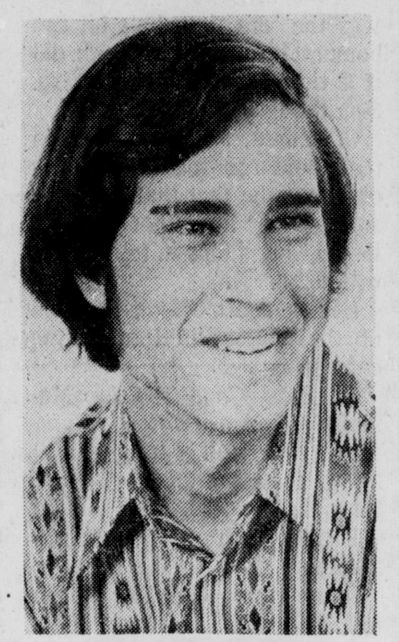
Novato's Stratford Hurls Perfect Game



RAY STRATFORD
21 up, 21 down

If perfect games are always as easy as Ray Stratford's, it's a wonder there aren't more of them.

The senior right-hander from Novato High School retired all 21 batters with routine ease yesterday afternoon to pitch what was believed to be the first perfect game in Marin County Athletic League history as the Hornets defeated visiting Terra Linda, 3-0.

"I tell you — I'd like to turn him inside out and pitch him left handed," said Novato coach Marlin Olson.

"Usually when there's a no-hitter, somebody stands on his head to make a spectacular play," said losing coach Keith Fraser, "but in this one the only thing close to a hit was a line drive to right field by Greg Chapman in the second inning," caught by Dan Metzger.

"My fast ball and curve were both working," said Stratford. "I was hitting the corners inside and outside."

Stratford struck out eight and retired nine others on soft pop-ups. Novato statisticians charted him with 57 strikes in 93 pitches. "He went to three balls on only three batters, but he had a lot of 2-and-2 counts," said Olson.

It was the second no-hitter of the season for Stratford, who handcuffed Tamalpais on opening day. The righty boosted his MCAL record to 3-1 and gave Novato its fourth straight victory, moving the Hornets into a second-place tie with San Rafael at 6-3 behind Redwood's 8-1.

Novato scored in the first inning when Dave Brazell walked and Metzger tripled, and added two runs in the fourth on a single by Metzger, double by Stan Conte, run-scoring infield grounder by Tom Conklin and RBI single to right by Ken Ferrari.

Novato's Thomas Stars In Minors

Tom Thomas, a young man who tore up the Marin County Athletic League in his prep baseball days at Novato High, is now tearing up the Carolina League in professional ball.

Thomas, an outfielder for Salem, Va., a Pittsburgh Pirates' farm club, is leading the league in hitting with a .381 mark, 16 hits in 42 at bats, his hits total also leading the league. In addition, Tom has scored seven runs, knocked in six and has two home runs to his credit.

When he was at Novato Thomas was a third baseman, but was converted into an outfielder by the time he reached Washington State University. After being previously drafted by the California Angels and not signing, Thomas was drafted in the secondary phase by the Pirates and signed with the Bucs in 1971. He's off to a fast start in 1973.

DEWEY FORRY of San Rafael, former standout at Terra Linda High, is also having a great start as a relief pitcher for Bakersfield of the California League. In the first report to the I-J from Player Periscope of Novato, a service which seeks out the statistics of minor leaguers for newspapers, the figures on Thomas were not the only bright ones. Forry, as Mr. Periscope notes, has pitched four innings in three games and has a win-loss record of 2-0 and an earned run average of 0.00.

First report on John Dolinsek of Novato, outfielder for Denver of the Triple A American Association, shows him with two singles and two doubles in 19 at bats for a .211 average with the Houston Astros' farm club.

Later reports should be coming in on other minor leaguers from Marin: Al Curtiss and Mike Parnow of Fairfax, Cliff Hall of Marin City and Russ Dillon of Novato. When you include major leaguers John Boccabella (Montreal) and Bill Lee (Boston) of Terra Linda, it makes nine Marin County players in pro baseball. That means the scouts are keeping pretty busy in this territory. "Hit the ball good, Joey. You don't know who's watching!"

THE PEOPLE AT the Caravan Inn, the Phoenix home of the Giants, wrote nice notes to members of the Giants Boosters of Northern California telling how much the hotel enjoyed having them during their Phoenix stay in March. I like the closing line: ". . .and we look forward particularly to seeing you next year when we hope we will all be welcoming the Giants as world champions." After all, just across the street from the Caravan is the Sands, and the team headquartered there at spring training WAS the world champ.

IT'S GOOD TO SEE that Ron Cerrudo of Napa, whose parents Mr. and Mrs. John Cerrudo still reside in San Rafael, made it into the list of top 100 money winners on the Professional Golfers' Association tour after his finish in last week's Byron Nelson Golf Classic. Ron's final round of 69 gave him a 283 total and prize money of $3,918. His $10,450 total puts him 85th on the PGA's money tree.

Amazing Win For Giants

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — If there ever was any doubt the San Francisco Giants were for real this season, they wiped it out Tuesday night. Just ask the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The amazing Giants scored seven runs after two were out in the ninth inning to beat the Bucs 8-7.

"What can I say?" Willie McCovey bubbled. "This is the most amazing team I've ever seen, they just don't know how to give up."

Bobby Bonds doubled with the bases loaded to drive in three runs and end the game but it was a pinch-hit grand slam homer by Chris Arnold that pulled the Giants to within striking distance.

"I knew when I hit the ball we had a least a tie," Bonds said. "I kept on running so they wouldn't make a play on Howarth, who was the winning run."

"All I was worried about was making them try to get me so that tying run could score," Howarth said.

"Then I saw McNamara waving me home I decided to slide head first."

There was no need to slide. The throw to the plate was wide in addition to being late.

Arnold hit for Gary Thomasson in the ninth inning despite the fact Thomasson had hit a homer earlier in the game.

"I wanted a right-handed batter," Manager Charlie Fox said.

Arnold went to the plate to make contact and keep the rally going. The count went to 3-2 and he figured Pirate relief pitcher Ramon Hernandez would throw a fast ball.

"And that's what I got," Arnold said.

The Pirates had built up a 7-1 lead in the early innings and Bob Moose got the first two outs of the ninth inning after a leadoff walk.

But then he walked two more batters and Arnold hit his homer. Gary Matthews doubled and Hernandez then walked two more batters.

Pirate relief Ace Dave Giusti hurried in and gave up the double to Bonds.

"I wasn't even going to stay on the bench." Bonds said. "I didn't think I would get another chance to bat because I led off the ninth inning."

The victory went to Elias Sosa, who has a 3-0 record.

The victory was the 12th in the last 14 games.

Raiders Obtain Steeler Back

OAKLAND (AP) — The Oakland Raiders said today they have acquired defensive back Lee Calland from the Pittsburgh Steelers in exchange for an undisclosed draft choice.

Calland, 31, a native of Louisville, Ky., went to the Minnesota Vikings in 1963 after playing at the University of Louisville and missed all but one game of the 1964 season with a broken arm.

He went to Atlanta in the expansion draft and played 1966-67-68 seasons with the Falcons before Pittsburgh claimed him on waivers from the Chicago Bears midway in the 1969 season and have used him as a starter in most of their games since then.

His best season was in 1970 when he had seven interceptions.

Sports

THE ONLY ONE — San Rafael High School's Lance Loughlin slid home for the Bulldogs' only run yesterday as the relay throw got away from Redwood catcher Doug Hartman in a Marin County Athletic League baseball game at Albert Field. Dave Steele's single chased him home. A San Rafael victory would have put the Bulldogs into a first-place tie with Redwood, but the Giants reacted angrily to this first-inning score by San Rafael and struck for six runs in the second to win going away, 10-1.

Redwood Wallops San Rafael, 10-1

Redwood High School bombarded San Rafael for six runs in the second inning and coasted to a 10-1 triumph over the Bulldogs yesterday in a crucial Marin County Athletic League baseball game at Albert Field.

The defending champion Giants won their eighth game in nine tries and opened up a two-game lead over San Rafael and Novato, both 6-3.

Redwood loaded the bases in the second with one out and scored one run on a single by Doug Hartman, another on a walk to winning pitcher Mark Ruggles, two on a single by Bob Vogel, one on a single by Mike Connor (hitting in his eighth straight game) and one on a sacrifice fly by Gary LaTorre.

In thethird, Ruggles singled home another run and precipitated a rundown off first base allowing another run to score before he returned safely to first. In the fourth, Daryl Edralin's sacrifice fly and an error brought home the runs.

Ruggles was removed in the sixth inning with the 10-1 lead because he had thrown too many pitches, according to Giant coach Al Endriss. San Rafael's Mike Farris, the MCAL's leading winner at 5-0, would have started but injured his pitching elbow in an accident over the weekend.

Lakers Hold On To Beat Knicks

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — The Los Angeles Lakers are exactly one game ahead of their pace of a year ago when they won their first NBA championship ever. But nobody is talking four straight.

"It's only one win in black and white," warned Gail Goodrich, "and it takes four to do it."

A 22-point loser to New York in the title series opener last season, the Lakers built up a 20-point lead late in the third period Tuesday night and then had to hang on with everything they had for a 115-112 victory over the stubborn Knicks.

"That was one of the most frustrating games I've ever sat through," said frowning Laker Coach Bill Sharman. "The turnovers in the last quarter are what really hurt."

Although Los Angeles is 1-0 at a time when it was 0-1 last year the Knicks demonstrated with their comeback that they're a

Redwood Netters Top Terra Linda

After the first two singles matches, Redwood seemed to have little trouble disposing of the Trojans. The first singles match saw Giant Steve DeMartini, returning after a week layoff due to oral surgery, beat Doug Carlisle in three sets, 6-3, 4-6, 6-0. In the second match, Jamie Lee handed Redwood its first loss of the year, beating Mark Strasser, 6-1, 6-4. From then on Redwood swept all sets to win easily.

Redwood's 72nd consecutive league tennis win gave the Giants a 7-0 record on the year, while Terra Linda is 6-1.

In other league matches yesterday, Tamalpais whipped Drake, 5-2, Marin Catholic edged San Marin, 4-3, and San Rafael shut-out Novato, 7-0.

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — Martin J. Wygod's Settecento qualified for a shot at the Kentucky Derby next Saturday when he outgamed heavily-favored Mr. Prospector in the stretch at Churchill Downs Tuesday to win the $21,000 Derby Trial Stakes by a length and one-quarter.

Only five horses started in the mile race and all the others were outdistanced in this final prep for the first of the Triple Crown classics.

I'm Guaranteed was third, six lengths behind Mr. Prospector, with Blue Chip Dan fourth, three lengths farther back. Gold Bag finished last and may have lost a chance to run in the Kentucky Derby.

Settecento and Gold Bag were the only two starters who had been expected to challenge America's top three-year-olds in five days. Settecento, ridden by Larry Adams, apparently qualified for the task. Gold Bag was a disappointment.

Mr. Prospector was a heavy favorite at 3-5 with the crowd of 14,580. The colt got off to a slow start, but once he swung into high gear rapidly picked up his rivals after they had gone a little more than a quarter of a mile. He charged right by them before they reached the start of the final turn and at that point seemed to be headed for an ever-widening victory.

Fifteen other horses were listed as Kentucky Derby starters and all of them may run if the track is fast on Saturday.

The gelding breezed five furlongs in 57 seconds and finished six in 1:10 1-5. He ran the first three furlongs in :34.

Schecky Greene, speedy winner of the Stepping Stone Purse on opening day, apparently also is going to start.

There will be three entries in the derby. Favored Secretariat will have a running mate in Angle Light and second choice Sham will be coupled with Knightly Dawn.

Twice a Prince, Restless Jet, Impecunious, Warbucks, Our Native, Royal And Regal, Starkers and Navajo also are expected to start. The entry box closes Thursday morning.

A muddy track Saturday could reduce the field with Forego and Restless Jet coming out. But the Churchill Downs track dries so rapidly if the sun gets at it, that scratching would be a last minute decision.

Canadiens Take 2-0 Advantage

MONTREAL (UPI) — The Chicago Black Hawks are racked with injuries as they head home to meet the Montreal Canadiens in the third game of the Stanley Cup finals down 2-0.

The Canadiens won Tuesday night's second game, 4-1, but Chicago Coach Billy Reay is still optimistic about his team's chances.

"We can still come back and tie this series," he said. "If I didn't thinnk we could do it I wouldn't be coaching here. I'm going to put three of our Dallas farmhands in the lineup Thursday night."

The Hawks were without defenseman Keith Magnuson, who is out with a broken jaw, and center Stan Mikita was dressed Tuesday night but did not see action because of a badly cut finger.

In the first period of Tuesday's game veteran defenseman Doug Jarrett tore a muscle around the rib cartilage when he collided with the Canadiens' Rejean Houle and could not return to action.

"The Canadiens have a fast hockey team. It is hard to keep up with them and force the play," said the 54-year-old Reay.

Yvan Cournoyer scored twice for Montreal, giving him 11 goals in the current playoffs, a personal all-time high.

Cournoyer, who scored the winner in the second period and added a third period power play goal, said, "I came close to a hat trick but I'll keep that third goal for Chicago. Believe me the Black Hawks will play better over there."

The Canadiens got a first period goal from defenseman Pierre Bouchard, who scored his first ever playoff marker. Claude Larose assisted on Bouchard's goal and also played a great defensive game, managing to keep Chicago's Dennis Hull, who leads the playoff scorers with 18 points, off the scoresheet.

Frank Mahovlich scored Montreal's other goal into an empty net with 34 seconds to play while Cliff Koroll scored for the Hawks.

San Marin Nine Tops Tam, 3-0

Tom Bowen pitched a five-hit shutout and San Marin High School came up with single runs in the second, third and fifth innings for a 3-0 Marin County Athletic League baseball victory yesterday over visiting Tamalpais.

Rich Villa singled home George Hoberg with the first run, Bob Louie drove in Mike Linder with a single for the second, and Louie's infield out scored Al Davidson with the third. Linder and Hoberg had two hits each for the Mustangs, and Tim Nowell hit a triple for Tam.

Winnipeg Looking To Offense

WINNIPEG (UPI) — The Winnipeg Jets will be looking for more offense tonight when they hope to draw even with the New England Whalers in their World Hockey Association final.

"I sure can't knock our goaltending because that's kept us in many games during the playoffs," said Bobby Hull, playing-coach of the Jets. "I think we have to stop playing that Horatio-at-the-bridge kind of hockey, thinking our goalies always will bail us out back there."

The Whalers crushed Winnipeg, 7-2, in the series opener at Boston on Sunday.

More Rough Basketball Expected

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (UPI) — Russian basketball Coach Vladimir Kondrashin isn't convinced the absence of UCLA's Bill Walton is the key to his team's success against the United States National squad.

"With him or without him, we'd still win a few and lose a few against the Americans," said Kondrashin Tuesday. "He makes no difference to us."

The U.S.S.R.-United States series moves into its third game tonight with each club seeking to gain the upper hand in the classic, which is deadlocked at 1-1.

The United States, with Walton in the lineup, easily downed the Soviet Union team 83-65 Sunday in Los Angeles, but the Bruins' star was kept out of Monday's game in San Diego by an injury; and the U.S.S.R. rallied for a 78-76 win.

The Soviets dominated the backboards in the San Diego game and coach Bob Cousy lamented his team was going to need more muscle than finesse to win the series.

"I have instructed my players to be as physical as they can be," said Cousy.

That extra muscle could come from Big Ten most valuable player Steve Downing of Indiana. American officials were trying to get Downing to join the American team in time for the third game and he was listed as a possible starter.

Downing, who led Indiana to the NCAA finals and a third place finish, averaged 20.1 points per game and was a standout rebounder. He was a first round draft pick of the Boston Celtics and Indiana Pacers.

The first two games of the series have been marked by near bloodshed play under the boards and the roughness has at times overshadowed the scoring.

Kondrashin has singled out UCLA backup center Swen Nater for most of his criticism about elbowings.

"Number 13 (Nater) resorts to rough play even when the ball isn't in his area," Kondrashin said Tuesday. "He has treated (Alexander) Belov very roughly."

The Russsian coach said the play in the first two games of the series has been much rougher under the boards than was the case in the Olympic Games at Munich last fall.

Aussie Signs For Pro Track

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Distance runner Tony Benson, Australia's leading two-miler for the past two years, has signed a pro track contract with the International Track Association.

The ITA announced Tuesday that Benson will make his pro debut at the Toronto Pro meet Friday, May 11, and will compete in meets in Philadelphia on May 12 and in San Diego on May 19.

BASEBALL ROUNDUP

Aaron Whacks 2 More But Braves Falter, 9-6

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The phenomenon of Hank Aaron's run for the record is beginning to obscure the success or failure of the Atlanta Braves.

The Braves are off to a sagging start with a 7-14 record but Aaron's dramatic surge at the outset of the season is overshadowing the Braves' sorry start.

Atlanta lost another one Tuesday night by a 9-6 margin to the Montreal Expos but after the game, the main topic of conversation was Aaron. He clouted two homers to continue his march to the milestone.

He not only moved closer to Babe Ruth in career home runs, he gained ground on Honus Wagner.

Aaron—who has just nine hits this season although seven of them are homers—now has a total of 3,400 hits in his career.

"Where does that put me?" Aaron asked after the game as he inquired about his hit total. He then added with a smile, "but don't tell me about that Ruth, I've heard enough about him."

Aaron's total of 3,400 hits put him just 30 behind Wagner's fourth place total of 3,430. Ty Cobb's record of 4,191 is out of his reach.

Of course, THE record, the one everyone is interested in, is Babe Ruth's total of 714 homers. Aaron now has 680 homers and needs just 34 to tie Ruth. It was the 58th time he's hit two homers in one game. Ruth did it 72 times and Willie Mays, No. 3 on the list, 63.

Of course, all the interest in the home run record has also obscured the fact that Aaron is so high in many other categories and he is tops in total bases with 6,203.

At Bats—Cobb 11,4229; Musial 10,972, Aaron 10,956.

Hits — Cobb 4,191; Musial 3,630, Speaker 3,515, Wagner 3,430, Aaron 3,400.

RBIS—Ruth 2,209; Aaron 2048.

Aaron hit a two-run homer in the third and added a solo blast in the seventh. The only frustrating thing for Aaron— besides the fact the team is losing—is that his batting average is only .150 this season with nine hits in 60 at bats.

Aaron's quest for the home run record is one of the reasons for his low average. He admits, "I don't know if I'll ever hit .300 or even .270 again." But an average of .150 is a bit embarrassing for a guy like Hank Aaron.

The game?

Oh yes, the game. Aaron's second home run tied it 6-6 but the Expos got three runs in the eighth to decide it. Pinch-hitter Hal Breeden singled in the winning run and Ron Hunt singled in a pair of insurance runs.

In the other NL games, Houston blanked Philadelphia 3- 0, San Diego beat St. Louis 10-5, Chicago beat Los Angeles 9-5, and San Francisco outlasted Pittsburgh 8-7.

In the American League, Chicago edged Baltimore 6-5, Milwaukee nipped Oakland 4-3, California beat Detroit 6-2, New York topped Kansas City 6-1 and Texas edged Boston 7-6. Cleveland at Minnesota was rained out.

Jim Wynn hit his eighth homer and Jerry Reuss pitched a seven-hitter to give Houston the victory over the Phils and Steve Carlton. Carlton, who was 27-10 last year, is now only 4-3 this year. But last year he was 5-6 and won 22 of his last 26 decisions.

Billy Williams, Ron Santo and Jose Cardenal all homered in the four-run fourth inning to pace the Cubs past Los Angeles. Williams' blast was a two-run homer while Santo and Cardenal hit solo shots. The Cubs collected 14 hits while beating Tommy John.

Nate Colbert hit a bases-loaded ground rule double to cap a six-run fifth inning as San Diego beat hapless St. Louis. St. Louis chipped in with five errors while suffering their 16th loss against three wins.

UCLA Cager Nater Inked By ABA Virginia Squires

Combined AP & UPI

NORFOLK, Va. —The Virginia Squires of the American Basketball Association said Tuesday they have signed center Swen Nater of UCLA to a multiyear contract for an undisclosed amount of money.

The Squires said the signing of Nater, who was the first round draft choice of the Milwaukee Bucks of the National Basketball Association, would not affect his eligibility to continue playing in the current U.S.-Soviet Union basketball series.

A spokesman for the Squires said the club acquired the rights to the 6-foot-11, 250-pound Dutch native from the defunct Floridians of the ABA last summer.

BOATING

By STAN DAVIES

Tips To Help Avoid Docking Disasters

Under power or sail, there are two sets of circumstances where the beginner in this boating game can make serious errors of judgment.

One is a failure to realize that the rudder has much less effect on a boat as speed decreases. The other circumstance is a failure to judge speed correctly after traveling along at a good clip for a prolonged period.

If you see a beginner bang his boat into a dock wall, it's usually because of one of these shortcomings. However, a boater doesn't have to be a beginner to make these mistakes. Even old hands, if they have never given the circumstances the proper thought, make the same errors.

In the process of docking either misjudgment can be expensive. But there's a way to avoid trouble — and it's very simple: Just stop your boat completely. Let it sit quietly for 10 seconds a few boatlengths away from the dock, then start your docking procedure as a completely independent action.

While you are stopped, you can observe the natural influences that will affect your approach . . . such things as wind, current and wave action. Try to come into your berth against the strongest of these forces — you have better control.

The most common and costly mistake in docking is coming in too fast. It's very easy to misjudge speed after you've been zipping along in a fast boat at 30 miles per hour. When you slow for the approach, 15 mph feels like 5. And the boat which answered smartly to the wheel or helm at top speed is a sluggish log at idle, yet your reflexes are still geared for the snappy control you were just enjoying.

So remember, when approaching the dock, stop before moving in.

Here are some questions on this topic I've been asked:

Q. I'm told that docking a houseboat is much harder — I'm getting one —— ?

A. A houseboat really handles just like any other power boat — when there's no wind. But even in a little breeze the high sides of a houseboat act like sails. Take extreme care in coming down wind towards a dock. Many houseboats have been badly damaged by swinging broadside to the wind and coming up to the dock with a crunch.

Q. Is there a "best" angle at which to approach a dock?

A. Anywhere between 15 and 30 degrees is best. Any angle greater than 30 degrees means that you have to swing the stern sharply to lie parallel to the dockside. The chance of misjudgment increases and if the stern swings too much, it hits, and there is sure to be damage.

Q. Warn others . . . I swung my boat hard to avoid a concrete pier, the bow missed, but the stern hit so hard I ruined the boat. Why . . . ?

A. Every day you see people who forget the major difference in the way a car and a boat are steered. With the boat, the stern swings. A sharp turn that allows the bow to clear an obstruction often throws the stern into the same obstruction with damaging force. An awareness of this effect is among the first things a boater should acquire.

LAKERS

better team than the one which lost in only five games in 1972.

Red Holzman, the astute Knick coach, agreed.

"We got blown out in the first game by Boston (134-108) and came back," he said. "We're far from dead."

The Knicks came back to upset the Celtics in seven games in the Eastern Conference finals, which ended Sunday night in Boston.

"There's no question," said Jerry West of the Lakers, "an extra day off would have helped the Knicks. With another day off, I'll guarantee you'll see a different team entirely.

The Lakers and the Eastern Conference titlists play again here Thursday night with the best-of-seven series switching to New York Sunday afternoon and next Tuesday night.

If necessary, the teams will be back in Los Angeles for game No. 5 Thursday night, May 10.

Ahead 93-73 with 1:12 to go in the third period, the Lakers saw their advantage whittled down to just three points—113-110--with 1:18 to go.

But New York threw the ball away with 39 seconds left and Bill Bradley missed a 15-footer with 21 seconds to go.

Bill Bridges then scored on a breakaway with 17 seconds to go and the Lakers had a five-point lead.

Goodrich led the Laker attack with 30 points, 19 of them in the second half. Jim McMillian added 27, 14 in the third quarter, and West scored 24, although he played just 29 minutes.

Laker center Wilt Chamberlain pulled down 20 rebounds and blocked eight shots, and Holzman said: "That big guy is amazing. He does so much to hurt you."

For the Knicks, who beat the Lakers in the 1970 finals, Dave DeBusschere led the way with 25 points and Bradley hit 24.

In the final quarter, the Lakers committed eight of their 21 turnovers. The Knicks, on the other hand, made 12 turnovers.

Although he wouldn't say so for the record, Sharman was upset at referees Mendy Rudolph and Jack Madden for whistling 11 offensive fouls against his team while none was called on the Knicks.

West, who poured in 19 points in the first half, fouled out with 3:09 to play with the Lakers in command 108-102 on an offensive foul against Frazier. It was one of two offensive fouls charged against West, who hadn't fouled out of a game since the 1970 playoffs.

"There was absolutely no way I fouled him (Frazier)," said West.

Briggs spelled his doom. Odom allowed the Brewers only five hits and Briggs got the only two that really counted.

Pedro Garcia singled off Odom in the third inning and Odom then walked Don Money and George Scott to load the bases. Briggs scored them with a two-out triple to give the Brewers a 3-2 lead.

Oakland tied it with an unearned run in the seventh. Bert Campaneris singled, stole second and continued to third when Darrell Porter threw the ball into centerfield for an error. Campaneris scored the tying run when Joe Rudi bounced in to a double play.

The A's took a 1-0 lead in the first on four walks. Starter Bill Parsons walked Campaneris, Bill North and Rudi to load the bases and was replaced by Jim Colborn. Colborn struck out Reggie Jackson and got Sal Bando on a foul pop but walked Gene Tenace on a 3-2 pitch to force in Campaneris.

Tenace drilled his sixth homer in the third to make it 2- 0.

Seals Sign Three More Players

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — The California Seals, who lost many players to the World Hockey Association last season, don't want any more of their young stars to slip away.

Tuesday they signed three young players to multi-year contracts for undisclosed terms, including center Walt McKechnie, who led the team in scoring.

McKechnie had 16 goals and 38 assists for 54 points.

Also signing contracts were wings Craig Patrick and Joey Johnston.

Drake Ends Baseball Drought

Drake High School, winless in its first eight Marin County Athletic League baseball games this year, finally ended the drought yesterday by beating visiting Marin Catholic behind the three-hit pitching of Don Asay.

Bob Gare pinch-ran after Mark Parachini had tripled in the sixth inning and scored the winning run on the front end of a double steal. Warren Pino later scored an insurance run on an infield out.

The Pirates, 2-18 on the year, tallied in the second inning when Steve Schneider walked and scored on an error, and again in the fifth when pinch runner Carlo Parachina came home on a passed ball.

Marin Nine Loses, 7-2

Three College of Marin pitchers gave up 14 hits among them, while their team was able to come up with only four, as the Tars dropped a 7-2 Camino Norte Conference baseball game to Santa Rosa Junior College yesterday in Kentfield.

Larry Christiani and Les Crandle hit home runs for the Bear Cubs, who reduced Marin's conference record to 9-6.

Jim Thompson had a fine day for the Tars, going three for four from the plate and belting Marin's only extra base hit, a double.

Rancho Moves Into 1st Place

Rancho Cotate High School of Rohnert Park beat visiting Piner of Santa Rosa, 4-2, at Sonoma State College yesterday to take over first place in the Sonoma County League baseball race.

The victory raised the Cougars' SCL record to 5-2, giving them a one-half game edge over Piner (5-3) and Healdsburg (5-3), which lost yesterday to El Molino of Forestville, 7-6.

In other Southern Sonoma high school diamond action yesterday, Petaluma remained one half game behind Vallejo in the North Bay League with a 9-5 victory over visiting Montgomery of Santa Rosa, St. Vincent of Petaluma moved into a first place tie with Tomales in the North Central League II by beating host Point Arena, 4-2, and Tomales was edged, 7-6, by NCL II host Calistoga.

Jerry Wachowiak pitched a five-hitter to avenge a first round loss to Piner and put the Cougars in a strong position to take their third consecutive SCL baseball crown. Wachowiak, who raised his league record to 4-1, allowed just one earned run and fanned seven Prospectors.

Marshall Brant, who paced Rancho Cotate with two hits, drove in the eventual winning run in the third inning for the first of his two runs batted in.

Petaluma committed five errors to let in four unearned Montgomery runs, but the Trojans backed pitcher Sam Piezzi with an 11-hit attack, led by Mike Maselli, who laced three singles and a double.

The Trojans won the game with a four-run sixth inning rally fashioned on singles by Tim Wallmark, Dan Solid and Stan Highstreet and Maselli's double. Highstreet's hit brought home two runs.

Jim Leoni pitched five innings, was taken out for Harry Lewis and then brought back to the mound in the seventh frame to squelch a Point Arena rally.

The Pirates had runners on second and third with one out, and two runs in already, when St. Vincent coach Ed Major hurriedly put Leoni back in to pitch. He responded by getting the next two batters out to save his own victory. Leoni recorded strike outs in the first four innings he pitched.

QUICK COMMUNICATION

This emergency police two-way radio data system, called RCA Voice Plus, was produced by Rydax Inc. of 76 Belvedere Street in San Rafael. RCA ordered the equipment for more than 100 police vehicles of the DeKalb County Police Department in Georgia. Rydax system equipment substitutes number codes for routine voice messages such as "On assignment", "Off duty" or any one of 99 different messages that can be reduced to codes. Transmission of routine messages by Rydax code is said to be faster and more accurate than conventional two-way voice communications. The police car driver pushes a button to transmit the message, which is printed out at the dispatch office along with the car's identifying number and the time the message was received. The digital coded message can be sent and acknowledged in a little more than one second.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Issue Of Pollution Clouding Picture

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I hold 100 shares of Englehard Minerals & Chemicals (NYSE) at a cost of $31 a share. Why has the price dropped when earnings are good? — J.S.

A. Over and above its basic spheres of operation — international mineral trading, fabrication of precious metals and production of minerals — Englehard is involved in the area of pollution control. It is this speculative "kicker" which gives the shares an aura of glamour, and is also responsible for their poor market performance of late. The decision of the Environmental Protection Agency to extend to 1976 application of the standards of the 1970 Clean Air Act, has not materially changed Englehard's prospects. The company has developed a catalytic converter which it has contracted to supply to Ford Motor. Commitments were also made to three major foreign automakers. This type of device is currently thought to be the best available means of meeting the 1970 antipollution standards.

Because the subject is controversial and a vast array of conflicting opinion is being promulgated, Englehard shares have suffered in the market, which traditionally abhors uncertainty. Yet, from the more mundane aspects of its operations, Englehard managed to lift sales to $1.93 billion last year. At only 13x estimated 1973 earnings shares appear undervalued and should be held.

Q. Last April we invested $12,000 in Central Securities Corp. (ASE). We are discouraged by the performance of these shares. What should we do now? — J.G.

A. The performance of these shares reflects not only the changing value of the underlying portfolio but the substantial discount from asset value at which the shares are trading. The discount, at 35 per cent, is more than double the average discount for all closed-end funds. In view of the company's performance record, which is average, the discount appears unwarranted. The fund's portfolio is concentrated in the common stock of smaller growth companies, although major commitments are held in IBM, Inter Telephone & Telegraph and Swift & Co. With patience, your shares should recover. Thus, in my view, shares should be retained.

News On Wage-Price Plans Help The Market

NEW YORK (UPI) — Anticipation that President Nixon will toughen some aspects of his wage-price stabilization program helped push prices higher through noon today in moderate trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

Wall Street observers said investors were hoping Nixon would take some action to slow inflation. Government officials said Nixon probably would require big corporations to get prior approval for price increases or more than 1.5 per cent and raised the possibility of orders to roll back price rises exceeding increases in costs. The President will issue a statement late in the afternoon.

International Telephone & Telegraph was the most active issue, up ¾ at 33 on 171,000 shares. ITT reported higher quarterly earnings Tuesday.

Prices on the American Stock Exchange advanced in moderate trading. Teleprompter was the most active issue, off ⅝ at 19 ½ on 34,100 shares.

On the Big Board, computer and electronics issues advanced moderately. Burroughs gained 1 ¾, Motorola 1 ¼ and IBM 1.

Glamor stocks gained ground with Xerox up 1 1-3, Corning Glass 1 ¾ and ARA Services 1 ⅝.

Oil stocks moved higher. Halliburton jumped 2 ¾, Getty 2 ⅛ and Atlantic Richfield 1 ⅛.

Dow added 2 and Eastman Kodak 1 in the higher chemicals. Motor, steels and aircrafts advanced in fractions. Airlines and rails turned mixed in fractions.

Big Industry

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UPI) — Agriculture is a $10 billion industry in Texas, second only to the oil and gas industry.

New Ownership Of Restaurant In Stinson Beach Is Being Announced

Elwood's Restaurant in Stinson Beach will be taken over next week by The Road House Inc., headed by Charles E. Hancock of Stinson Beach, who ran for county supervisor last year.

Hancock, owner of Bolinas Bay Stock Farm and Christmas Tree Ranch, entered the race for the fourth supervisorial district post vacated by Louis H. Baar, but later withdrew and threw his support to current Supervisor Gary T. Giacomini.

Hancock said the name Elwood's will be changed to The Road House, and the dining area will be expanded from the present seven tables to about a dozen tables, in addition to the counter. "We plan to remove the pool table and pinball machine in the back and use that for dining."

Hancock said the breakfast and lunch menu will remain the same as in the past, but the Road House restaurant will also serve evening dinners on a regular basis.

Hancock ran a restaurant in the Carmel-Monterey area for about four years in the late 1950s and early 1960s. He bought a Stinson Beach ranch in 1969 and has been raising horses and Christmas trees since then.

Other principals in the new restaurant are C. Allen West, San Anselmo public accountant, and Judy Heuschkel of Oakland, Hancock's sister.

Present owners of Elwood's, Harry R. and Nola Shurtleff of Stinson Beach, plan to retire after operating the restaurant for 19 years.

Courts Handcuff Selves With Own Rules

Under the title, "Are the Courts Handcuffing the Police?" the Commonwealth Club of California has just issued a study that concludes that, whether or not they are "handcuffing police," courts are handcuffing themselves.

The report results from an in-depth study by the club's section on law enforcement. Like almost all Commonwealth Club studies, this one availed itself of the knowledge of experts and the judgment and intelligence of the club's members. The resulting report is dispassionate, reasoned, and not to be lightly dismissed.

"The section's conclusion," says the report, prepared by chairman M. Lester O'Shea, "is that there can be no question but that delay in the courts and the exclusion of evidence caused by court decisions have resulted in the acquittal of guilty persons and in the avoidance by criminals of conviction for the actual crime committed, with resulting sentences also not commensurate with the crime."

IT THEN PUTS the blame primarily on a rule adopted by 5-to-4 vote of the U.S. Supreme Court in the case of Mapp vs. Ohio in 1961, known as the exclusionary rule.

In that case, the Supreme Court held that evidence obtained without following the careful procedures of a specific search order could not be used in a criminal trial. It claimed this was of "constitutional origin," citing the 14th Amendment's guarantee of equal rights and privileges as the constitutional fount.

"Since the admissibility of evidence can now be challenged on many grounds, with many motions and appeals, it is possible to delay the start of a trial almost indefinitely," the club's report says. It notes that this process can be repeated with one piece of evidence after another, fighting perhaps all the way to the state Supreme Court on each — before the trial can begin.

This delay naturally works to the advantage of the accused. It also costs the taxpayers an inordinate amount of money.

COLUMNIST William F. Buckley recently held that the exclusionary rule "has had the effect of turning many trials into investigations not into the guilt or innocence of the defendant, but the legality or illegality of the methods by which he was apprehended." He quoted a recently retired New York judge as complaining that criminal prosecution now takes nine or 10 times as long as it did before the Supreme Court's 5-to-4 adoption of the rule.

This rule, with its immense capacity for mischief, is a court invention — a case of the judiciary's tying its own hands and subverting its own purpose.

As Buckley noted in his column, "For generations it was accepted that even tainted evidence could be considered by the jury, on the theory, as one justice put it, that the question ought to be, 'Is the man guilty?' not, 'Did the constable err?'"

If courts are seeking to reform their processes — as judges often say they are — perhaps here is a place to start.

New Yorker Succeeds As Saturday Review Fails

That great pariah of the effete American intellectual, the sophisticated tongue-in-cheek New Yorker magazine, seems to be thriving, while the Saturday Review, which has month after month, year in and year out, dared to keep its aim right on the target, is folding.

Have the worms finally gotten to the roots of the olive tree?

Assembly Subverting Will Of The People

It appears that the Assembly is about to subvert the will of a majority of the voters on the issues of capital punishment. A bill to reinstate the penalty is bottled up in a judiciary committee, hand picked to include a majority of foes of the death penalty. Bob Moretti has admitted that there is little chance of it ever being reported out for an Assembly vote. This is an arrogant means of preventing our elected assemblymen from standing up to be counted. It is not democratic government.

We citizens rarely have the opportunity to pass judgment directly on legislative matters by the initiative. The pros and cons of capital punishment were thoroughly debated and the mandate of the people was strongly for the measure. It is infuriating to find a small group of politicians cavalierly disregarding this bi-partisan mandate.

I say to you Mr. Bob Moretti if this is your leadership then forget about running for governor.

Time Change Not A Savings Account

Memo to the nerd who, year after year, writes twice a year about Daylight Savings Time. (And, as you like to do so much, the "sic" goes after "savings.") The item in question is DAYLIGHT SAVING TIME. As much as local proprietors of savings and loan companies must appreciate the subliminal reference to their operation, the time change is something —perhaps one of the few things — they have no control over. Repeat; it is DAYLIGHT SAVING TIME. Think you can hang onto it?

One Minority Ignored; Another Accommodated

If the Muir Beach homeowners don't want 500 people (nude or not) crowding their tiny private beach, I don't blame them, but the way in which the matter is being handled is — it seems — illegal.

The sheriff's office has no authority to conduct a regular patrol entirely within the bounds of private property.

The county board of supervisors decline to "adhere to minority interests" by seeking a beach for nude bathing, but they have responded well to a smaller minority residing at Muir Beach, who now have an on-premises security guard at taxpayer expense.

If I desired such service for my home or office, I would have to hire a guard from a commercial agency, I presume at my own expense.

San Anselmans Taxed Enough For Open Space

If "concern for the environment" means to take into consideration jobs, housing, food, a healthy pocketbook, as well as visual open space, then we think San Anselmo expressed this concern in the recent election.

San Anselmo property owners will be taxed 10 cents starting July 1 to support the county's buying program of open space each year for untold years to come. San Anselmo property owners also support the buying of any open space whether in San Rafael, Tiburon, Lucas Valley or Marinwood, because proportionately we will have to make up loss of tax income to the county and College of Marin, etc.

Somewhere along the line we have to consider whether we can devise other uses for land in buffer zones than buying it to lie fallow forever.

With the small amount of acreage involved in San Anselmo we think this can be done.

JANIE SHELDON
San Anselmo.

(The purchase of open space lands with bond money in San Rafael, Marinwood, etc., will make no difference to tax rates in San Anselmo. In no way does it affect the revenues of county or school districts. — Editor)

Don't Let Watergate Become Smoke Screen

Regardless of both parties, it should never have happened. . . We all know this Watergate affair should be cleared up, yet we must not let it take over and let the business at hand go by. It seems like something or someone is always trying to keep the American people off guard. You recall in the old days of the carnivals, when the carnival folks had pretty girls walking through the crowds giving the rubes the glad eye and showing their pretty ankles. The girls lost nothing, but Mr. Rube lost his pocketbook.

I am sure the Democrats have some wayward sons in their family tree that they are not too proud of. So take some advice from an old cow hand from the Rio Grande, and let both parties sit down like men and work this matter out. Let us not let this decoy become a smoke screen so strong that it will cause our eyes to burn that we can not see clearly and cause us to lose our sense of reasoning and to be alert.

Reasons For Suicide Barrier On Bridge

In reference to the "Politically Popular" article of April 23 by Paul E. Peterzell we feel compelled to relate some of the positive issues in favor of the Golden Gate Bridge Authority's proposed suicide prevention barrier.

In the Bay Area, suicide has become synonymous with the Golden Gate Bridge. It has become world renowned as a place to suicide and has attained a glamorous aura for those bent on self-destruction. Nearly 500 people are known to have leaped from this site to their death, and the toll keeps mounting. The proposed suicide barrier would effectively inhibit many impulsive self-destructive acts.

Suicidal persons often choose a specific method of suicide which they have fantasized and for which there are no ready alternatives. Thus, if a person is stopped from a particular method that he had chosen, he does not immediately choose some available alternative. Since suicidal crisis tends to be of limited duration, blocking a particular method of suicide may be sufficient to delay the suicidal act until the person's defenses or the situation have reconciled. Moreover, based on the evidence and success of a similar suicide barrier placed on the Empire State Building in New York, it was found that not only were suicides stopped from this site, but further they did not transfer to other neighboring tall buildings. Thus we can reasonably conclude that the proposed Golden Gate Bridge barrier will not increase the incidence of suicide on other bridges or from tall buildings. . .

Believes Ralph Nader Supports Fluoridation

Concerning the letter from Mr. Bob Lucy printed in the April 16 issue, in which he claims that Ralph Nader opposes fluoridation, I wish your paper had researched the statements so that editorial comment might have been added. The issue is of importance to the dental health of the people of the country and therefore deserves attention.

Bob Lucy states that Mr. Nader refers to Dr. Prival's report "Fluoride and Public Health". I had read this document. It is in my library. I read it again and agree with it. It SUPPORTS fluoridation of water supplies just as the rest of the scientific world supports it.

Quote from page 44: "in view of the great impact that fluoridation can have in improving dental health and the large body of knowledge that has been accumulated concerning the health effects of fluorides, it seems only reasonable to conclude that the benefits of fluoridation far outweigh any risks that may be involved."

In his letter to me Dr. Prival states, "Ralph Nader asked me to answer your letter concerning the question of fluoridation." One can only conclude that Ralph Nader believes in Dr. Prival's judgement which is definitely favorable to fluoridation.

Can we then say that Bob Lucy's claim is only hearsay?

Single Assemblyman Able To Thwart Vote Of People

By RUS WALTON

I thought this was representative government here in Babylon; of and by and for the people. I deluded myself.

One man — just one legislator — is thwarting the will of millions.

Its' Assemblyman Robert Moretti I'm stewing about, the Democratic speaker of the house. He's lousing things up.

Last Nov., 5.4 million Californians voted (67.2 per cent) to restore capital punishment. I mean, restore it for the criminal; it was never abolished for the victim.

THAT 2-1 VOTE for Proposition 17 was a pretty clear cut decision.

Some legislators thought so, too. They moved to implement the will of the people. Sen. George Deukmejian, R-Long Beach, was one. He introduced SB 450 to mandate capital punishment for certain crimes: plane hi-jacking and train wrecking involving fatalities; arson that caused grave bodily harm or death; kidnaping, rape, sex crimes, armed robbery and assault resulting in grave bodily harm or death.

The Senate Judiciary Committee passed the bill, 9-2. Senators George Moscone, D-San Francisco, and David Roberts, D-Los Angeles, voted "no". Sen. Nicholas Petris, D-Oakland, and non-Sen. Alan Robbins, D-Los Angeles, absent.

There is little doubt that the bill will be passed by the State Senate. That means it will go to the Assembly — to the Assembly Criminal Justice Committee. It will go there and die.

MORETTI IS AGAINST the death penalty — and that's his privilege.

But, he admits that if SB 450 did get to the floor of the Assembly, so that all the assemblymen could vote on it, it would probably pass. He doubts that it will ever get out of committee. And, he should know.

Moretti appointed the members of the seven-man Criminal Justice Committee, including the four-Democrat majority that is opposed to capital punishment. That's one of the reasons those four are on that committee.

It adds up to one thing: the will and actions of one man, elected by 49,713 voters, can tell 5.4 million Californians to go to hell.

And it means that four assemblymen, who altogether polled 256,000 votes, can do the same.

Here are the four Democrats who can be expected to kill SB 450 — or any other death penalty bill that comes before them: Robert W. Crown (Oakland), John J. Miller (Oakland), Alan Sieroty (Beverly Hills), and Henry Waxman (Los Angeles).

In three of those four districts (Crown, Sieroty and Waxman) the Proposition 17 vote was overwhelmingly "yes". Only in John Miller's district did the death penalty fail; only John Miller can say that he represents the will of the majority of his constituents.

There is something wrong with a system when it permits one man from one of the state's 80 Assembly districts to thwart the will of 5.4 million voters.

The idea is to respect oldsters while catering to youngsters.

Democrats Draw Sudden Hope From GOP's Watergate Troubles

WASHINGTON — While we have been watching the Republicans dive from the tower into the water bucket, very few people have been paying much mind to the spring stirrings with the opposition party.

The only time lately when either national party has seemed worse off than the Republicans today was less than six months ago, when the Democratic ticket won one measly state. Yet there is still a pulse there, and the more damaging the Watergate crisis becomes to the GOP, the more life seems worth living again to the defeated Democrats.

IMMEDIATELY, I ENVISION angry rejoinders to this from Republicans like George Bush, the national chairman, who will insist that the Watergate and all that goes with it are in no way attributable to his party as such. It was just a bunch of bad guys who happened to be working for the same boss and spending the same money, he will say.

On the other side, Robert Strauss would maintain that it was not the Democrats as such who suffered that terrible defeat last fall. It was, instead, the McGovernites.

Like Bush, Strauss would be technically correct. Like Strauss, Bush now has a monumental rebuilding job before him. But Bush's job is tougher, because it involves public confidence. Strauss's remains formidable, but at least he can see it, get a grip on it.

In a reversal of last year's procedure, when the 1974 elections warm up you will find hundreds of Republicans running away from Mr. Nixon, rather than clutching at his coattails. Already John Connally's celebrated switch of parties has become less certain, or anyhow less imminent. In Virginia, former Democratic Gov. Mills Godwin seems less eager to embrace the Republican Party which may and may not offer him its gubernatorial nomination this year.

And many Democrats in the South and elsewhere are digging out their donkey tiepins again, proclaiming that they always did stand foursquare against the Nixons and Haldemans — when, in fact, last time around they did all they could to dissociate themselves from their own national ticket.

They sense forthcoming opportunity. Pragmatists among them, those interested in winning elections, are getting respectful hearings for their proposals to return to representative party procedures. A year ago, the cresting wave of "participatory democracy" would have bowled them over at uttering such thoughts.

THE DEMOCRATIC National Committee's commission on delegate selection and party structure just met here, and while it fretted over the quota system in esoteric detail, it received more important general statements about the party's reason for being.

They came from the Coalition for a Democratic Majority, whose task force for this session was headed by Rep. James O'Hara (Mich.) and Maryland's Richard Schifter. It speaks for a broad (nonradical, non-New Left) spectrum of the party.

"We now realize that the Democratic Party must regain the support of groups which some had come to regard as irrelevant," their document says. "We need not only more active and articulate groups such as the newly awakened blacks and browns, the women, the young and the intellectuals.

"We also need the blue-collar worker, the black professional, the southern moderate, the white ethnic, the elderly, the small businessman, the farmer and many others. None of these groups will give its support to the party if it feels that it is being forced to accept a second-class status while other groups are favored."

All of which is so self-evident that it is remarkable that it needs to be said, and even more remarkable if anybody among the Democrats still challenges it, in spirit or letter. (Even George McGovern himself has conceded that the quota system of the convention that nominated him was wrong in large part.)

BUT THE DEMOCRATS are surfacing from extreme depths. Someone needs to say the self-evident in a conciliatory way, so the party can proceed from those obvious truths to reunited campaigning.

As for George Bush, surely he is wishing that there were some self-evident truths about the current situation in his party that he could bear to hear stated out loud.

McGovern, Kennedy Seeking To 'Come Home To America'

WASHINGTON — Remember the drumbeat of the 1972 Democratic convention? It was:"America, come home, America, come home!"

Now the two who strayed farthest during the campaign —presidential nominee George McGovern and Sen. Edward Kennedy — are themselves coming home. And for cogent political reasons.

Kennedy wants to be in a position to get — if things look right —the 1976 Democratic presidential nomination.

EACH KNOWS that his goal will be unattainable unless he sheds most of the ideas and ideology of the "new politics" which he expounded so unreservedly and unsuccessfully six months ago.

It is quite a distance to cover politically. Those who brought about the nomination of Senator McGovern at Miami were intent upon having a candidate who rejected the political center of the Democratic Party. To them it represented bad politics and bad policy and on that litmus test they nominated the right man. McGovern was true to his supporters, and Senator Kennedy, his best campaigner and leading crowd pleaser, was true to Senator McGovern.

But in disdaining the political center of their own party, they found that they were rejected by the political center of both parties —and the voters.

NOW BOTH WANT to get back to the mainstream of electable politics.

McGovern has already come out against convention quotas for blacks, women and youth. He sees no reason why the political machines (like Mayor Daley's in Chicago) shouldn't run their own convention delegate slates another time.

He is acting to erase his 1972 image as "soft on drugs" by voting for tougher penalties for heroin and morphine peddlers and mandatory sentences for those who commit federal crimes while armed.

He has not been criticizing the continued U.S. bombing of Cambodia, he has shifted his position on financial aid to North Vietnam (now he's against it), and he has scaled down his proposed cuts in defense by about 75 per cent.

He is now talking against big government.

He is talking against "ill-functioning social programs" and indicates he would just as soon repeal some of them.

MOST REVEALING of all, Senator Kennedy, after weighing all the advantages and disadvantages, has decided to go to Alabama on the Fourth of July to deliver the major speech honoring Gov. George Wallace.

The occasion is to do honor to the "Spirit of America" and to do honor to Governor Wallace as the award-winning representative of the "Spirit of America."

In the past Senator Kennedy has usually depicted George Wallace as the epitome of racism.

Apparently the senator is thinking of the future.

I-J REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

By PAT PERRY

He Wasn't The Usual Hitchhiker; It's Not The Usual Shop Center

He was hitchhiking at the Marinwood on-ramp to the freeway — a tiny old man with a deformed spine and a surgical boot six inches thick. The temperature was 82 degrees and he wore a respectable sports coat and tie, and although I never pick up hitchhikers there comes a time. . .

Climbing awkwardly into the car, he gasped that he only wanted to go down the freeway as far as the Lucas Valley offramp, because he was calling on Franchini's Chateau restaurant.

"I'm selling ads for a newspaper," he said. "Wouldn't have hitchhiked but the bus doesn't go from Marinwood to there."

As we drove down Highway 101 he insisted that all I had to do was pull to one side of the road, let him out — "and then I'll just hop across the other side."

THE THOUGHT of that thick boot and that poor humped back just hopping across 101 was too grim to bear. I zipped him around under the freeway and dropped him outside the restaurant.

The point of all this tale is that he was incredibly grateful. No ladies had ever given him a ride, he said, cheerfully waving and wishing me "all the luck in the world."

Further down the freeway a great crowd of big strong students lounged waiting for rides. I hoped they got them. But I know who deserved a lift the most.

EVERYONE'S SO KEEN on planning and total environment and zoning and ordinances, the whole subject is in danger of becoming the new religion. It's becoming positively irreverent, even unpatriotic, to suggest that a house or a shop or a town can be built unless it's preplanned to meet regulations.

But the fanaticism tends to be undercut by the charm of the older sections of Marin County, the higgledy piggledy hillside houses, and the horribly nonconforming structures that have more style and panache than a whole acre of conforming boxes.

For my money the most charming shopping center in Marin County — please forgive me, dear advertisers of all the others — is the Lark Creek complex in Larkspur. It wasn't exactly planned as one. There were a couple of old houses and some old shops and a creek and a magnificent stand of trees. But this unplanned combination has emerged into something with, again, more style and panache and pleasant ambience than any air-conditioned mall.

THE PEOPLE'S SCHOOLS

Two Teacher Groups Back Anti-Union Measure

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

While the California Teachers Association and California Federation of Teachers are pushing bills to bring union collective bargaining to the public schools, a Los Angeles County legislator has introduced a measure to do just the opposite. And he has done so at the behest of two organizations of teachers.

Assembly Bill 1400, by Assemblyman Robert C. Cline, R-Woodland Hills, would outlaw exclusive union representation of teachers. Cline introduced it for the Professional Educators Group of California and the Professional Educators of Los Angeles, which are inter-related organizations.

AB 1400 would amend the Winton Act, which governs negotiations between teachers and school boards. It specifies that the certificated employees council, which represents teachers under the Winton Act, could not delegate its negotiating powers to a committee of its members or anyone else, and could not itself be the exclusive bargaining agent.

This is intended to correct a perversion of what Gordon Winton, former Merced legislator who was author of the Winton Act, has said was its intention.

Winton has said that his act was not designed to permit any organization to be the exclusive representative of teachers. However, the certificated employees council membership is in ratio to the memberships of all organizations represented among the teaching staff in a school district. As it works out, if one organization has a majority of the teachers — as CTA does in most districts — its members on the council can appoint a committee to do the actual negotiating. Minority members of the council thus are "frozen out." This has become standard practice in some districts.

Cline's proposed amendments forbid delegation to any teacher group or individual of the authority to represent teachers. They also provide that any teacher could, if he wished, do his own negotiating with the board.

His AB 1400 further specifically forbids any sort of pressure being used to force any teacher to join a specific organization or permit it to represent him in negotiations.

ALL THIS IS in direct contradiction to Senate Bill 400, introduced by state Sen. George R. Moscone, D-San Francisco, with CTA sponsorship and CFT support. Moscone's bill provides for exclusive representation of all teachers by whatever union has a majority of members. Its language also would legalize teacher strikes and the agency shop, in the opinion of the legislative counsel. It would repeal the Winton Act.

CTA and CFT are also backing another collective bargaining bill, AB 1243 by Assemblyman Bob Moretti, D-North Hollywood. This one calls for exclusive representation of all public employees — including school teachers — by any union having a majority membership.

Since CTA and CFT are the two biggest unions among California teachers, it may be assumed that Moscone and Moretti represent a majority of teachers with their bills. However, R. D. Lane, a Riverside teacher who is president of the Professional Educators Group, declared in announcing sponsorship of Cline's AB 1400:

"WE FEEL THAT it is important for one teacher organization in this state to stand up for the minority point of view. Our bill is designed to protect the voice of the minority in negotiations with the public school employer. We reject the idea that collective bargaining and the right to strike will improve the quality of education."

Actually, Lane's organization may be speaking for a majority of teachers, although it has only a small minority as members. Neither CTA nor CFT has ever polled its members to find out whether a majority of them want exclusive union representation.

Spock Ends N. Viet Visit

SAIGON (UPI) — Dr. Benjamin Spock and his wife left North Vietnam Monday after touring areas bombed by the United States and meeting with Premier Pham Van Dong, Hanoi's Vietnam News Agency said.

Spock, who ran for president last fall on the Peace and Freedom ticket, visited North Vietnam's Ministry of Public Health and the Commission for the Prtection of Mothers and Children, the agency said in a broadcast monitored in Saigon.

The broadcast said Spock visited "many localities subjected to U.S. bombing," including the Bach Mai Hospital."

A Citation For Belching Smoke

The citation was delivered by Barney Griswold, senior inspector for the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District, who said he spotted the smoke while on patrol.

Seatrain officials said their vessel was undergoing boiler repairs and the work caused the smoke.

Soviet Basketball

Although basketball was played in Russia before the Revolution, there was not a team from the USSR to compete with other countries until 1947. Their teams have become major competitors. While the biggest player on the 1947 men's team was only 6'4", the players on today's team average almost 2 inches taller. The more than 3½ million people playing the game all over the Soviet Union create a vast pool of talent and diversity to draw from. Now engaged in a 7-city tour of the U.S., the Soviet team is challenging the only country with a winning record against it (3:8).

DO YOU KNOW — Who won the Olympic basketball gold medal in a controversial decision last summer?

City Manager Fight On Cotati Agenda

The continuing battle of three youthful members versus two oldtimers on the Cotati City Council is expected to flare up again tomorrow when the council meets at 7:30 p.m. in the city hall.

At the council's April 18 meeting the three Sonoma State College graduates elected to the council last year moved to fire City Mgr. Paul W. Salfen. The three out-maneuvered their older colleagues by introducing an ordinance to reduce the required vote for such a dismissal from 4-1 to 3-2.

The ordinance is on the agenda again tomorrow as is election of a new mayor for the coming year.

Councilman Herbert T. Winter last month threatened recall of the three younger councilmen over the proposed firing of Salfen.

Suit Is Filed Over Tickets

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A San Mateo County resident has filed a $1.5 million lawsuit because he was arrested for traffic warrants even though he had paid his fines.

Gurdaman Duggal, 34, Foster City, said in his Superior Court complaint that he had paid his fines on Dec. 12 but because of a records foulup here was arrested in Foster City on Jan. 4 and had to spend the night in the San Mateo County Jail at Redwood City.

Duggal sought $400,000 from San Francisco, $200,000 from Foster City, $200,000 from San Mateo County and $700,000 from five Foster City policemen.

Trial Set On Driving Count

A Tamalpais Valley man arrested on suspicion of drunken driving the day after an appeals court overruled his conviction for making obscene movies has been ordered to appear May 24 for trial on the driving violation count.

Lloyd K. Downton was arrested early Jan. 30 at the Alexander Avenue exit from Highway 101 in Sausalito after attending a celebration of the court ruling.

A California Highway patrolman arrested him because his car was weaving and because he failed a roadside sobriety test, according to the patrol.

Heald Awards Scholarships

Novato students have won three of four full tuition scholarships to Heald Business College in San Francisco, according to Mitzi S. Ulrickson, college director.

Winners of the scholarships, valued at $1,500 each, were Jeanne Marie Bywater and Debra Ann Caldwell, both of Novato High School and Lori Sue Winterboer of San Marin High School.

The winners were from a field of 10 finalists from high schools in northern California.

Hub Recreation Classes Scheduled

A new four-week session of recreation classes — ranging from yoga and bellydancing to antique repair and tiny tots — will be held by the San Anselmo Parks and Recreation Department beginning May 21.

The department has also announced its cosponsorship of the Ross Valley Chess Club, which meets each Tuesday at Rubson Park at 7 p.m., and a folk dancing club which meets at 7 p.m. on the first Friday of each month at Isabel Cook School.

Applications Available For Summer School

Applications for the San Rafael School System's elementary summer session are available at the district office, Third and E Streets, elementary summer school director Joseph L. Marrino announced today.

Applications for summer school, which begins June 22 for a five week period, should be returned to neighborhood schools as soon as possible, he said, because staff hiring depends on enrollment.

Summer sessions will be held at Bahia Vista, Coleman, Gallinas, Glenwood, Short and Davidson schools, according to Marrino.

Guns Stolen

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Retired Academy Award winning movie director Leroy Prinz Tuesday reported the theft of a $35,000 gun collection that included a pistol once carried by Nazi leader Hermann Goering.

Apartments For Rent (Unfurnished)—2720

Is your apartment or house standing vacant — and losing you money?

Have you ever thought about how much money you lose each day or week your apartment stands vacant? Here's a chart to point out the drain on your income:

YOU ARE LOSING

If Your Monthly Rental Price Is:	Every Day	Every Week	Every Two Weeks
$150	$ 5.00	$35.00	$70.00
175	5.83	40.81	81.62
200	6.67	46.69	93.38
225	7.50	52.50	105.00
250	8.33	58.31	116.62
275	9.16	64.12	128.24
300	10.00	70.00	140.00
325	10.83	75.81	151.62
350	11.66	81.62	163.24

(Based on a 30-day month)

Add to this the cost of maintaining a vacant apartment and you have an even larger loss. Doesn't it make sense to: FIRST, run an I-J Classified ad, & SECOND, to take a little time and run a BETTER ad — more benefits, more discription, less abbreviations (82% of readers don't know the meaning of AEK).

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Illinois Outbreak Best Shows Measle Vaccine Effectiveness

The measles outbreak (regular measles or rubeola) in two Illinois communities demonstrated the value of the vaccine. Almost all cases occurred among unvaccinated children, despite a state law requiring immunization on entering school. One community had 54 cases and another had 217. The majority of victims had not been vaccinated. In contrast, the rate was very low among children who received the vaccine or who had had measles.

MEANWHILE, NO CASES of measles were seen in a Lutheran and Roman Catholic school where vaccination was mandatory, even though there was close contact between the unaffected children and members of the community that had developed measles during the outbreak. In neighboring school districts where a high percentage received the vaccine, only three children developed measles. This speaks well for the protection provided by measles vaccine.

Measles, a highly communicable disease, is caused by a respiratory virus. It spreads from one person to another by infectious droplets. Articles soiled with viable respiratory secretions also spread the disease. Few susceptible individuals escape when it occurs in epidemic proportions. The incubation period is 10 to 12 days, but the youngster is contagious for several days before the rash crops out.

MEASLES IN THE early stages resembles a cold with fever, cough, malaise, runny nose, and watery eyes. Telltale evidence is seen along the inside of the cheeks (white spots surrounded by a red halo — Koplik's spots). The well-known rash makes its debut on the face and behind the ears. From here it spreads and, in severe cases, the child looks and feels ill for up to 10 days.

Complications such as pneumonia and ear infections usually stem from secondary bacterial invaders. Encephalitis is an exception in that the brain damage is caused by the measles virus itself. There is no specific remedy. However, aspirin keeps the temperature at a respectable level. To ward off serious complications, the use of the preventive vaccine is stressed.

Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to Dr. Van Dellen, c/o the Independent-Journal.

HEADACHES, NERVES

G. N. writes: Are there any tests to determine whether headaches are due to nervousness?

REPLY

Yes, but mainly by using tests that exclude other causes of headache. When the results are negative, the physician must probe the events preceding the headache, along with the emotional and nervous makeup of the individual. Incidentally, most headaches can be traced to tension, fatigue, and anxiety — conditions frequently related to nervousness.

BLOOD IN EYE

Y. R. writes: My 81-year-old husband has blood in his eye. He has no pain. What could cause this?

REPLY

Hemorrhage into the eye occurs rather frequently when the vessels are fragile or hardened, or perhaps your husband is taking certain drugs, such as aspirin. Bleeding into the white of the eye has the best outcome, because the condition is on the surface and does not interfere with sight. The blood absorbs completely.

Classes In Drama Set For Children

Drama classes for Southern Marin youngsters from 3 to 9 years old are being given Tuesday and Thursdays at the Strawberry Recreation District's community building with a play planned for later this month.

Children from 3 to 5 may join one group, which meets Tuesdays from 2:50 to 3:25 p.m., while those 6 to 9 may join the other, which rehearses from 3:30 to 5 p.m., according to director Linda I. Polfus.

The older children will present a play written by Miss Polfus, "The Enchanted Girl," in late May, she said. Exact dates will be announced later.

She also said a drama group for older children aged 9 through 12 will begin this summer. Children interested in any of the groups may obtain further information from David E. Roberts, district recreation director, whose offices are at the community building.

The drama classes are not restricted to children who live in the recreation district, Miss Polfus said.

Chopped Onions For Ear Ache?

LONDON (UPI) — In the county of Northampton, a doctor has reported, some of his patients think the way to cure an earache is to stuff chopped onions in the patient's ear.

For depression, he said, some Northampton residents eat fresh dandelions and to cure a chilblain, others soak their feet for 30 minutes in a lavatory.

Dr. C.P. Elliott-Binns, writing in the current edition of Medical News, said he found 320 such folk remedies used by some of his 1,000 Northampton patients.

One cure he said was likely to die was putting raw meat on warts. Meat prices, he said, are too high.

Die Off Of Carp Probed

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The state Department of Fish and Game is investigating the die off of thousands of carp throughout the Sacramento-San Joaquin Delta.

The department reported Tuesday that its personnel have collected diseased carp and subjected them to analysis in the department's fish pathology section but no exact cause of the deaths has yet been determined.

However, Dick Beland of the department said the cause was believed to be a undefined epidemic disease condition rather than a water quality problem.

"It's a widespread die off from one end of the delta to the other involving thousands of fish," Beland said, adding no other fish are threatened.

Unions Defend Policy On Dues

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ten labor unions have asked a federal court to bar two right-to-work organizations from filing suits around the country against union shop contracts.

The unions said Tuesday that the National Right to Work Legal Defense Foundation and the National Right to Work Committee have filed 20 suits around the nation challenging union shop contracts, which require employes to join unions or pay dues in order to hold their jobs.

The unions' suit, filed in U.S. District Court, claimed that as long as the groups receive contributions from employers the suits violate a federal law forbidding employer associations from financing suits.

In 1941, the Federal Communications Commission approved the regular scheduling of commercial television broadcasts.

In 1945, the Allies announced the unconditional surrender of Nazi troops in Italy and southern and western Austria.

In 1972, FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover died at the age of 77. Also that day, 91 persons were killed in a mine fire at Kellogg, Idaho.

San Rafael air quality yesterday:
Oxidants, clean air.
Nitrogen dioxide, clean air.
Carbon monoxide, clean air.
Smoke particles, clean air.
Other areas:
San Francisco, clean air.
San Jose, light air pollution.

Colorless oxidants, brownish nitrogen dioxide and smoke particles aggravate respiratory diseases. Carbon monoxide causes dizziness, headaches and slows reflexes. Smoke particles come largely from industrial sources, the other three come primarily from motor vehicles.

Barger Pleads Guilty To Help Girl Friend

Barger, 34, also was returned his Hell's Angel belt buckle by Judge Harold B. Hove.

Hove sentenced Barger to one to 10 years in prison for false imprisonment and kidnaping and one to 15 years for possession of a gun by an exconvict in connection with a 1972 incident. The sentences will be served concurrently with his current 10 years to life term for narcotics possession.

Barger entered the guilty pleas after Deputy District Attorney Donald Whyte agreed to drop narcotics possession charges against Sharon Gruhlke, 23, a former Livermore beauty queen who has lived with Barger for several years.

The jury that convicted Barger was unable to reach a verdict on Miss Gruhlke. Both were charged after officers found $10,000 worth of heroin, cocaine and marijuana in their Oakland Hills home last May.

Four other Hells's Angels pleaded guilty to lesser charges in connection with the beating and kidnaping of two men by the motorcycle gang in Oakland on Jan. 22, 1972. The two men were found by police bound and gagged in a car trunk after a high speed chase through the Oakland hills.

The four motorcyclists, who had been scheduled to go on trial for kidnaping, assault with a deadly weapon and attempted murder, pleaded guilty instead to false imprisonment.

Fisheries Laboratory Continues

The Tiburon Fisheries Laboratory expects to continue operations on the former Naval Net Depot property, where the U.S. Bureau of Mines' marine minerals depot was closed two months ago.

The fisheries laboratory, which is under the Commerce Department's National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, has received no order to close, Richard Shomura, its director, said today. In fact, Shomura is now preparing a plan for its permanent operation, including replacement of some of the old net depot buidings.

Current project of the laboratory is a study of the effects of oil in salt water on fishes and other marine vertebrates. About 25 persons are employed, Shomura said. More than 40 were at work at the marine minerals depot until it was closed by government order.

The Tiburon facility is the only research facility that has access to the bay, Shomura declared. Therefore he feels it should be kept.

The laboratory director said he would like to see the property developed as a marine science center, and has approached several institutions of higher education with this idea. "U.C. Davis is interested," he reported.

The laboratory occupies parts of four buildings on the 30-acre property and makes use of the pier.

Shomura said he saw no conflict between continued operations of the laboratory and acquisition of the rest of the property, now unused, for a county park. He said he had discussed such as idea briefly with Pierre W. Joske, county parks and recreation director.

Plea Entered To Auto Theft

Ronald Roland Cardinalli, 18, of San Rafael has pleaded guilty to a felony auto theft charge on condition he receives no more than six months in jail.

The plea bargain was arranged Monday with the district attorney and Judge David Menary Jr. of Marin Superior Court, who set sentencing for June 4 to obtain a probation report.

Cardinalli was arrested Jan. 20 by San Rafael police at Fourth and E streets soon after a 1967 BMW was taken from the BMW Auto Zentrum at 1826 Fourth Street.

Buried In Cement

TYLER, Tex. (UPI) — Cement mixture spilling from a broken chute poured over construction worker Harweda Jones Monday, burying him under 15 feet of concrete. He was dead by the time rescue workers were able to dig his body out.

Denial To Bad Checks Is Entered

A Mill Valley man has denied in Marin Municipal Court that he wrote three bad checks totaling $275.09 to Sausalito stores last July.

Following the innocent plea Monday, Judge Gary W. Thomas of Marin Municipal Court set a preliminary hearing for Peter Edler May 22.

Police said they ran a computer check and found he was wanted on a $1,000 warrant charging him with writing checks his bank account could not pay for.

The allegedly bad checks were for $103.94 at Ronnie's Camera Shop, 789 Bridgeway, July 2, and for $71.40 and $99.75 last July 1 and July 2 to Hanna Leathers, 777 Bridgeway.

BUT TOO MANY?

Boston Will Welcome Bicentennial Visitors

By RALPH HUBLEY
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

BOSTON — The British are coming! The British are coming! And so are the Germans and the Japanese — to "help" New England observe the American Revolution bicentennial.

While the welcome mat is out, local preservationists are deeply concerned over what over-stimulated tourism may do to historical and natural treasures.

The thrust of much overseas travel promotion today is to visit the U.S. during its bicentennial celebrations to enjoy the special events scheduled during 1975-76. In order to make travel in the United States possible for overseas visitors, special transportation and accommodation rates have been arranged with airlines, buses and trains. But what at first looked like a wonderful opportunity to turn the tide of outgoing dollars, now takes on more the appearance of an undertow.

New Englanders are hoping the British Bicentennial Liaison Committee now in session will urge visitors to come to the U.S. this year or the next to avoid the huge crowd.

"You will certainly be most welcome, but why would you British want to come at this time? Won't it be a bit embarrassing for you?" an American travel agent asked his colleague from London.

"Not at all," the Briton replied. "It was one of the best things that could have happened to the empire. We lost a colony but gained a very helpful ally. The rapid growth of America also has helped to spread the English language here and around the world. You see we, too, are celebrating."

Will New England be able to handle the expected 20 million visitors during the bicentennial period? Finding a place to stay seems to be the most pressing problem.

"The American Revolution bicentennial celebration will be the greatest motivator of travel the world has ever seen," predicted William D. Toohey, chairman of Discover America Travel Organizations, "that is —if in our rush to build facilities, resorts, and attractions for these travelrs, we do not destroy the basic commodity the travel industry has to sell."

Toohey was making a plea to preserve the environment while accommodating friends from abroad. How can the lovely rolling countryside of Lexington and Concord be appreciated if lined with motels or bumper-to-bumper traffic? Or can you imagine the Old Man of the Mountain with concession stands right under his nose? The continuing struggle to save his features from erosion would be lost without a tranquil setting in which to observe them.

Also nearly all national landmarks need major repairs. Costs of these run to thousands of dollars. Most of the damage reportedly comes from wear and tear of tourists. Thus the preservationist's concerns over the onrushing crowds.

Federal funds are available for restoring designated national landmarks. But many historic buildings and sites are not so designated. Money for these must be raised locally. Some bicentennial projects will be eligible for federal funds on a matching grant basis. Cities and towns in Massachusetts, for instance, recently were notified that a $40,000 grant has been made available to them.

But what about handling the crowds? Boston, for instance, anticipates nearly 16 million visitors during the 20 months of major bicentennial activities. Since Boston is one of the first areas forced to face up to handling such crowds, what the city does or fails to do will interest other areas.

Boston already may have begun preparations too late. The following areas are the most critical:

Accommodations. Most hotel space already has been booked, even that of a new hotel to be built in Cambridge and the addition to a Back Bay hotel now under construction. There are not enough nearby camping areas, and proposals to open new areas have run into opposition from naturalists and other conservation groups. The suggestion for housing guests in individual homes has met much skepticism even though it worked very successfully in Japan during Expo '70. The private home system was only a partial success at Montreal's Expo '67.

Transportation. Traffic normally is a little lighter in Boston during summer vacation months.But parking space is still at a premium. Imagine trying to find additional parking space near the USS Constitution? And all tourists should be advised against using highways to Cape Cod or to Maine or New Hampshire Friday afternoon and evening and also Sunday afternoon and evening when the traffic is returning to Boston.

One transportation expert has presented specific recommendations for relieving traffic problems in each of the six states.

William W. Harsch, of the Geo-Transport Foundation of New England, said Connecticut needs a "transit-based strategy" where visitors with a common destination will travel jointly, either on buses, railroads, or minibuses. He said numerous points should be connected in a statewide system, using portal parking sites.

Harsch said Rhode Island needs a "transportation hub strategy" with three or four portal parking sites, with Providence as the transportation hub to points of interest in the state. He said the Rhode Island situation is very promising.

"The three northern states — Maine, New Hampshire, and Vermont — need a low-density strategy," he continued, "using the interstate highway system with bottlenecks ironed out. Bennington, Vt., and other attractions should use satellite parking and mini-buses to prevent crowding at historical sites. Arcadia National Park could use this system, too."

In Massachusetts, Harsch suggested a Boston target area that would include busways, night delivery of goods, staggered working hours as a transit strategy. He also recommended a visitors computerized information center to schedule accommodations and direct best mode of transportation.

The strategy suggested by the New England Heritage Trail Foundation is to begin early and scatter the visitors.

"Through 1974," a spokesman for New England Innkeepers Association said, "we can take care of more history-minded tourists than now come to New England. But in the centennial years, neither 'they' nor 'we' will be happy over service, accommodations, and the increased travel. It is the obvious desire of New Englanders to do the thing well, to be gracious hosts, that is behind their present concern."

The foundation urges visitors to follow the New England Heritage Trail in all six regional states. A brochure-map published by the New England Innkeepers is available free upon request from their office at 25 Huntington Avenue, Boston, Mass. 02131. It outlines the routes to follow. Historic sites, monuments, and battle locations are identified. Church towers, like the one of Paul Revere fame, old forts where engagements heightened the feeling for liberty and gave birth to America, stand beside the Heritage Trail.

State tourism offices in each capital city have more travel literature to supplement the Innkeepers' map. The New England Council at the Statler Office Building, Park Square, Boston, 02116, also has a tourist office.

Boston, too, wants to scatter visitors off the well-worn Freedom Trail by setting up other "trails." The Boston 200 Guidebook will list a Commercial Trail, Architectural Trail, Tea Party Trail, Black Heritage Trail, Education Trail, Religion Trail, and Science and Education Trails. But where these trails cross, the only advice now offered is "Watch out!"

On the more optimistic side, the bicentennial observances are an opportunity to focus attention on the need for protecting and restoring certain neglected historic buildings and areas.

For example, National Historic Preservation Week, May 6-12, will point out many buildings having architectural and historical significance that are in danger of being destroyed. One of the landmarks threatened in New England is the Union Station at New London, Conn. The campaign to save it is led by the National Trust for Historic preservation, a private organization chartered by Congress.

The most encouraging sign is the availability of expert advice in New England on preservation, restoration, and research. Not only are the universities actively engaged in this field, but New Englanders are old hands at the game.Old Sturbridge Village in western Massachusetts, Strawberry Banke in Portsmouth, N. H., and the restoration and upkeep of historic houses in Newport, R.I.: Concord, Plymouth, and Boston, Mass., have been examples for other areas.

Funding of restoration projects is the major hurdle. President Nixon has allocated $18 million in his budget for the restoration of places of "bicentennial interest." This includes other areas besides New England, so there will be some stiff competition for these funds.

Only some of the shrines and landmarks in Boston, however, are on the national parks register and eligible for matching funds from the federal government. There are some monuments that neither the city nor the state control. So renovation will have to be left up to associations involved.

But in the last analysis it will be private citizens, the "minutemen" of the 1970's, who will be called to meet the emergency. Their standing orders to themselves might be:

1. Reinforce renovation campaigns.
2. Harbor a visitor.
3. Retreat from historic attractions.
4. But stand before the tourist charge with open arms, a smile, and a helping hand.

New Dialogue With Chile Is Expected

By JAMES NELSON GOODSELL
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

Washington has cleared the air a little and the result may be a resumption of suspended United States-Chile talks.

That's the way the United States decision not to indemnify International Telephone and Telegraph Corp. for the takeover by Chile of its Chilean telephone subsidiary is interpreted in both Washington and Santiago.

The suspended talks, aimed at working out some sort of modus vivendi between the two nations, have been stalled since December. Domestic events in both countries — President Nixon's inauguration in January and legislative balloting in Chile in March — made continuation of the talks infeasible for several months.

But elections in Chile took place more than a month ago and other factors have apparently held up a resumption of talks. For one thing, relations between the two nations have shown a continuing deterioration since the first talks were held in Washington in mid-December.

Moreover, Chile has been less than enthuisastic about resuming bilateral negotiations during the Senate hearings on ITT efforts to block Salvador Allende Gossens' assumption of the Chilean presidency in 1970.

Now, however, that the Overseas Private Investment Corporation (OPIC) has denied ITT's $92.5-million claim in connection with Chile's expropriation of ITT's telephone operation, sources in Washington indicate that a new move will soon be made to get the talks going again. Similar hints are coming from Santiago as well.

OPIC, the government corporation that insures United States businesses against losses from expropriations of their foreign operations, ruled that ITT had not fully lived up to its "contractual obligations" in connection with its relations with the Chilean Government.

Bradford Mills, the OPIC president, in announcing the decision to deny the ITT compensation claim, said the firm "failed to comply with its obligation under the OPIC contracts to disclose material information to OPIC," adding that ITT "increased OPIC's risk of loss" by its actions in Chile.

Although he refused to elaborate on these comments, it appeared to most observers to be a reference to the steadily mounting series of disclosures coming from the Senate hearings into ITT's activities in Chile. Those disclosures show that ITT sought actively to prevent Allende's election as President in September 1970.

President Allende says that Chile will not compensate ITT for the expropriated assets. "No one can dream that we are going to pay even half a cent to this multinational company which was on the verge of plunging Chile into civil war," he is quoted as saying.

The OPIC decision was im.ediately protested by ITT officials, and they promised to carry the matter to arbitration, where the decision could be rejected or amended. But the

Cost Of Oil From Arabs Is High

By HARRY B. ELLIS
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

WASHINGTON, D.C. — President Nixon's energy message fails to spell out for the American people the enormous financial — and possibly diplomatic — cost of buying oil from the Arabs.

Even today the United States pays foreign suppliers, mostly Middle Eastern, more than $5 billion yearly to import oil and gas. And this, so to speak is a drop in the bucket.

Experts say that by 1985 the U.S. may be paying anywhere up to $30 billion each year for foreign fuel to keep its economy moving at the present pace.

Most of this money will flow into Arab coffers. "Shortly," declared a top-ranking American expert, "a few Arab kings and sheikhs will preside over the largest single pool of medium and long-term investment capital in the history of the world."

By 1985, he said, the tiny Persian Gulf sheikhdom of Abu Dhabi — with a population of 70,000 — will have an annual income of $4 billion.

Saudi Arabia, whose town and desert population is variously estimated at between 5 and 11 million persons, may have a $16 billion annual income in little more than a decade.

A White House background paper is somewhat more specific. "By 1985," it says, "if present trends were allowed to continue, the U.S. would have to import from 50 to 60 per cent of (its) total oil supply and 30 to 40 per cent of this may have to be from Eastern Hemisphere (chiefly Arab) sources."

Only if Americans, the paper continues, agree to huge expansion of domestic energy production — at great cost to the pocketbook and possibly the environment — can U.S. dependence on Arab oil finally be reduced.

In the interim, no matter how swiftly the United States moves to boost domestic supplies of oil, coal, and natural gas, the Persian Gulf will become a magnet for many billions of U.S. dollars.

This gives enormous leverage to Arab leaders. Their share of the floating Eurodollar pool, available for quick movement in and out of dollars, will be vast.

New Dialogue With Chile Is Expected

This latest development in the ITT case will undoubtedly have its effects on Chile where many of President Allende's supporters and more recently the President, himself, have publicly expressed the belief that the United States Government was somehow involved in the ITT maneuvering to keep Allende from the Chilean presidency.

For instance; although the Central Intelligence Agency apparently rejected the ITT maneuvering, the CIA was suggesting to ITT and others a different sort of action aimed at the same end.

Testimony before the Senate subcommittee probing the issue shows that the CIA gave ITT some specific hints of how the company could go about creating economic chaos in Chile — and thus in some way work against the Allende presidency.

There has been a feeling in Washington that with such information coming to light, the Allende government would be in no particular hurry to resume its interrupted talks with Washington.

But now that a government agency has ruled against ITT, citing indirectly the maneuvering it carried on in Chile, there is widespread feeling in Washington that the possibility of an early resumption of talks is growing.

Meanwhile, Chilean Foreign Minister Clodomiro Almeyda, while visiting Washington, said that ITT's remaining holdings in Chile — two Sheraton hotels, a telephone equipment manufacturing company, and a variety of other smaller activities — could become targets of government intervention or takeover.

"The present activities of ITT in Chile," he said, "are in a very precarious position."

THE BOREDOM BATTLE — Industries are seeking ways to attain greater satisfaction on assembly lines such as this one in a General Motors plant in Baltimore, Md.

Industries Taking On 'New Look'

By MONTY HOYT
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

ELSAH, Ill. — What to do to wipe out the "blue-collar blues," the "white-collar blahs," the "work-a-day woes"? A ground swell of concern about dull, dehumanizing work is bringing radical changes to the work scene.

Responding to the call for "workers' liberation," some companies have engineered a face-lifting in plant operations. Employees are beginning to work together as teams and assembling an entire product rather than an isolated part; assembly lines in some cases are being replaced and various job enrichment programs are being undertaken.

A recent department of Health, Education, and Welfare study indicated that 20 per cent of American workers were dissatisfied with their jobs because of "dull, repetitive, seemingly meaningless tasks, offering little challenge or autonomy." Independent studies by General Motors found disillusionment especially among young workers ran as high as 35 per cent and had markedly invaded white-collar positions.

Still, union leaders and many workers themselves do not see changing the job structure as the primary answer. "Money or the lack of it is the most important factor whether workers feel alienated or not," said William Winpisinger, the outspoken general vice-president of the International Association of Machinists at a recent conference on "dehumanization on the job" at Principia College here.

"I don't think workers are ever as happy as poets think they ought to be," he quipped. Yes, working conditions could stand improvement, but most workers don't go to the factories "in search of self-fulfillment. They need a paycheck. Work in a facotry or on the assembly line may be dull and dehumanizing to the behavioral scientist, but for the workingman it's bread and butter on the table."

Corporate approaches to humanizing work vary, as the conference brought out:

Sweden's major automobile manufacturer, Volvo, is breaking down the traditional assembly line in a new plant it is building.

"If you just add one dull job to another and call it job enlargement, you're not doing very much," says Berth Jonsson of Volvo's corporate planning department. "We're trying to get vertical job development."

Rather than an assembly line, where each worker performs one task, the new Kalmer plant will stress a team approach.

From 20 to 25 teams, each averaging 17 workers, will divide up the work of assembling the 8,000 components of the cars. One team will be responsible for the electrical system; one for the interior; and so on. Each worker will be encouraged to learn all the skills the team performs, which will be reflected in his paycheck.

The team decides how it will meet the production schedule; there will be very little supervison. However, an advanced quality-control system will give the team feedback within a few hours on its work. "This gives the worker almost immediate recognition for his work," Jonsson stresses.

Chassis will be driven from one work area to another by means of an electric-powered carrier. Instead of facing car bodies at preselected intervals as on an assembly line, work teams will push a button to start or stop the carrier. In this way, they can finish their work at their own speed and name their own work breaks.

"You can ventilate, put in air-conditioning, better lighting, and pipe in music, but unless you change the quality of human interaction you're not going to make long-term improvements," states Dr. Robin Widery, associate professor of communication at the General Motors Institute.

"We are beginning to focus attention back to individuals and away from machines, rather than just giving it lip-service," he says.

Through seminars, training courses, and consultations, GM has been working with its managers to improve motivation and communications and to tackle the problems of employee dissatisfaction.

"If you start at the top of a system, changes affect the whole organization. But if the changes only affect the bottom of the hierarchy, they never work their way up," Dr. Widgery says.

The Ralston Purina Co., pioneering what it calls an "operations improvement" program for four years, has realized cost savings of $1 million in the first year alone.

"We realized that part of the alienation of employees is that they feel invisible in an organization," states John R. Schmid, director of operations improvement.

Through periodic workshops, a cross section of employes meets for several days to discuss topics such as resistance to change, leadership characteristics, and achieving basic human needs. But crucial to the workshop: each participant must come up with an action plan to implement some change in the work program.

"We're providing an environment where people can speak out. No matter how lowly someone may feel on the job, this is his opportunity to shine. In real terms nothing is sacred, everything can be changed," Schmid stresses.

Another tangible result of the seminars and changes brought about, is that absenteeism company-wide has been cut 50 per cent.

But in spite of such efforts to change work and working conditions, critics like James D. Wright, executive director of the Institute of Workers' Rights and a former steelworker, responds:

"When I think of humanizing work the first thing I think about is money."

Job enrichment, concurs Winpisinger, "is nothing more than the old time-and-motion studies in sheep's clothing."

Proxmire Is Going After Armed Forces 'Servants'

By DANA ADAMS SCHMIDT

OFFICERS' AIDES — The duties of an officer's aide are many and varied. Here a group of enlisted aides at Ft. Lee, Va., get some hints on flower arranging.

(Christian Science Monitor Photo)

WASHINGTON — In George Washington's day they were called "strikers," because one of their main duties was to "strike" officers' tents, putting them up and taking them down.

Nowadays in the Army they're called "enlisted aides." In the Navy they are "stewards," in the Air Force, "airman aides," in the Marine Corps, "specialists."

But they all do very much the same sort of duty — serving general officers, admirals, and in some cases (Navy) captains as butlers, drivers, cooks, and "maids-of-all-work."

Their duties may include cleaning, washing dishes, taking care of the dog, dusting, vacuuming, polishing, waxing, answering telephones, picking up groceries, shining shoes, arranging flowers, and wrapping the general's gold braid in the tarnish-proof paper, or driving the general and his wife, and picking up the kids from school, or bartending, or baby-sitting.

Although they are enlisted in the armed services, they wear "cook's whites," or black trousers with gray stripes and double breasted waistcoat and black swallowtail coat with satin on the reverse, or just a plain sack suit, depending on what they're doing.

But Sen. William Proxmire, the Wisconsin Democrat, wants to abolish them altogether. He is indignant that men in uniform should perform such services, which he considers demeaning.

Furthermore, he says there is no place in the U.S. armed forces for "this kind of pampering of generals and admirals." He says it's a waste of taxpayers' money and "the American people won't stand for it."

He demands the immediate closing of the Army's Fort Lee school and any similar training in the other services.

At last count, according to the General Accounting Office, there were 1,722 of these "aides" in the various armed services looking after 970 high-ranking officers and drawing a total of $13,231,259 a year in pay.

One-fifth of all the aides were on duty in the Washington area and 467 overseas.

The Army chief of staff, Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, and the chief of naval operations, Adm. Elmo R. Zumwalt Jr., each have eight, the highest numbers, or one more than the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Adm. Thomas H. Moorer. Generally generals are entitled to one "aide" for every star on their shoulders.

The Army, at its school for the enlisted aides at Ft. Lee, Va., maintains a racial balance among its aides, 17 per cent of whom are black. But in the Navy 98 per cent are Filipinos and in the Air Force and Marines more than half are blacks. All the services assert it now is policy to bring about racial balance in this kind of service.

Although Proxmire's eloquence produced snickers in the Senate, the armed services nonetheless have come back with a defense of the time-honored practice. The core of their argument is that generals and admirals are busy people, and, in many cases, their wives are, too, and they don't have time to attend to these domestic chores themselves. They would find it difficult to hire their domestic help from the civilian market because they are so much on the move.

In some cases it is desirable to have servicemen working in a general's home for security reasons. Finally, it is useful for such high-ranking officers to have men in their service who are also prepared to look after them "in the field" when necessary.

At Fort Lee, where 14 instructors put 24 students at a time through the eight-week "enlisted aides" course, the subject looks different through the eyes of men who have spent a lifetime in such service or who have volunteered to be trained for it.

Warrant Officer George C. Yount, who spent 20 years in the personal service of Gen. Douglas MacArthur and has been instructing food advisers and club managers for the Army for the past eight years, calls work as an "enlisted aide" a "pretty good life."

"You get to be part of the household," he said. "The kids get to like you, and the pets like you."

Nick Taddeo of Reading, Pa., who already had been through an Army cooking school of 13 weeks, volunteered for "enlisted aides" to learn "gourmet cooking — things like hors d'oeuvres and canapes."

Sp. 5/c George Sutherland of Montrose, Colo., said he had been in the Army five years and planned to be a 20-year serviceman. "I've been working in mess halls for five years," he said, "and I just felt if I knew more I could please people better."

CHILDREN AT PLAY — South African children play in front of their homes in Cape Town, presently all in a stir over a recently published U.S. State Department booklet proposing guidelines for American industries operating in South Africa.

Booklet Is Causing Industry Stir

By FREDERIC HUNTER
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

JOHANNESBURG — A recently published U.S. State Department booklet is causing quite a stir here.

Titled "Employment Practices of U.S. Firms in South Africa," the 10-page booklet proposes a set of guidelines for American companies operating in South Africa. Judging from local press reaction, its most startling suggestion is that the companies should pay their African employees at least $140 a month.

By American standards — which white standards here approximate — this wage seems incredibly low. But it is three times more than many black workers here receive. Such a wage would lift non-white wage earners out of the poverty in which most of them live.

According to the booklet, companies have found that higher wages mean lower turnover of employees and that improved diet increases productivity.

The booklet sets out against the idea, widely prevalent here, that businessmen can do very little to improve the conditions of their African employees. This attitude, critics say, has permitted businessmen, many of whom complain about inefficient manpower usage, to exploit a cheap labor market with hardly a twinge of conscience.

The booklet cites some cases where the suggestions have been successfully implemented. The suggestions include:

Giving equal pay for equal work.

Providing better training for African employees.

Upgrading fringe benefits, including equal sick leave and equal pension benefits.

Providing legal and other assistance to employees.

Opening some jobs reserved for whites to blacks.

Although non-whites constitute the vast majority of the labor force here, they have few legal means to exert bargaining pressures. Prohibited from effective trade union activity, they are at the mercy of wage determinations made exclusively by whites. As a result, the State Department booklet's suggestions seem extraordinary here.

U.S. officials state that the majority of American firms here realize the need to upgrade the conditions of their black workers. But only two years ago John Chettle, the South African Foundation's representative in Washington, wrote, "One gets the impression that all too often the manager of an American enterprise in South Africa is judged purely on the evidence of the balance sheet."

The South African Government was not consulted about publication of the booklet, U.S. officials say. But the booklet is not likely to strain relations between the two countries.

South African leaders realize the importance of foreign capital to their economy.

"Without America's 14 per cent of our foreign investments we would still be okay," one such leader said in a recent interview. "But without it and Britain's 61 per cent we would be in real danger."

Many critics of U.S. wage practices feel the booklet is hardly enough. Those who oppose South Africa's policy of apartheid question what dent the booklet will make.

Weathercasters Are Critical Of U.S. Weather Service

By LANCE CARDEN
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

BOSTON, Mass. — Does the U.S. Natioanl Weather Service cater to a special interest group, rather than the general public?

Some obviously irritated weather forecasters say it does. They say this tendency is reflected in recent weather service budget decisions.

Some Boston-based forecasters have two general grievances with the weather service:

They say the agency does a better job of serving the airline industry than the public.

They accuse weather-service officials of a "head-in-the-sand" approach to forecasting which continues to put time, money, and effort into long-range (longer than four-day) weather forecasts — despite a lack of evidence that these forecasts have much validity.

Dr. Fred Ward, weather forecaster for WNAC-TV in Boston, calls the weather service's five-day and monthly weather forecasts "useless." He charges weather-service officials with "game playing."

"Everyone wants to know what the weather will be next week," Dr. Ward says, "but the fact is that forecasts beyond four days have no demonstrated value."

Norman MacDonald of WBZ-TV in Boston maintains "there is no skill in forecasting temperatures beyond four days, and no skill in precipitation forecasts beyond 2½ days.

"If five-day forecasts are accurate, why revise them every day?" he asks.

MacDonald holds a master's degree from California Institute of Technology and is a member of the research staff of the Meteorology Department at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT). He and Dr. Ward, who completed his doctorate at MIT, are presently writing a book on worldwide wind systems.

They both serve the public as TV weather forecasters, and — as MacDonald puts it — they have long felt "that the general public is the victim" of National Weather Service policies giving airlines a higher priority than the general public.

"The airlines are suppoed to be profit-making companies," MacDonald adds, "yet they get about a third of the weather service effort."

Dr. Ward points out that it is natural, if unfortunate, that the weather service should cater to airline needs, since most weather service field stations are located at airfields and since the Federal Aviation Administration controls one of the major weather service teletype networks.

Of immediate concern is the new weather service budget.

On Jan. 29, when the annual budget was submitted to Congress, it was announced that the National Weather Service would:

Close 45 state and six regional climatology offices across the country, as well as the national climatology office in Washington, D.C.

Eliminate four environmental meteorological support units measuring urban air pollution, and reduce the observation programs of five additional units.

End its Ocean Weather Patrol Ship program with the exception of one ship which will remain on the Atlantic Coast in the otherwise empty triangle between Cape Hatteras, Nantucket, and Bermuda.

Temporarily deactivate its Research Flight Facility at Miami — including the well-known Project Storm Fury studying the effects of hurricane "seeding" in the hope of someday controlling hurricane destruction.

Boston-area private weathercasters are particularly concerned about the loss of weather service climatology offices.

The efforts of these offices will not be duplicated either by the National Climatic Center in Asheville, N.C., or by weather service field stations, says Peter R. Leavitt. Leavitt is vice-president of Northeast Weather Service, Inc., of Bedford, Mass., one of the world's largest weather consulting companies.

The climatology offices have been "invaluable," he says, in interpreting and refining local weather records. Among other things, these public records provide reliable data for the settlement of weather-related legal disputes, for the forecasting of future energy demand by public utilities and fuel oil companies, for the refinement of local variances in storm insurance rates, and for the calculation of exact and money-saving building-design criteria, he explained.

Officials of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA), which includes the National Weather Service, say they have been forced to make drastic cuts in NOAA's budget.

Authorized by Congress to spend approximately $397 million, NOAA's operating budget for fiscal 1973 was cut to some $353.7 million by the Office of Management and Budget (OMB), NOAA officials explain.

Although this figure is still some $17 million above fiscal 1972 program costs, they say the OMB cuts necessitated a reduction of approximately $7 million in various ongoing projects because of new, high-priority programs and responsibilities.

They list improvements in National Satellite and National Disaster Warning Services, on advanced weather computer program at Princeton University, two cooperative international field programs, as well as new responsibilities under the recently passed Marine Protection, Research, and Sanctuaries Act and the Marine Mammals Protection Act among programs demanding some $25 million of NOAA's fiscal 1973 budget.

Boston private weather forecasters say the large national investment in the weather satellite program is not in proportion to the value of these satellites for U. S. weather forecasting.

One does not need to know the weather "way out in the Atlantic" in order to prepare a 3-day U.S. weather forecast, Dr. Ward comments.

"Ships, buoys, and balloons in and around the country can do the job better and cheaper," he says. But, he concedes that — if you think long-range forecasts are valid — the worldwide information provided by satellites becomes more valuable.

One weather-service spokesman commented that the agency is required by law to provide airline weather services.

'The Waltons' Catch TV Viewers Fancy

FAMILY PORTRAIT — Television's Walton's, three generations of them, got together recently to pose for an old-fashioned family portrait.

By MINI MEADE
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

NEW YORK — In a television season teeming with guns and sirens, the totally unexpected popular success of a quiet series about rural and family values is making network programmers rethink their approach to public taste.

"The Waltons" has not only walked off with the honors, it has been renewed for next year on CBS — even though originally scheduled against sure-fire winner Flip Wilson as a sacrificial "throwaway".

In some families it has created a Thursday-night ritual, in which they gather together to watch "The Waltons" just as the Waltons themselves listen together to Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy. It is the first series in a very long time to win an Emmy. According to executive producer Lee Rich, 346 schools — independently of each other — now make watching "The Waltons" an assignment, with follow-up discussion the next day. And TV people are stunned and proud: an account executive for the show said he had been approached by actors from other series expressing their delight on behalf of the whole industry.

The gentle, warm program is about a family living in the Blue Ridge Mountains of Virginia during the Depression, a loving family struggling to stay together and keep their heads above water while at the same time preserving their values. It deals with innocence, stability, charity, and moral fiber as everyday things of life, in a medium which usually reserves such matters for Sunday mornings and Christmas specials, and it manages to do so without a drop of saccharine.

Occasionally a "throwaway" may be quite a nice show (consider the recently canceled "Julie Andrews Hour" scheduled against unsinkable Mary Tyler Moore). Sometimes it has strong appeal to a limited audience. But it is frequently a dreadful show which richly deserves the ignominy of midseason cancellation, the customary fate of throwaways. Good or bad, the throwaway is an expedient solution to the programmers' problem of what to do with dead air while a rival blockbuster draws the millions.

CBS decided to use "The Waltons" as a prestigious throwaway. The series evolved from a well-received Christmas special, "The Homecoming," based on Earl Hamner Jr.'s novelette (now translated in 12 languages) about his own family and childhood. It was obviously a "quality" series, unlikely to draw viewers from the gags and guns the ratings indicated they preferred. Accordingly, it was scheduled opposite NBC's Flip Wilson and ABC's "Mod Squad."

To be thrown in against Flip Wilson, a phenomenon himself, is to be thrown to the lions. In addition, "Mod Squad" had been holding its own with a respectable following. The critics generally raved about "The Waltons," using words like "refreshing," "high-quality" and "genuine," and most of them finished their columns by predicting its speedy demise at mid-season.

To the surprise of everyone except Rich, the series placed 46th in the first Nielsen ratings — not great but not the very bottom of the heap either. It fell to 58th out of 62 prime-time shows in the next Nielsen, but then began to climb steadily upward, tying for 23rd place in mid-November (and insuring its continuance for the entire year). On March 1st it did the impossible: it beat Flip Wilson to tie for 11th place. On March 22 it did it again and the series was renewed for 1973-74.

Obviously, it satisfies some hunger in the American viewing public. On the face of it "The Waltons" would seem to have very little going for it. It has no big name stars (Patricia Neal played the mother in "The Homecoming" special, but she was not available for the series). Its cast is technically much too large: It is an industry rule of thumb that large casts confuse the viewers. It has no violence. There isn't a private eye, a cop or a robber in sight. Its action is mostly of the wood-chopping, pie-baking, chore-performing variety.

And yet this is not cornball stuff. Valid and absorbing, it seems to have struck a deep chord in the public for several reasons. The program represents a simple but not unintelligent innocence that is largely absent nowadays. It deals with love in an accepting, practical manner, treading constantly on the edges of sentimentality but never slipping over. It speaks to the contemporary viewer of a less complicated time and place, but it is also very real. The children are not just a passel of kids; each has his own dimension, as have the grandparents.

Most particularly, although John-Boy is perhaps the hero of the series, the entire show hangs and falls on the relationship of the parents, John and Olivia Walton. Played by Ralph Waite and Michael Learned, a former member of the American Conservatory Theater of San Francisco, they are a far cry from your standard TV parents: here is not the father who is either a nitwit or, more likely in recent years, a know-it-all, or the mother who is a shining polyester cipher with no role other than to needle or to worship Daddy. Neither are they simply parent figures for the series' purposes: they stand by themselves as people. They portray a deep, personal intimacy and commitment that is separate from their roles as parents. It is this strong base that makes the lifestyle seem both real and desirable.

Asked if he thought the viewers were motivated to tune in by nostalgia or escapism, Rich replied, "It may be partly because the series is laid in Virginia in the Depression, but I think generally we could be doing a picture here of other people, another family, anywhere, any time, with similar problems and difficulties. Everybody was drawn together trying to fight the Depression, of course. That's one thing that would be different from nowadays, and that being together is very appealing to the audience.

"But I don't think the Depression setting or the rural setting is that important. We don't preach anything. We are telling the story of a family that happens to live in the Depression. They're going to stand together and hold on to what they've got. John-Boy eventually will go to college, but he'll live at home because he can't afford the board.

"Basically I think the viewer is looking for honesty. I think the time of the superhero is past. They recognize that the human being is interesting. I think Cannon (of the CBS series of the same name) is a good example. He's not what you'd expect from a hero a few years ago. I think the Waltons are special. They have foibles, they're not perfect, but they try to solve their problems as a family. Not all the people they meet are good, not all are bad, but the Waltons meet them as a family."

Rich attributes a great deal to the scripts. "If we didn't have the scripts we wouldn't have anything. Everything starts and ends with the script. If you don't have a good script, you can have the finest actors in the world and you're not going to have a good show. It's all due to Earl Hamner. He goes over each and every one of them. And of course our cast is brilliant. They have become like a real family now."

In the time-honored tradition of television, it is to be expected that "The Waltons" will be copied by other series, and indeed a spokesman for ABC indicated that a number of pilots "in the same league" have been offered to his network for the coming season.

"If people want to emulate 'The Waltons,' " said Mr. Rich, "I hope they do it. It may happen next year, but I don't think it will happen this year. The only one I know of is one I'm doing, 'Pomeroy's People.' It's the story of a black preacher living in a little town near Louisville, Kentucky. He's a widower with three children, and it's an integrated town. It will not deal with issues except on a personal level. Earl Hamner wrote it."

As for the success of the series, "Aside from honesty, I think there are a lot of reasons," said Mr. Rich. "Older people watch it to depict a wonderful, warm family. I think people who did not have happy family lives in their childhoods watch it and think, 'That's the way it could be,' or even convince themselves that that's the way it was for them. I think there's a lot of that."

Its success has not surprised Mr. Rich. "I expected it to be a success much more than the networks did, but not as great a success as it is. I had a feeling that 'Mod Squad' in its fifth year could be had, but I never thought it could beat Flip Wilson.

"We've had no problems. Nobody's acted up, nobody's had personality conflicts," he said, and then added simply, "It's been the single most joyous experience of my professional career."

Probers Digging In Files

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Private files of three deposed White House aides have been removed from their offices and are being examined for any material relating to the Watergate scandal, it was learned today.

The bulky file cabinets, most or all of them reportedly equipped with combination locks, were taken from the offices of H. R. Haldeman, John D. Ehrlichman and John W. Dean III to a central location in the White House by FBI agents.

The agents were posted at the offices of the trio within hours after President Nixon announced their resignations Monday. The White House said the move was not intended to cast aspersions on anyone, and simply was intended to safeguard presidential papers.

Haldeman and Ehrlichman, Nixon's most trusted aides and among the most powerful men in the administration, are scheduled to appear Thursday before a grand jury investigating Watergate, it was learned.

Haldeman, Ehrlichman and former Attorney General John W. Mitchell were named in new, published disclosures today about the Watergate.

The New York Times said government prosecutors were told the three joined in a concerted effort to cover up the scope of the burglary and bugging break-in of Democratic headquarters soon after it occurred last year.

Haldeman and Ehrlichman, who also arranged to meet with Senate Watergate investigators later this week, have denied any wrongdoing. Nixon said in announcing their resignations that it should not be taken as any suggestion they were involved.

Mitchell issued a statement saying the Times' account of his alleged part in a cover-up was "absolutely false and without factual foundation."

The Times said Mitchell, Haldeman, Ehrlichman, Dean and several others formerly connected with the administration or the Nixon re-election campaign last year were expected to be indicted by the Watergate grand jury.

The Times said Haldeman, Ehrlichman and Mitchell devised a cover-up plan shortly after the June 17 bugging.

Meanwhile, Nixon was moving swiftly to reorganize his staff, with Vice President Spiro T. Agnew given a greater part in the power structure. White House sources said the President had decided to make Agnew the vice-chairman of the domestic council, the chief forum for formulation of domestic policy. The President is chairman.

It was learned that Nixon does not plan to give anyone the

BUSTING IN IN BERKELEY

Angry residents of Berkeley climb the walls outside city hall to gain entry to council chambers through a second-story transom. Inside the city council last night, voted in a smoke-filled and crowded chamber, that policemen don't need their approval to make marijuana arrests. The protesting crowd sent up clouds of marijuana smoke but police made no arrests. Voted down was a motion to force police to comply with a marijuana initiative. The council, unable to do further business, adjourned until tonight for further business.

Call For 'Team Effort' On Any Reorganization

By ERIK M. INGRAM

Marin County supervisors called yesterday for a "team effort" by the county administrator and department heads in drafting new ideas for reorganization of the departments of planning, public works and parks and recreation. (Other supervisors stories, page 10.)

The team approach was proposed by Chairman Arnold M. Baptiste shortly after he and fellow supervisors hastily buried a proposal from County Administrator John F. Barrows for total consolidation of the three departments.

Baptiste's suggestion was contained in an alternative reorganization plan unveiled immediately after supervisors without discussion voted 4-to-1 to junk the county administrator's plan. They had requested it from him earlier this year. (Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. cast the lone dissenting vote but changed it later in the day.)

While members of the large audience, which turned out in opposition to Barrows' plan, applauded the team study, they criticized much of Baptiste's proposal as simply another consolidation.

His idea called for an Environmental Planning Department, to be headed by one administrator, under whom Public Works Director Ray W. Foreaker Jr., Planning Director Werner von Gundell and Parks Director Pierre W. Joske would serve.

These three, with their departments left intact, would coordinate projects among themselves utilizing the skills and disciplines found in each department.

This would continue "until final recommendations for consolidation" from the new department head and three existing department heads are acted upon by the board, Baptiste's proposal said.

"This is just another name for the same thing," declared former planning director Mary Summers.

Mrs. Summers, speaking for the Marin Conservation League, said the proposals "would take the spirit out of the planning and parks and recreation departments."

Mary Donnelly of San Anselmo, like others in the audience, questioned the need for any reorganization, saying it would be "disruptive and harmful."

She asked whether savings or better efficiency really would be achieved.

Tightened Phase III Controls Expected

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon has decided to toughen some aspects of his wage-price stabilization program, administration officials said today.

In a further move to combat the worst inflation in a generation, officials said Nixon probably would again require big companies to get prior approval for price increases of more than 1.5 per cent and raise the possibility of orders to roll back price rises exceeding increases in costs.

Details of Nixon's revised economic policy were to be revealed this afternoon after he had conferred with his top advisers as well as business and union leaders.

It appeared that the President's measures would be less sweeping than the general freeze or rollback proposals urged by some members of Congress. One top economic adviser said the President's statement would be "constructive but not startling."

Administration officials suggested that Nixon intended in his statement to try to boost confidence in the largely volun-

Redevelop Feud Is At Close

A long and bitter dispute between San Rafael and Marin County officials ended unceremoniously yesterday as county supervisors voted 3-to-2 to approve the city's controversial redevelopment project.

Approval, over the objections of Supervisors Arnold M. Baptiste and Gary T. Giacomini, came in the form of signing an agreement to lift two county lawsuits blocking the project in return for city assurances that redevelopment would meet certain conditions.

San Rafael Mayor C. Paul Bettini signed the document a week ago after supervisors threatened to reconsider verbal promises of ending the dispute if their conditions were not met.

The county-imposed conditions restrict the city to a $6 million redevelopment project over the next eight years and reserve veto power over enlargement of the project which will upgrade downtown and east side portions of the city.

The board's action came over the appeal of Ann Reeves of Santa Venetia that supervisors delay until a study is made of how successful other cities redevelopment projects have been.

Giacomini, who has fluctuated between supporting and opposing the city's plan, presented no argument in opposing it yesterday. To do so would be "whipping a dead horse," he said.

Baptiste, meanwhile, repeated his views that "taxpayers will have the answers" about redevelopment in a few years once they see how much they are paying. He alone on the board has consistently opposed the project.

Supervisor Michael Wornum, who like Giacomini and Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. has shifted positions, voted for redevelopment yesterday saying it is a way of correcting San Rafael's past planning mistakes, which he called "self-inflicted wounds."

He said he is opposed to the way redevelopment is financed, by siphoning off other agencies' tax revenues, but noted the law allows it.

Wornum doubted that the county's two lawsuits testing the constitutionality of the law, among other things, would have been successful.

He was joined by Arrigoni and Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere in approving the agreement. Roumiguiere, outspoken supporter of the city's plans, made the motion for approval.

Before the city's project can

North Vietnam Agrees To Talk With Kissinger

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger said today North Vietnam had agreed to a meeting between himself and Hanoi's chief negotiator Le Duc Tho to discuss the crumbling cease-fire. He conceded there has been no agreement on a date for the talks.

At a White House briefing, Kissinger said the agreement on talks had been reached in diplomatic messages between Washington and Hanoi.

North Vietnamese Deputy Foreign Minister Nguyen Co Thach told newsmen yesterday in Paris that "the atmosphere is not favorable at present" for Kissinger-Tho talks. Thach indicated that such a meeting had been ruled out in the immediate future at least.

Novato Tax Election Plans Are Approved

Schools Hit By Closing Of Air Base

By JEFF GREER

Expecting to lose about $2.2 million in federal and state funds due to the closing of Hamilton Air Force Base, Novato Unified School District trustees last night turned to the taxpayers for help. (Another Novato schools story, page 3.)

The board members unanimously approved plans to hold a special tax rate election July 31. If approved by a simple majority vote, the district tax rate could increase a maximum of 43 cents per $100 assessed valuation over this year's rate, according to Supt. James G. Bunker.

If the tax rate election fails, next year's tax rate will be lower than this year's because of Senate Bill 90, the tax reform bill, Bunker pointed out. He said this year's operating tax rate is $4.66 and SB 90 will trim that to $3.74 unless voters raise the maximum to $5.09 for fiscal 1973-74. The special rate would be for one year only, the board members stressed.

Board Chairman Ronald D. Schenck and Trustee Carolyn M. Crabtree estimated the special one-year ceiling increase could add between $25 to $32 to the property taxes on the average $30,000 Novato home.

Trustee Marret B. Boissevain said he would support the tax rate increase "only if we do not get assistance from the state and federal governments" to make up for the loss due to closing the air base. Bunker said the tax rate increase would give the district "about the same" financial position next year as it would have had under SB 90 if the base had not been ordered closed.

Schenck opened the meeting before a standing-room-only audience by reading a prepared statement reviewing the district situation resulting from loss of pupils, loss of federal and state funds and faculty demands for pay raises.

He said the district is in "a desperate financial crisis" facing a deficit of some $1.3 million next year, in addition to which teachers are asking for a 21.2 per cent raise.

He said board members and district officials have asked legislators and government officials in Sacramento and Washington to counteract the base closing's financial impact.

Had the base not been closed, Schenck said, the district would have enjoyed a surplus of about $920,000 next year, enabling "significant improvements" in salaries and programs. He said the board pledged that if the picture brightened either through the tax rate election or through aid from Sacramento or Washington "in excess of . . . our absolute minimum budget needs, the first priority will be certificated and classified salary increases."

He denied that the trustees

Connally Switch To GOP Official

HOUSTON (UPI) — John B. Connally, 56, the conservative former Texas governor and Treasury Secretary and a lifelong Democrat, today switched to the Republican party "to help it meet the needs and aspirations of all Americans."

Connally, who resigned a year ago after 18 months as the only Democrat in Nixon's cabinet, did not say he would run for President to succeed Nixon in 1976.

"I believe that in our time, the Republican Party best represents the broad views of most Americans, whatever their formal political affiliation," Connally said in a statement at his Houston law office.

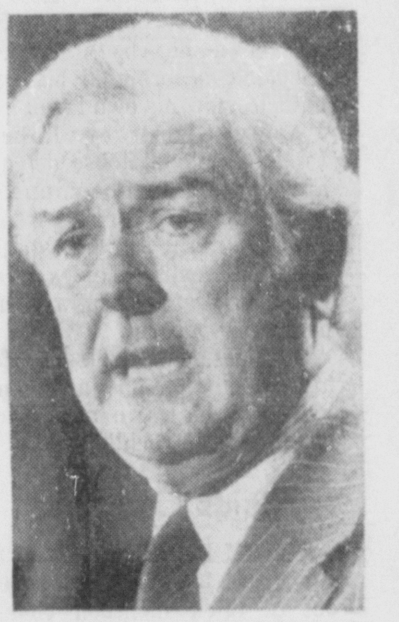
"I believe it can best provide the strength and stability and unite our people to deal effectively with our problems," Connally said of the GOP.

"I know it best represents my own personal conviction. Accordingly, I am announcing my decision to affiliate with the Republican Party and make any contribution to help it meet the needs and aspirations of all Americans," Connally said.

Connally's announcement came at the height of the Watergate case and followed by just two days Nixon's announcement that he had accepted the resignations of several trusted White House aides.

Today, Connally said he believes every American has an obligation to take part in the political system and he said he will continue to play a role in that system. But he made no particular reference to his own political plans.

Connally's statement came in advance of a news conference at which he was to formally announce his political switch.



JOHN B. CONNALLY
Becomes a Republican

Sen. John G. Tower, R-Tex., was among the first to hail Connally's move to the Republican Party.

"I hope that like-minded Democrats will follow his example and that his action will accelerate a growing trend toward realistic political realignment," Towersaid.

Only three months ago, Connally said on national television that if he did switch from the Democratic to the Republican Party, the change would not mean he would seek the White House in 1976.

"If I do (switch), it's not going to be on the basis of seeking the presidential nomination," Connally said on Feb. 2. "It is based on which party I can be most comfortable in."

Connally served 18 months as Nixon's Treasury secretary and was one of the President's closest advisers during that time. When Connally resigned from the cabinet —just one month before the Watergate break-in at Democratic headquarters in Washington —he did so in a warm exchange of praise with Nixon.

North Marin Water Connections Banned

By FRANK FARRARA

The North Marin County Water District board last night unanimously declared a water shortage emergency and set an immediate moratorium on new connections and water main extensions. (Another North Marin water district story, page 11.)

The moratorium applies only to the area served by Russian River water and Lake Stafford and doesn't apply to areas of West Marin served by the district.

The board, reversing a 3-to-2 vote on March 6 against declaring a water shortage, enacted its ban just a day after similar action by the Marin Municipal Water District board.

Directors set the ban for an indefinite period with the provision that as water becomes available, it will serve applicants for connections in order.

As mentioned several times during a public hearing attended by about 50 persons, the district's problem isn't a shortage of water supply byt inability to deliver during peak use periods in the summer.

Developers and representatives of the building industry suggested the board delay declaring a shortage until after a $4.1 million bond election June 12.

If passed, the bond funds would finance the district's share of a new pipeline from Cotati to the Russian River, the part of the Russian River Water Delivery System that is now a bottleneck.

Chairman William W. Wright said consumers "have first call" on the water and the board doesn't want to deprive them of water for lawns or fire protection.

Just before the moratorium was voted the board approved agreements on 14 developments, representing 886 dwelling units, the first agreements since February and apparently the last for a while.

District Mgr. John O. Nelson said those agreements use up all the district's available capacity.

"At this time we are without capacity to take on new agree-

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Nuclear Proposal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Nixon administration has rejected a proposal being pushed in the Senate for a unilateral halt to U.S. underground nuclear testing, possibly when Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev visits here in June.

Philip J. Farley, acting director of the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency and Pentagon research chief Dr. John Foster testified yesterday that the proposal is unacceptable because the United States lacks the technical means to tell whether Russia is secretly testing underground.

They appeared before the Senate subcommittee on arms control.

Against Mowing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Gen. Creighton Abrams, Army chief of staff, gets about $45,000 in pay and allowances plus free use of a big house but he shouldn't, according to his boss, have to mow his own lawn.

Army Secretary Robert Froehlke told a House defense appropriations subcommittee yesterday that "it makes sense from a management standpoint" for enlisted aides to do such work rather than a highly paid, busy general.

"It doesn't make sense for him to hurry home at 5 p.m. and mow his lawn and spade his garden," Froehlke said.

Raids Continue

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — U. S. Air Force jet fighters swooped out of thick monsoon clouds over Phnom Penh today to drop napalm and 500-pound bombs on suspected Communist positions just across the Mekong River.

The strikes came despite government claims the rebels had been driven from the area by a 1,500-man government drive Monday.

Earlier today, the Cambodian command reported diminishing Communist activity on all battlefronts, but raids last night by U.S. B52 bombers shook Phnom Penh and more fighting was reported south of the capital.

Antitest Action

CANBERRA (UPI) — Prime Minister Gough Whitlam announced today that Australia will take legal action against France in the International Court of Justice to block further nuclear tests in the Pacific.

Whitlam told the House of Representatives that scientific reports established clearly that the French tests had contaminated the Australian environment with radioactive fallout.

New York Riot

NEW YORK (UPI) — Nine policemen were injured yesterday in clashes with 400 demonstrators protesting the fatal shooting of 10-year-old Clifford Glover by a plainclothes police officer last weekend.

Seven persons were arrested in scattered incidents in the tense Queens County neighborhood where 150 policemen, some in riot gear, were called out to disperse crowds stoning buses and setting street fires.

Clash In Lebanon

BEIRUT (UPI) — Lebanese troops firing machine guns clashed with guerrillas today near a Palestinian refugee camp on the southern fringe of Beirut.

Witnesses said there were several explosions during the fighting. There were no reports of casualties.

Extradition Set

NEW YORK (UPI) — For the past several years Mrs. Hermine Braunsteiner Ryan has been leading the life of a quiet housewife in the borough of Queens.

Yesterday a federal judge approved her extradition to West Germany to face charges of killing and torturing Jews in a Nazi concentration camp.

The decision by Judge Jacob Mishler resulted from a request by the West German government that Mrs. Ryan, a former Nazi prison guard, be deported to stand trial on the basis of evidence given by death camp survivors.

Hunt For Killers

MADRID (UPI) — Authorities launched a nationwide hunt today for the killers of a policeman in May Day violence, the first such reported murder since 1939 when Generalissimo Francisco Franco came to power.

Police said they were holding 145 persons in an effort to trace the attackers who killed policeman Jose Antonio Fernandez Gutierrez, 20, in Madrid during a demonstration.

Belfast Murder

BELFAST (UPI) — Gunmen shot and killed a man then dumped his body on the outskirts of Belfast today. The murder came after a night of bombing and rioting in and near Londonderry.

Police said they discovered the body with a single bullet wound in the head after receiving an anonymous telephone call shortly after dawn.

Drop In Federal Deficit Is Seen

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The economy is producing so much unanticipated tax revenue that the federal deficit this fiscal year will be $5 billion less than predicted in January, Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz told Congress Tuesday.

He said the deficit will be $19.8 billion instead of the predicted $24.8 billion.

Gas Pump Pinch Growing Tighter

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The nation's fuel crisis, with higher prices and declining supplies, is taking a marked turn for the worse.

A gasoline rationing program for its 31,000 retail stations was announced Tuesday by Amoco Oil Co., the same day Cities Service Oil Co. instituted across-the-board price increases.

Texaco, one of the nation's largest petroleum refiners, predicted in Congressional testimony that there will be industry-wide gasoline "run-outs" this summer.

Kerr-McGee sharply reduced the number of self service pumps at stations in the Oklahoma City area, raising its average selling price. Signs prominantly displayed a few days ago were removed, apparently so motorists could not see prices until they got close to the pumps.

Local governments, which generally buy their gasoline in bulk from the major companies, reported the companies are increasingly reluctant to renew contracts to supply fuel.

Chicago, Detroit, Indianapolis, Los Angeles and several other cities are now operating on a week-to-week basis and are unable to obtain written contracts assuring continued deliveries. Birmingham, Ala., was getting its supplies on a monthly basis, but said it also was unable to get future commitments for gas in writing.

Several airline and trucking companies also reported they had been hit by the fuel shortages. A spokesman for Trans World Airlines (TWA) said flights from the West into Chicago are carrying extra fuel to counteract shortages.

National Airlines said it had been placed on notice of fuel shortage by several suppliers and Delta Airlines said it had been experiencing an increase in prices.

Prof. Morris A. Adelman of the Massachusetts Institute of Techology, a top economist in the field, said one of the problems is that "there is no refinery construction now. There are a variety of factors. Consumption is up. Price controls discourage refinery building. There are environmental restrictions and other reasons."

Adelman said there is no immediate solution, even if a large supply of crude oil were made available.

Fred L. Hartley, president of Union Oil Co. told the company's annual meeting in Los Angeles Tuesday, "I don't see how we can go through the next few years, or more likely few months, without some kind of energy curtailment."

Acupuncture Is Used In Drug Cures

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A new "cure" for heroin and opium addiction: Stick a needle in your ear.

The needle is an acupuncture implement attached to an electric vibrator, which produces a "sensation just below that of pain," when stuck in the ear.

Dr. Donald J. Kubitz of San Francisco, who just returned from a trip to Hong Kong to see the threatment developed by Dr. H. L. Wen, described the method and said it appeared successful on 40 addicts.

Kubitz, who is associated with a foundation doing medical and psychic research, said 10 heroin addicts and 30 opium addicts appeared to give up their cravings without withdrawal pains after five days of treatment.

The physician said the Hong Kong acupuncturist's method must be researched further under scientifically controlled conditions.

But he added that he tried the vibrating needle in the ear treatment himself and it felt "good."

Two Truce Helicopters Fired Upon

SAIGON (UPI) — Two international truce team helicopters were fired on from Communist-held territory while on a mission in northern South Vietnam today and Canadian Ambassador Michel Gauvin termed the shooting a "deplorable act."

A Canadian member of the International Commission of Control and Supervision (ICCS) said the two ICCS helicopters were fired on as they left Quang Tri City 400 miles north of Saigon.

Gauvin told reporters: "I don't know yet the details of the shooting but it was a deplorable act."

The attack today caused no damage and no one was injured, he said.

A Blackout On News At Reservation

PINE RIDGE, S.D. (UPI) — Federal negotiator Richard Hellstern has announced a blackout of all news pertaining to negotiating sessions in the 64-day-old impasse at Wounded Knee. He declined to answer newsmen's questions concerning the reason for it.

However, it was understood that American Indian Movement (AIM) leaders at Wounded Knee have protested the former government policy of holding news conferences expressing the government's view of negotiating sessions.

Newsmen have not been permitted into the besieged hamlet to interview AIM leaders since March 27.

Hellstern refused to confirm reports that a negotiating session was held Tuesday near Wounded Knee. However, he and others federal negotiators were absent from the government's headquarters in the Bureau of Indian Affairs Building in Pine Ridge Tuesday afternoon.

Negotiations have stalled for two days because of a dispute over burial of the body of Frank Clearwater, 47, an AIM militant fatally wounded two weeks ago.

Funds Spent To Win Approval Of Mining

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon's re-election campaign committee spent between $5,000 and $6,000 in contributions to finance demonstrations supporting the 1972 mining of Haiphong Harbor, according to a committee official.

Robert C. Odle Jr., director of administration for the committee, made the disclosure in a deposition in the Democrat's $6.4 million damage suit against the committee for political espionage.

Odle said he spent between $3,000 and $4,000 for that purpose. And he recalled that Paul Jones, director of the committee's black vote division, received another $2,000 to bring people to a rally on Capitol Hill to support the mining.

The General Accounting Office said these expenditures had not been reported, as required under the 1971 federal Election Campaign Act. Nixon ordered the mining of the North Vietnamese harbor last May 8, during the Presidential primary election.

Odle said he received his money from Herbert L. Porter, the committee's scheduling director, and gave it to various division directors "to let them charter buses and buy lunches and food and supplies, signs and things like that" for rallies in the Washington area.

Odle, 29, who has held the committee post since May, 1971, also told of meeting Watergate conspirator G. Gordon Liddy, in a hallway in the committee headquarters the afternoon of the June 17 bugging of the Democratic National Committee headquarters. Liddy since has been vonvicted in the bugging conspiracy.

"He asked me where the paper shredder was, the large paper shredder that we used for all the wastebaskets, and I directed him to it," Odle said. Five or 10 minutes later, he said, he saw Liddy carrying a large stack of papers toward the shredding machine.

"At that time," he said, "I don't think I thought a great deal of it."

Liddy, finance counsel to the re-election committee, shared a suite of offices with Odle, according to the testimony.

Asked whether he had any prior knowledge of the eavesdropping at the Democratic headquarters, Odle replied: "Absolutely none."

Trustees Reverse Office Vote

Novato Unified School District trustees last night reversed their earlier, split-vote decision to move the district offices into rented quarters and also voted to shut down Pacheco School next September. (Another Novato schools story, page 1.)

The two unanimous actions were part of a four-part recommendation by Dist. Supt. James G. Bunker brought on by fiscal problems connected with closing Hamilton Air Force Base and other issues.

As adopted last night, Bunker's report called for keeping the district offices where they are, instead of moving them into rented space in the San Marin Professional Center. The North Marin Continuation High School, which earlier was slated to move into the district office building from its presently rented quarters, will instead share space at Pacheco School with classes from Indian Valley Colleges.

Last night's vote settled some long-standing controversies, but wasn't uniformly popular with trustees, teachers and parents.

Board Chairman Ronald D. Schenck and Trustee William Eckhoff condemned "backing down" from the earlier decision to rent new quarters for the district administration, and said the reversion to status quo was "poor planning."

Trustees Elizabeth Mertle and Carolyn M. Crabtree said housing the continuation classes at Pacheco School would be "bad for the program" but voted for the package anyway.

Several Pacheco parents repeated made at made earlier, similarly packed hearings on the controversy over closing the school.

Trustee-elect Betty Machado asked the board to defer its decision until September, and to request Virgil W. Hollis, county superintendent of schools, to survey district property needs and building use before acting. Trustees said they could "retract" their decisions later if need be, but went ahead with the vote.

Novato Unified School District Board also:

JUNIOR HIGH — Postponed choosing between two plans for revising attendance boundaries for the district's three junior high schools, after lengthy argument. The vote to table action to May 15 was 4-2, with trustees Schenck and Marett B. Boissevain dissenting and William G. Schneeflock absent.

COURSE — Approved adding a second year of Italian to the high school modern language studies, but tabled to May 15 a proposal to change junior high school graduation requirements.

SUMMER SCHOOL — Approved plans to offer 35 classes at the summer school for junior and senior high students, from June 25 to Aug. 4. Signups will be June 25 at Novato High School.

MULTI-ETHNIC — Announced a public meeting at 8 p.m. May 7 in the library of Hill Junior High School to plan public observance of multi-ethnic week next January.

PERSONNEL — Approved 36 teachers for summer school courses.

CLOSED SESSION — Adjourned to closed session to instruct the board's representative on salary negotiations.

Irate Taxpayers of Marin, meanwhile, was one of the few to say a reorganization of the departments has merit but she recommended a consolidation of public works and planning only.

In a written statement passed out, Mrs. Frederick said her group endorses Foreaker to head a consolidated department because "he is an administrator... the planning department has long needed someone of Mr. Foreaker's caliber."

The parks and recreation department, she said, does not have functions similar to the others and should be left untouched.

Pam Lloyd of Mill Valley also supported some form of consolidation — as suggested in Baptiste's proposal — for better coordination of environmental protection.

Other speakers included Grace Wellman of Ross, Planning Commissioner Margaret B. Azevedo, former San Anselmo Mayor James Reed, Charles L. Brouse of Larkspur, Carol Staley of the League of Women Voters of Central Marin, Alex McMillian of the Audubon Society, Leroy M. Gerner of the county parks and recreation commission and Francis Stewart of Bolinas. All opposed consolidation.

Amid the criticism, Arrigoni, who had requested Barrows' proposal, said he felt the session "was a healthy discussion."

He said he had earlier voted against junking the county administrator's proposal "because I wanted the public to speak. If the vote was now, I would have voted for killing it," he told the audience. He later changed the vote in the minutes.

He said he strongly supported Baptiste's idea of referring the matter to the department heads to work on new recommendations short of consolidation.

His comments yesterday were in sharp contrast with those of three weeks ago when he scoffed at a similar proposal from Supervisor Gary T. Giacomini that the department heads rework Barrows's plan.

"I don't want a consensus of what the three departments think we will accept," Arrigoni said at that time, urging the administrator's proposal be considered as submitted.

Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere said yesterday the discussion had brought forth many ideas for better coordination and internal reorganization of departments. He urged further study.

Baptiste agreed but assured those in the audience changes within and between departments would be made. "When the conservation league talks of keeping the status quo, you're missing the boat... there is a need for improvement," he said.

He requested Barrows and the others to return as soon as possible with new reorganization proposals.

Girl Reported Satisfactory After Accident

Cynthia Stephens, 16, of 344 Ferndale Avenue, Mill Valley, was reported in satisfactory condition today at Marin General Hospital with a compound fracture of the left leg suffered yesterday when she was struck by a car.

The California Highway Patrol reported she was trying to cross Shoreline Highway near the Howard Johnson motel at 10:35 p.m. when she was struck by a car driven by Charles C. Eskilosen, 20, of 14 Grove Street, San Rafael.

Officers said Eskilosen told them she walked in front of his car and he was unable to stop.

Potted Grass Confiscated

The springtime urge to garden, is not confined to suburban and rural areas, it even hits apartment dwellers.

According to San Rafael police, someone reported that he saw marijuana plants growing in Apt. C, 25 Valencia Avenue. Barbara Susan Coleman, 21, and Heidi Lee Purcell, 18, surrendered 19 marijuana plants about eight inches tall. No charges have been filed against them.

Tiburon policeman Ronmo Reier told San Rafael police that he saw two marijuana plants on the roof of 65 Bayo Vista from a nearby apartment. San Rafael police confiscated the two potted marijuana plants, but did not find out who owned them.

No Cause Found In Explosion

ROSEVILLE (UPI) — A boxcar fire which triggered a series of bomb blasts last weekend did not result from "physical or mechanical malfunction," but the exact cause may never be known, a Southern Pacific Railroad (SP) official said Tuesday.

R. D. Spence, SP director of operations, said the railroad and five federal agencies, including the FBI, considered the initial blaze crucial to their investigations.

"There is nothing to indicate that any physical or mechanical malfunction caused the blaze," Spence said. But he pointed out that the impact of the repeated blasts could have destroyed any physical evidence.

The explosions, which began Saturday and continued through Sunday, resulted in injuries to about 50 persons, forced evacuation of thousands of residents, riddled 700 homes with shrapnel and blew out windows and buckled walls in a 10-square mile area.

Damage to the SP yard, where 204 boxcars were destroyed, was estimated at $6 million. The surrounding community suffered an estimated $4 million in damage.

The last handful of evacuated families returned to their homes yesterday.

Another railroad spokesman, Henry Ortiz, said the 21 ammunition cars were "kept under observation from time to time" while they were in the sprawling switching yard after their arrival from the Hawthorne, Nev. Naval Depot. But he also said there was no specific guard.

ments," and there are applications pending representing about 1,000 dwelling units, he said.

Wright said that the choice was declaring a moratorium or rationing and that rationing would be unfair to present users.

Robert Burke, president of the San Marin Improvement Association, said the board's duty "is to the present users."

Joseph Y. Seminario of 8 Anton Way, Black Point, said the water shortage declaration appeared to be "somewhat of a play to pass the bond issue," and another speaker said voters may feel they are being manipulated and vote against the bond issue as a backlash.

Nelson indicated if the general obligation bond measure doesn't get the necessary two-thirds favorable vote in June, the district will consider a revenue bond issue which requires a 50 per cent favorable vote.

The U.S. Development Corp., which plans to build 700 homes on the Pacheco Ranch in South Novato, failed to obtain an agreement, but directors said it will be "first in line" when water is available.

Directors also agreed they should have a joint meeting with the Marin Municipal Water District, which has a water supply problem. Director George A. Amaroli said perhaps the North Marin district could supply Marin Municipal with water during the winter and in return receive water during the summer.

Projects which received agreement just under the wire before the moratorium and the number of dwelling units are:

Ignacio Boulevard Apartments, 189; Ignacio Industrial Park, 26; Diable Triangle Apartments, 105; Rancho Del Pantano Industrial Park, 7; San Jose Willabe, 79; Oaks Apartments, 58; Rowland Boulevard Apartments, 32; La Casa Novato, 96; Indian Acres, 10; Deer Island, none; Andreas Gardens, 16; San Marin Apartments, 224; Valley Oaks, 73; and Glenhill One Subdivision; 19.

Guilty Verdict In Check Trial

A Marin Superior Court jury in the court of Judge Charles Read Best found Fernando Thompson guilty after seven hours of considering the evidence from five days of trial.

Thompson tried to open an account with a $125 check June 11, 1971, at a Wells Fargo Bank, but fled when the manager became suspicious.

Thompson was charged in April 1972, after a Wells Fargo detective traced the check, made out on the acocount of a Santa Rosa service station, to Thompson.

power that Haldeman had as chief of staff to coordinate all presidential appointments and communications. Sources said Nixon now felt the tight controls at the top of the staff deprived him of receiving some vital information.

The Times quoted one investigator as saying, "Haldeman and Ehrlichman were running the cover-up. We don't know whether Nixon to this day knows what really happened. He really thinks they're all clean."

Dean has been reported as trying to seek a grant of immunity from prosecution before testifying before the grand jury. He has talked with prosecutors, however, and allegedly has implicated Haldeman and Ehrlichman.

The Times quoted an investigator with respect to Dean's role: "I don't think Dean had prior knowledge of the bugging. He agreed to go along with the cover-up. Once he found out how many people would be hurt, he was convinced that the scandal would damage the country."

The investigator was quoted that after talking with Haldeman and Ehrlichman, Dean "went into the bag and falsified his report to the President" on Dean's own investigation for Nixon of the bugging.

The Times said the "basic scheme" in the cover-up effort included having officials involved in the operation deny knowledge of it, and promising payments as well as executive clemency if convicted to five men arrested at the Watergate.

The Times quoted investigators that soon after the bugging arrests, G. Gordon Liddy, who was convicted in January as a leading conspirator, was selected as the person "to blame it all" on.

"Everybody knew that Gordon knew how to keep his mouth shut," investigators were quoted, "and they were right —he did."

Liddy has been given a sentence of at least six years in prison for his part in the plot and has refused to tell grand jurors about details of the bugging.

In another fresh development, Martha Mitchell, wife of the former attorney general who was head of the Nixon reelection campaign at the time of the bugging, was subpoenaed to give sworn testimony Thursday about what she knows about Watergate.

Her testimony will be taken in New York as a deposition in a $6.4 million civil damage suit the Democratic party brought against principals in the bugging case.

Nixon was reported planning to complete the White House shake-up by next week. There was no indication whether he intended to bring in new faces to succeed the three departing aides or to have present assistants take over their roles. A long-time political associate and erstwhile Cabinet member and counselor, Robert H. Finch, offered to help out in the reorganization temporarily.

'Happiness Walk' Raises $23,775

The association's Marin branch also announced that the Mill Valley Middle School will be awarded a $500 grant as a result of participation by its students in the walk. The money is to be used for health education programs.

Mrs. Zellers said 60 per cent of the persons who registered as walkers turned in money pledged by sponsors.

Stolen Property Hearing Is Set

A preliminary hearing for Gregory Crawford Gocher, 21, of San Rafael on a felony count of concealing stolen property has been scheduled for Tuesday in Marin Municipal Court.

Gocher, arrested last Thursday, pleaded innocent Monday.

Dried Clothing Reported Stolen

Clothing valued at $300 was taken from the driers of the Laundry Bag at 1817 Fourth Street, San Rafael, police reported.

Duncan Walker MacKinnon, 21, of 15 Jessup Street, San Rafael, told police that he put the clothes in the drier and went home for a few minutes. When he returned at 11:50 p.m., the clothing was gone.

Petaluma Cycle Rider Injured As Bike Hits Car

A Petaluma man was reported in good condition today at Hillcrest Hospital with abdominal injuries suffered last night when his motorcycle hit a car broadside on Petaluma Boulevard North.

Robert R. Daggett, 28, of 17 El Rose Drive, was hurt, according to California Highway Patrol officers, at 7:15 p.m. when James B. Smith, 65, of 300 Stony Point Road, Petaluma, started to turn left off Petaluma Boulevard onto Corona Road.

Daggett, who was driving north on a Honda, was unable to avoid Smith's car, officers said, and skidded into it broadside. Smith, who was not injured, will be cited for failing to yield the right of way to Daggett, according to officers.

planned to cut district staff or to seek special legislation enabling such cuts of tenured personnel, despite claims by some teachers that such was the case.

About 100 teachers attended the meetings, with Iris Cloudt, spokesman for the Novato Federated Teachers declaring that the faculty can "no longer bear the brunt" of the district's financial woes.

Schenck suggested that the teachers and the district negotiate a salary package on "a contingent basis" depending on financial help from the taxpayers or government.

Schenck also appointed Mrs. Crabtree and Trustees Elizabeth Mertel and Jan Murray to lead a district-wide committee in organizing a citizens' campaign to write and wire lawmakers to fight the federal cutbacks. Each parent-teacher association in the district has been asked to donate $15 toward mailing costs for a circular the district will prepare outlining the campaign.

Bunker said the Novato district suffered the most of any California school system under the military base cuts ordered last month by the Department of Defense. He said he will meet tomorrow with superintendents of four other major districts to compare strategies.

Ship Channel Dredging Set

GALVESTON, Tex. (AP) — A contract for $854,064 to dredge 20 miles of the Matagorda Ship Channel has been awarded.

Col. Nolan C. Rhodes, district engineer of the Corps of Engineers, said work will restore the channel to authorize dimensions of 38 feet deep by 200 feet wide.

The project calls for dredging approximately 4.3 million cubic yards of material.

Two Marinites Receive Awards

Two Marin County high school students have been given awards for having the best entry from their school in the Annual Economic Discussion and Journalism Invest-In-America Competition held in San Francisco.

Vivienne Todd, a student at San Domenico School was given one share of stock in Crocker National Corp., and Eric Rayner of Tamalpais High School was given one share of Crum and Foster Co. stock. The contest was sponsored by the Northern California Council of Invest-In-America of San Francisco.

Bernard Becomes A Full Professor

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — Heart transplant pioneer Christiaan Barnard has become the first faculty member of the University of Cape Town to be named a full professor by ad hoc merit promotion.

Previously an honorary professor of surgical science. Prof. Barnard is now a full professor in the university's medical school.

tary Phase III wage and price controls that have prevailed for most of this year.

Nixon began by meeting for 40 minutes with his five ranking economic strategists —Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz, Budget Director Roy L. Ash, Federal Reserve Chairman Arthur F. Burns, Chairman Herbert Stein of the Council of Economic Advisers, and Director John T. Dunlop of the Cost of Living Council.

Joining the session were Vice President Spiro T. Agnew and Kenneth Cole, who has been serving temporarily as Nixon's top domestic affairs adviser since the resignation Monday of John D. Ehrlichman.

Also summoned to the White House was the 10-member Labor-Management Advisory Committee on Phase III.

The committee's membership includes AFL-CIO President George Meany, a sharp critic of administration economic policy. Meany has said that unless prices are brought under control soon, labor will be unable to cooperate with programs aimed at keeping wage increases to an average of 5.5 per cent a year.

Nixon has been under increasing pressure to take some new dramatic action to control soaring prices. Pushed up by some of the sharpest increases in food prices ever recorded, the government's cost of living index in the first three months of this year increased faster than any time since the early days of the Korean War.

Shultz, Nixon's chief economic spokesman, has said repeatedly that the administration is not considering another wage-price freeze.

proceed, however, the redevelopment agency board, made up of city councilmen, must reach similar agreement with the Marin Community College District board which had joined the county in its suits.

Until the suits are cleared, the city is blocked,in effect, from selling redevelopment bonds because of the possibility of a court setback.

If the college follows the county's lead in dropping legal action, members of the Marin Council for Civic Affairs claim they will file suit to block the project.

Benefit Case For Unborn

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — California Welfare Rights Organization has asked the State Supreme Court to rule that unborn children are eligible for welfare benefits.

The organization filed a petition Monday seeking the reversal of lower court decisions allowing state officials to grant partial benefits to fetuses because they have less needs than a child.

The suit said federal and state law requires an unborn child be counted as a person eligible for welfare under the Aid to Families with Dependent Children program.

Renzullo Head Of Two Schools

Armando Renzullo, Sausalito School District administrator who was offered reemployment with the district next year at a salary of $21,000, will be principal of both Bayside and Martin Luther King Schools.

The Independent-Journal yesterday identified Renzullo as principal only at Bayside School. Actually, he was named principal at King School for the spring semester of this year in addition to his duties at Bayside.

Closer Controls On Drugs Asked

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) has recommended that nine sedatives—including three of the most widely abused "downers" —be placed under stricter government control.

The barbituates are Butabarbital, Cyclobarbital, Heptabarbital, Probarbital, Talbutal, Vinbarbital, Amobarbital, Secobarbital and Pentobarbital.

It said Monday that the last three are known on the street as "blue devils," "red birds," and "yellow jackets" and are among the ten most abused drugs in the United States.

A Flying Honor For Hughes

HAMMONDSPORT, N. Y. (UPI) — Millionaire recluse Howard Hughes will be one of 17 persons inducted into the National Aviation Hall of Fame here May 19.

A spokesman for the aviation society said Hughes will be honored because he set a world land-plane record in 1935, reaching a speed of 325 miles per hour.

Hughes, in 1938, set another world record when he flew around the world in a time of 3 days, 19 hours, and 14 minutes.

The spokesman said it was "very doubtful" that Hughes, who hasn't been seen publicly in years, would attend the ceremony.

'His', 'Hers' Out — 'Yours'

JACKSON, Mich. (UPI) — The sign on the bathroom at the Moonlight Chalet here just says "Yours."

Hank Lewis, the owner of the restaurant bar, is tearing down the "His" and "Hers" signs in favor of a more unisex approach.

Lewis said Tuesday he was building two restrooms in the upstairs of his bar, but after the completion of one, both sexes started to use it.

"Nobody seemed to mind," he said. "'so we decided to take down the 'His' and 'Hers' signs and put up one sign that says 'Yours.' We don't anticipate any problems."

Associate Planner Will Give Talk

Frank Gray, associate planner for the City of Petaluma, will be the guest speaker for the Heritage Homes of Petaluma meeting at 8 p.m. tomorrow in the city hall's municipal court chambers.

Gray will describe a system of preservation of historic buildings in San Jose, a subject on which he did a thesis, and will discuss what is being done in this field by the Petaluma city planning staff.

Novato Councilmen Approve Warehouses

The Novato City Council last night approved building two warehouses in the Novato Creek flood plain across the creek from homes on Yukon Way which were flooded last winter.

The Novato Planning Commission on April 9 had approved variances for a warehouse and office for Stan's For Sports and a warehouse for Paul Ciampi, both located at Ford Way and Hill Road.

An emergency ordinance passed by the council froze building on the plain except when a variance is granted, and James L. Hallstrom of 1235 Yukon Way, last night had carried his appeal of planning commission variance grants to the city council.

After hearing more than two and a half hours of arguments as to how much the two warehouses would increase flooding, the council unanimously denied the appeal.

Atty. John D. McQuaid, representing the homeowners who were flooded or threatened by flood waters, accused Clifford E. Temps, public works director, of withholding a report in which the Army Corps of Engineers said the proposed warehouses would have "considerable effect" on increasing the height of flood water. McQuaid said that Temps had withheld the report from the planning commission when it considered the two variances.

He also accused the staff of being lax in its duty for not requiring environmental impact reports on the two proposed warehouses.

Residents of the area showed slide pictures of the area and how the proposed development across the creek would turn flood waters into their homes.

Patrick Healey, a civil engineer, told the council that the Murray-McCormick environmental group report on the effect of the buildings on flooding did not have "sufficient engineering" to be accurate.

Councilman F. Wayne Sartain said the council had no alternative but to base its decision on the Murray-McCormick report and the advice of the city's public works director.

The other councilmen agreed and the appeal was denied.

McQuaid, representing 35 residents of the area, has filed a $3,275,750 claim against the city of Novato, County of Marin, Marin County Flood Control District, North Marin County Water District, the State of California and the state Division of Highways for damage suffered in last winter's flooding.

The Novato City Council Also:

BIDS — Called for bids on widening Tamalpais Avenue between Novato Boulevard and Center Road, with bids to be opened May 23 and the contract to be awarded June 5. The project is estimated cost $150,000 with completion due in late September.

HEALTH SERVICE — Approved a contract with Marin County under which the county health department would provide health services and inspections for the city.

TREES — Sent a proposed street tree list back to the environmental quality committee to consider removing liquid amber and sycamore trees from the list previously approved. Mayor Fred F. Ruegg was against the liquid amber trees unless they had constant root pruning to keep them from breaking sidewalks.

FUNDS — Approved an agreement with the town of Corte Madera that their treasurers may jointly invest funds to save the service charge on investments under $100,000.

MUSEUM — Approved paying the quarterly amount of $250 to the Novato Prehistory Museum.

VALLEJO — Accepted the Vallejo Avenue reconstruction from Highway 101 to Seventh Street as complete. The contract with W. R. Forde Construction Co. was for $187,055 for the job.

SUBDIVISION — Approved the final map of Andreas Gardens, a subdivision of 12 lots on San Andreas Court for Zahorenko Construction Co. Inc.

REZONING — Passed an ordinance rezoning from limited agriculture to planned industrial and planned commercial for Richard R. Hanna on 35 acres east of Highway 101, north of Highway 37 and west of the Northwestern Pacific Railroad.

ADJOURNED — Adjourned to 7:30 a.m. next Tuesday to a meeting with the Novato Fire Protection District board at Alvarado Inn. The regular council meeting is at 8 p.m. that day.

LOSES SUIT — Manson family killer Susan Atkins was the loser yesterday when a Superior Court judge threw out a $2 million malpractice suit she had filed against her former attorney, Richard Caballero, lawyer Paul Caruso and Deputy District Attorney Vincent Bugliosi. Miss Atkins claimed she was promised Bugliosi would not seek the death penalty in return for her testimony, but he did.

Development Freeze In Sausalito Is Rejected

A proposal that Sausalito freeze all development for six months was rejected by the city council last night, even though the city's new planning director pleaded that he needed a breather to work on the city's open space element and on zoning ordinance changes.

Last month, the council had voted down another proposal from Councilman Evert Heynneman for a moratorium on waterfront development. This time the council voted 3-to-2 against setting a date for a hearing on an ordinance for a citywide freeze.

After the vote, Councilman Stephen A. Fraser, who opposed the moratorium, suggested to Planning Director Herb Case that he gain time by asking developers to let him set aside their projects for a while.

In asking for the moratorium, Case reminded the council that the state has required that by June 30 the open space element must be written and changes made to bring zoning ordinances into accord with the city's general plan. At the same time, he said, he has to consider $100 million in major development plans including the proposed Schoonmaker and Deak waterfront projects, residential proposals for Wolfback Ridge and others.

His request was supported by Heynneman and Mayor Robin Sweeny who urged the council to set a date for a public hearing on the matter.

Fraser argued that the staff has enough time and that there had been enough discussion on how to develop open land throughout the city. "There's an awful lot of jobs at stake in the development process and somewhere along the line we're going to reach the point where everything stops," he said.

He and others noted, however, that if Case cannot write the open space element in time there could be a de facto moratorium. Under state law, building permits will be invalid in cities which have not completed plans for open space.

Several developers in the audience also opposed Case.

Councilmen Sally Stanford and Earl Dunphy joined Fraser in voting against the freeze.

Homeowners Will Hear About Bonds

George A. Amaroli, a director of the North Marin County Water District, will talk about the district's $4.1 million bond measure at a public meeting of the Loma Verde Homeowners Association at 8 p.m. tomorrow at Loma Verde School library.

The homeowners also will discuss the cutbacks at Hamilton Air Force Base and the future of Raphael Village, the government housing area near Loma Verde.

Topless Dancers Lose Court Case

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Nine years after Carol Doda introduced the topless with a bare-bosomed dance in North Beach, the California Supreme Court ruled she could be told to cover up.

Miss Doda, who now dances nude in the San Francisco night club district, promptly offered to perform before the judges to show them their Tuesday decision was wrong.

The state court decided local communities could adopt ordinances prohibiting topless - bottomless in bars and restaurants. The decision came on the heels of a U.S. Supreme Court ruling that nude dancing could be barred in clubs where liquor is served.

Mrs. Ruckelshaus Will Keep Post

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Mrs. Jill Ruckelshaus, whose husband has been named acting FBI chief, has gotten approval to keep her part-time White House job.

Mrs. Ruckelshaus had asked her husband, William D. Ruckelshaus, for a legal opinion on whether there was a conflict of interest with her position in the White House and his at the Justice Department. A spokesman said he gave her the go-ahead to stay on at the White House.

Policy On Retail Shops Is Debated

The Sausalito City Council last night inconclusively debated a revised zoning ordinance prohibiting tourist-oriented retail shops in the city's central waterfront area.

After discussion broke off, no date was set to reconsider the ordinance, originally approved by the planning commission more than a year ago and recently reconsidered by the council.

In the area approximately between Napa and Johnson streets, the new ordinance would continue to permit hotels, restaurants, houseboats, office buildings and marine uses such as boat sales and rentals and yacht harbors. But retail stores, now permitted, would not be allowed.

Most discussion centered on Councilman Evert Heynneman's comment that there was a "moral issue" involved in bringing up the ordinance at a time when restaurateur Sam Zakessian is proposing a 20-acre development with many retail shops which would be located on the central waterfront.

"I find it weird at this point that we're changing the ordinance," Heynneman said. "I'm not in agreement with the proposal for the Zakessian property, but I'd rather leave the zoning as it is and review the proposal on its own merits."

Councilman Stephen A. Fraser, who had asked the staff to put the ordinance on the agenda, said that Zakessian and any other developer had to be aware that the city had been considering such a zoning change for years.

"It's a moral issue," said Fraser. "Only if we'd pulled this out of our hip pocket and said, 'here it is.' "

Without the ordinance, Fraser said the waterfront would turn into a "high density visitor-oriented project."

Zakessian said he was willing to listen to "ideas of what you don't want." But he said he opposes "continuous rezoning which has reached the point of being ridiculous."

Last week, the council sent Zakessian's proposal to the planning commission for further study.

Mayor Robin Sweeny broke off discussion on the zoning ordinance without indicating what would happen to it next.

The Sausalito City Council also:

TREES — Introduced a tree ordinance which would make it a misdemeanor for residents to cut down or alter large trees on their property without obtaining a permit.

ART FAIR — Approved having the Sausalito Business Association and chamber of commerce take over production of the annual city art festival previously handled by the Sausalito Arts Center. But the council asked that the fair be geared largely for city residents.

PARKING LOT — Adopted on second reading a proposal to remove meters from City Parking Lot No. 3 and turn it into an attendant-run lot.

Malcolm X Author Shot And Killed

BOSTON (UPI) — Hakim Jamal, who police said was the author of a book on black militant Malcolm X, was shot and killed late Tuesday. Police said his assailants were four members of a black militant group called the "Mau Mau."

Police said four men were in custody and would be arraigned on murder charges today.

THE PRICE WAS REALLY RIGHT!

With the price of beef going out of sight, one Dallas restaurant celebrated its first anniversary yesterday by cutting prices and residents by the hundreds took advantage of the situation. Highest-priced item on the menu was a New Yorker sirloin steak for 44 cents. Shrimp was 38 cents and a club sandwich 18 cents. The owner of TGI Friday's expects the anniversary special to cost him nearly $10,000.

Reagan Backs Boost In College Financing

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Ronald Reagan has agreed to support legislation giving California's 96 community colleges the biggest boost in state financial aid in their history, college leaders said today.

Bills backed by the governor would pump an additional $65 million into the two-year colleges this year, said Dr. Robert E. Swenson, president of Cabrillo College in Aptos.

(Norman D. Bird, business manager for the Marin Community College District, said it's been estimated that the new legislation would bring in an extra $200,000 to $300,000 in state revenues in fiscal 1973-74.

(Bird added, however, that the estimates are based on at least a 4.5 per cent growth in enrollment at College of Marin and Indian Valley Colleges in the fall.

(Added state revenues could mean a drop of 1 or 2 cents in the college district's tax rate for 1973-74, said Bird.)

The legislation will be sponsored by Assemblyman John Vasconcellos and state Sen. Alfred Alquist, both San Jose Democrats, Swenson said in a statement released by the California Junior College Association in Sacramento. He said the package would be amended into bills they have already introduced.

Swenson said $13 million of the $65 million will go toward lowering property taxes in 50 of California's 69 community college districts.

Sidney W. Brossman, chancellor of the California Community Colleges, said the property tax reduction is similar to that achieved in the tax reform bill pushed through the Legislature last year by Reagan and Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti, D-Van Nuys.

The proposed legislation will contain a "guaranteed revenue base" of state and local funds which will be adjusted annually, based on an index of costs and inflation factors put together by the Reagan's Department of Finance and the colleges, Swenson said.

He said the current $125 in state aid per year for nonresident or foreign students would be eliminated but districts will be permitted to add it to the tuition fees already charged such students.

Derailment Halts Santa Fe Freight

A spokesman for the Santa Fe said there were no injuries. The engines and caboose remained on the tracks.

Acrobat Injured Slightly In Fall

NEW YORK (UPI) — A circus acrobat billed as "The Great Atlas" fell approximately 55 feet from near the ceiling of Madison Square Garden Tuesday night when a rope used in his act malfunctioned.

The performer with the Ringling Brothers, Barnum and Bailey Circus was not seriously injured.

Atlas' act called for him to fall from a platform but to stop short of hitting the ground by a rope tied to his wrist. The act apparently worked well enough to break the fall and keep Atlas from being seriously injured.

The next act came on and the acrobat was carried off in a stretcher.

45 Cars Are Expected In Weekend Road Rally

More than 45 cars are expected to take part in the Exploring Grand National Safe Driving Road Rally on Saturday.

The rally, open to all drivers under 21, will start at Marin Bay Lincoln-Mercury on Francisco Boulevard, San Rafael. It will cover a 250-mile course through Marin and Sonoma counties, ending at the Veteran of Foreign Wars in San Anselmo. A barbecue dinner and awards program will conclude the rally.

All competitors in the race on Saturday must attend the rally school at 7:30 p.m., Thursday at Henry C. Hall School in Larkspur.

There is an entry fee, which includes the dinner in the evening. Explorer Scouts and National Sports Car Rally Association are sponsoring the rally.

Awards will be given on the basis of safe driving, time and tallied scores. All cars will be inspected at Marin Bay Lincoln-Mercury car sales before they can enter the competition.

Open House Is Sunday At Museum

Novato Federated Republican Women will mark the opening of the Novato Pre-History Museum at Miwok Park, 2100 Novato Boulevard, with a champagne reception from 3 to 5 p.m. Sunday.

The museum, owned by the City of Novato and operated by the Marin Museum Society, houses a collection of artifacts from the Miwok Indian Culture.

Coast Miwok Indian villages and camps were located throughout Marin County and the artifacts uncovered at various sites.

The museum also serves as an educational center for students of archeology, an educational resource for school children, and site of classes such as the one on basket weaving now being taught by a Pomo Indian.

The open house Sunday is to acquaint the community with the museum, its collection, displays, work and services, according to Ruth Pignaz, chairman of the event. Donations for the museum will be accepted at the open house, she said.

The museum is seeking materials connected with the coast Miwok Indians or early Marin, either for donation or loan, Mrs. Pignaz said.

The museum is open Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. and by special appointment.

Waterfront Project On Agenda

A $35 million development proposal for the A. G. Schoonmaker property on Sausalito's waterfront will go before the Sausalito Planning Commission in city hall tonight at 8 o'clock but chances are it won't be acted upon.

Asst. Planner Jerry Cormack said he is recommending the commission postpone consideration of the residential-commercial-recreational development until after the city's building moratorium expires June 30.

The moratorium was adopted in March 1972 and extended last month until July 1, the state's deadline for cities to submit open space elements to their general plans. It was enacted to give city officials time to revise the subdivision ordinance and prepare an open space plan.

Cormack said the 39.2-acre parcel falls within the moratorium, which includes all developments which may conflict with open space plans.

Action tonight could come, however, on the environmental impact report on the Schoonmaker project, but Cormack said he is recommending that consideration of the requested rezoning and planned unit development be put over.

Also on tonight's agenda is a request by the Charlie Noble Restaurant, 707 Bridgeway, for relief from a requirement that four off-street parking spaces be provided when the restaurant expands its seating by 15.

Myschool Sets Special Events

A spaghetti dinner and a "Mother's Day fun fair" have been scheduled as fund-raising events this month by Myschool, a day care center in Cotati which serves primarily student parents at Sonoma State College.

The dinner will be at 7 p.m. next Tuesday at the Inn of the Beginning in Cotati. Entertainment will include reading of poetry by local poets and country and western music by the Sonoma Mountain Make-Believe Band.

The fair will be from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. May 13 at the Cotati Plaza in the center of Cotati and will feature entertainment, music, puppets, crafts, a children's parade and a rummage and bake sale.

Cotati Tree Flap Enters Court Arena

A tree hassle in Cotati, one of the issues dividing three younger city councilmen from two older members, also has led to filing of misdemeanor violations against the little city's biggest developer.

Forhim Corp., builders of Holiday Park, Cotati's only large subdivision, has been ordered to appear in Santa Rosa Municipal Court today in connection with 10 counts of city ordinance violations.

The violations could lead to a maximum $5,000 fine and or 300 days in jail.

At issue is the cutting down of 38 Cottonwood trees in a condominium development.

The Cotati Planning Commission in April gave Forhim Corp. permission to remove sapling cottonwood trees to make room for carports. Later the city received complaints that mature trees were being destroyed as well as small ones.

Mayor Geoffrey Dunham, one of the three youth majority members on the city council, charged that when complaints were called into city hall, city Mgr. Paul W. Salfen promptly warned Forhim representatives.

This, Dunham claimed, gave the developer time to finish removing the trees before an official appeal could be filed.

On April 19 appeals were filed by Lee Gray and Robert Davis of the parks and recreation commission and City Atty. Jay Cantor was instructed to determine if Forhim Corp. had violated the city's tree ordinance.

The result was the complaint filed in court. The 10 counts charged indicate the cutting of the trees during each day of the appeal period allowed by the ordinance.

In the meantime, majority members of the council moved at the April 19 meeting to get rid of Salfen, excoriating him for his handling of the tree matter.

They voted to change an ordinance so that only a 3-to-2 vote would be needed to fire him. This ordinance change will come before the council again at a metting tomorrow night.

Orchestra Still Seeks Trip Funds

Two $500 donations have brought the youth chamber ensemble Orchestra Piccola within $4,000 of its $32,000 goal to finance its trip to the Festival of Two Worlds in Spoleto, Italy, this summer.

Donations were from the Independent-Journal and the Marin County Board of Supervisors. The figures were announced by the Marin Symphony Association.

Orchestra Piccola, a 27-member chamber ensemble of the Marin Youth Orchestra, is scheduled to leave for Spoleto June 17 for three appearances during the festival. The orchestra, conducted by Hugo Rinaldi of San Rafael, is the first amateur group ever to receive an invitation to the event.

Among businesses and organizations that have made contributions are Chevron Companies, Bechtel Corp., Ross Valley Savings, Bank of Marin, Kaufman's, Ernest Ongaro and Sons and the Rotary Clubs of Mill Valley, San Rafael, Terra Linda and San Anselmo.

The finance committee expects to raise the balance of funds during a concert by the orchestra from 4 p.m. to 7 p.m. Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Roth of Ross.

Benefit Concert Set May 13

Cellist Gabor Rejto and pianist Adolph Baller will do a concert to benefit a scholarship fund for young musicians at 7:30 p.m., May 13, in Angelico Hall at Dominican College in San Rafael.

The program will include Beethoven's "Sonata in F Major, Opus 5," and "Sonata in D Major, Opus 102," and works by Kodaly and Brahms.

The concert will support the Maurice Wilk Memorial Scholarship fund which aids Dominican students.

Rejto, who studied with Pablo Casals, is chairman of the string department at the University of Southern California. Baller, who traveled for 14 years as accompanist to Yehudi Menuhin, is now teaching at Dominican College, Stanford University and the San Francisco Conservatory of Music.

Child Support Plan Is Endorsed

Marin County supervisors yesterday approved the idea of making collection of child support payments entirely the responsibility of the district attorney's office, but delayed actually doing so until June budget hearings.

Dist. Atty. Bruce B. Bales said he would accept the responsibility only with increased staff.

The proposal was suggested by the county grand jury which agreed that Bales should be given "adequate staff" to locate and prosecute, if necessary, fathers who are failing to pay child support.

Currently, collection of child support payments is divided among four county agencies with the district attorney's office and the welfare department carrying the bulk of the load. Probation and the county clerk are involved to lesser degrees.

By consolidating in the district attorney's office, better overall coordination can be achieved — a major stumbling block in the present multidepartment operation, the grand jury said.

Under the proposal endorsed yesterday, the welfare department's three-member staff assigned to child support cases would be transferred to the district attorney's present six-member staff.

In addition, Bales has requaested three more positions, making a child support staff of 12.

Supervisors refused to go along with that portion of the proposal, saying they were not certain Bales's three additional positions are warranted. It was referred to County Administrator John F. Barrows for study.

The board's unanimous support was fueled by comments from William Knudson of the state Department of Welfare who said the state will reward Marin for making child support collections for welfare families on Aid to Families with Dependent Children.

The state's reward program is designed so the county can not only cover its costs of operating a child support office but also can make a profit.

Napa County, with a population half of Marin's, last year netted $99,000 under the state reward program, he said, adding collection of child support takes families off welfare.

Further, Knudson said, collecting for families not on welfare helps keep them off.

The Marin County Board of Supervisors Also:

HELIPORT — Rejected the county aviation commission's recommendation that the county work to locate a heliport at the proposed Golden Gate Bridge District ferry terminal in Larkspur. The commission was asked to look for another site. Local residents and the City of Larkspur were opposed.

SECURITY — Authorized Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere, Auditor-Controller Michael Mitchell and a member of the county counsel's staff to travel to Sacramento to complain of the state nonpayment of $283,000 in Civic Center security costs.

HOUSING — Postponed to May 8 action on a grand jury report on the county housing authority. The board said it wants a reaction from the housing authority board before referring the report to the federal department of housing and urban development.

MORATORIUM — Requested a staff report, including information from the county assessor, on the Marin Municipal Water District's ban on future water connections and the tax impact on the county. The staff report was urged by David G. Greenlee of the Marin Builders' Exchange.

JUNIPERS — Heard a request from Roumiguiere that the county ask the state to reimburse property owners whose Tam junipers are torn out by inspectors because of rust disease. The county's agricultural commissioner will be asked to report next week on halting the abatement of the plants.

MILK — Referred to the county's agricultural commission a request from Supervisor Gary T. Giacomini that the county support a hike in milk prices to offset an increase in the price of hay to dairy ranchers.

BOUNDARIES — Set May 8 for discussion of proposed boundary changes around Stinson Beach to the Golden Gate National Recreation Area. The changes are requested by a citizens' group to free funds for inclusion of Wolfback Ridge in Sausalito.

TRIP — Authorized Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. and Asst. County Counsel Richard V. Godino to travel to Washington D.C. to testify before congressional committees urging funding for the Golden Gate National Recreation Area.

ELECTION — Set June 12 for special elections in Marin. The City of Sausalito and the North Marin County Water District both requested the date.

WELFARE — Heard a report from Thomas F. Campanella, general relief hearing officer, that since February, 269 cases were heard. Some 192 were approved, 77 denied and 26 appealed to the board.

DIRECTORIES — Authorized $1,850 for changing 12 building directories in the Administration Building and Hall of Justice.

SUIT — Authorized the county counsel's office to defend the county in a $10 million suit against the county, Town of Corte Madera, state and Bay Conservation and Development Commission. Dismissal From Only One Post

Several lines of type dropped from a story appearing in yesterday's Independent-Journal yesterday distorted comments made by Marin City Council chairman Melvin Atkins to the Marin County Redevelopment Agency on Monday.

Atkins urged that Wallace K. Shepherd be dismissed from his post as executive director of the agency, and not his job as executive director of the Marin County Housing Authority as the story made it appear.

Lines deleted included a notation that Nesbit Crutchfield, also a Marin City Councilman, last week urged the housing authority to dismiss Shepherd as executive director of the authority.

15,000 Dimes Reported Taken

OAKLAND (UPI) — A San Jose coin collector is missing 15,000 dimes, valued at $2,250.

Beaulieu, historian of the California State Numismatic Association, said the coins' value was due to their high silver content.

Mrs. Sessi Will Fill Nixon's Slot

Marie J. Sessi of Rafael Meadows, an unsuccessful candidate last month for the San Rafael Board of Education, was appointed yesterday to the Marin County Planning Commission. (Other supervisors stories, page 1.)

Mrs. Sessi, appointed from among eight applicants by Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere, is treasurer of the Las Gallinas Valley Master Plan Committee and a member of the Los Ranchitos Improvement Association.

She replaces Jack G. Nixon who stepped down last month after winning a seat on the San Rafael City Council.

She and her husband, Gimi, have six children and reside at 195 Circle Road.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Detroit automotive heiress Charlotte Ford, divorced wife of Greek shipping tycoon Stavros Niarchos, was married Tuesday to J. Anthony Forstmann, a partner in a New York investment firm.

Transit Board Delays Action On Fare Zones

The Marin County Transit District board deferred action yesterday on a proposal to create fare zones in Marin for local bus routes pending further study.

The fare zones had been suggested last month as a way of covering an expected $82,000 operating deficit next fiscal year and equalizing bus fares.

Currently, patrons pay 25 cents on any route, whether between two neighboring communities or all the way to West Marin.

Board members agreed with their staff that until more is known about route usage it would be best not to attempt to set up fare zones. They said, however, they will review the matter in January.

The Marin County Transit District board also:

BUDGET — Set July 3 for a public hearing on the district's proposed $654,307 budget for fiscal 1973-74. The bulk of budget funds are slated for intra-county bus service.

RAILROAD — Urged the Golden Gate Bridge District to expedite application for federal funds for acquisition of the Northwestern Pacific Railroad right-of-way between Larkspur and Sausalito.

CONTRACT — Rejected a $360,000 claim against the district from the Marin Transit Systems Inc., which maintains the district breached its contract with the firm when it withdrew a subsidy this year.

Gail Fisher Wed

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Actress Gail Fisher, who plays the secretary on the popular "Mannix" detective TV series, was married to writer Robert A. Walker in Tijuana, Mexico, three weeks ago.

Syndicate Buys First School Quake Bonds

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — State Treasurer Ivy Baker Priest Tuesday sold $25 million in school earthquake bonds to a banking syndicate at an average net interest rate of 4.6 per cent.

The bonds were the first to be sold out of a total of $350 million approved by voters last year to finance repair of school buildings to make them earthquake-safe.

Mrs. Priest said the bonds were sold to a syndicate made up of First National City Bank of New York, United California Bank, Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. of New York and Salomon Brothers and Associates of New York.

More than 115 school districts in 43 counties have filed applications for school earthquake construction funds, Mrs. Priest said. Allocation of funds, she said, will be made to districts on a formula-matching basis as districts follow up their applications with construction plans and bids.

Connection Fees Hiked For Water

The North Marin Water District, seeking revenue to finance capital improvements programs, last night boosted its connection fees and indicated water rates would be hiked, possibly 10 per cent next January. (Another North Marin water district story, page 1.)

The connection fee, $300 a dwelling unit, was raised to $400 immediately, to $500 by June 1, to $525 on Jan. 1, 1974, and $25 a year thereafter.

Dist. Mgr. John O. Nelson said that the district has three ways to raise revenue, connection fees, water rates and property tax and that he had eliminated raising the tax rate from consideration.

The intent of raising the connection fee is to have new growth pay its share of the capital improvements, Nelson said.

Under this principle, the district would be justified in hiking the connection fees by $445, he said. Directors agreed it wouldn't be fair to enact such a steep hike immediately and compromised for increases with a longer period.

Spokesmen for persons with connection agreements pending before the board last night requested agreements under the old fee schedule.

David L. Greenlee, manager of Marin Builders Exchange, reminded board members that fee increase would be passed on to the home buyer and cost him more than a water rate increase.

Robert Burke, president of the San Marin Improvement Association, said it has been "obvious for some time the new construction hasn't been carrying near its fair share" of capital improvements.

Directors agreed that a public hearing will be held before water rates are increased. Nelson estimated the water bill for an average home in Novato is about $84 a year.

Park Official's Wife Is Killed

YOSEMITE (UPI) — The body of the wife of the assistant superintendent of Yosemite National Park was found Tuesday in a pool at the base of Vernal Falls.

Mrs. Leah Good, 49, had disappeared the day before after leaving her home on a hike to hunt spring wild flowers on the Mist Trail near the 317- foot high falls, said rangers.

John Good, her husband, said she had left a note saying she was making the hike alone.

After rangers and volunteers conducted an all night search unsuccessfully, visitors spotted the body.

Speaker Set For Campaign Dinner

The dinner will be at 7 p.m. at the Petaluma Jewish Community Center at 740 Western Avenue. Reservations may be made through the center, according to Irving Newman and Milton L. Forman, Co-chairmen of the 1973 campaign.

Search For Lost Teen Fruitless

Petaluma police yesterday unsuccessfully searched the river area of the city by boat and helicopter for a 16-year-old high school boy who mysteriously disappeared April 23.

Young McKernan was last seen about 10 a.m. April 23, when he left the family home at 1621 Weaverly Drive to go to a Petaluma market to pay a bill for his mother, Mrs. Francis McKernan.

Both the mother and the youth's sister, Mrs. Bonnie Jerozal of Napa, have told police they know no reason why he would run away.

Young McKernan's unlocked bicycle was found at the Petaluma library about three hours after his disappearance. His family said "he never left it unlocked."

The youth was described as 5 feet, 9 inches tall, weighing about 125 pounds. He has moderately long brown hair and was believed wearing a white pinstriped shirt and gray pants when he disappeared.

RECOVERING FROM SURGERY

An ancient bay tree exposes a freshly treated wound to filtered sunlight on the Indian Valley Colleges site in Ignacio yesterday, unaware that soon it will overlook the bookstore and interim library of the Marin Community College District's new North Marin campus. The district engaged J and B Tree Service of Woodacre to doctor 200 oaks and laurels in the beautiful valley. The experts did root pruning and aerating, topping and pruning. This laurel had a low limb amputated so it wouldn't be bruised by construction equipment, and the scar sealed with tree paint so it wouldn't bleed sap. Construction of the roads and parking lots starts in June.

Musicians Plead Innocent In Dope

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Four rock musicians, two of them from Marin, have pleaded innocent to charges arising from seizure of 24 ounces of cocaine said by authorities to have a street value of $250,000.

The four — Larry K. Brown, 30, and Anthony L. Cruse, 25, both of Kentfield; Michael John McMahon, 26, of British Columbia, and Peter Ferst, 31, of San Francisco — were arrested April 10 in both Marin and San Francisco after an agent negotiated sale of the cocaine.

All are accused of conspiracy, with McMahon and Ferst also charged with distributing the drug and Brown and Cruse with possessing it. The four pleaded Monday before U.S. District Court Judge Alfonso J. Zirpoli, and the next court appearance was set for May 22.

896 Fire Deaths Recorded In 1972

LONDON (AP) — Fire claimed a record 896 lives throughout Britain and Northern Ireland during 1972, the Fire Research Station announced.

The figure exceeded the previous record of 865 dead in 1968 and was at least 100 above the average for the past four years.

Driver Injured As Car Hits Parked Auto

A Corte Madera woman was hospitalized with injuries suffered yesterday when her car hit a parked car and bicycle, San Rafael police reported.

Mary Dunford Reid, 27, of 303 Prince Royal Drive, was reported in satisfactory condition today at Marin General Hospital with head injuries.

According to police, she was northbound on Lincoln Avenue about 11:30 a.m. when her car hit the rear of a parked car belonging to Kevin Scott Ancic, 21, of 106 Union Street, knocking it onto the sidewalk where it hit a bicycle belonging to Dee Brunal of 106 Union Street.

Year-Round School Program Is Approved

A year-round program for children in the John Reed and Waldo Rohnert Schools in Rohnert Park was approved last night by the Cotati-Rohnert Park School District board, despite opposition by many parents.

Two trustees, Andrew J. Camozzi and Gloria A. Garrett, voted against the so-called "45-15" plan, but the other three voted for it.

The new program will start for kindergarten-through-sixth grade pupils on July 9, according to board secretary Miriam Horne.

Children will attend school for 45-day periods followed by 15 days vacation throughout the year.

This is the district's first venture into year-round use of schools, an effort to cope with swelling enrollment in Rohnert Park.

Overall, however, the district's enrollment dropped by four pupils to 1,992, Dist. Supt. James H. Davidson told the board last night.

The board voted to abandon a long-time policy of naming schools after "deceased historical personages."

Residents of the district will be asked for suggestions for a name for a new school in the new Holiday Park subdivision, Mrs. Horne said. The board placed no limitation on the type of name.

Sections of freeway involved are:

1. Southbound, traffic will be permitted to pass through work area at southbound off-ramp to Shoreline Highway during paving at various times between 8 a.m. and 3:30 p.m.

2. Northbound between foot of Waldo Grade and south end of Richardson Bay Bridge, traffic will be routed into two lanes between noon and 3:30 p.m. during paving.

Mother In Guilty Plea On Aid

A Marin City woman, who received public aid for her seven children while her husband was working full time, has pleaded guilty in Marin Municipal Court to a felony charge of welfare fraud.

The guilty plea by Marie Coleman before Judge Peter Allen Smith depended on a promise that she would receive jail time only if a probation report recommended it. Sentencing was set for May 24 in Superior Court.

The 36-year-old housewife began receiving $216 in aid to families with dependent children in August 1969 because her husband, a construction worker had moved out of the home, according to Deputy Dist. Atty. Milton M. Hyams.

However, she failed to tell authorities he returned in May of 1970. She is charged with improperly receiving $4,187.50 welfare between November 1970 and January 1972.

Aid was finally cut off last year when a social worker became suspicious. A day after the worker went to the Coleman home and saw a man driving up, Mrs. Coleman tried to have the welfare payments stopped, Hyams said.

Jail Term Set For Auto Theft

An ex-convict from Healdsburg has been ordered to spend nine months in jail for auto theft.

In addition to the jail sentence Monday, Judge David Menary of Marin Superior Court gave Robert Hale Herbst, 29, three years of probation.

Herbst was arrested Feb. 1 by a San Rafael policeman, who saw him pouring oil into the engine of an auto on Fifth Avenue and stopped to help. A computer check showed the car was stolen, police said.

With prior arrests for burglary and auto theft and a prison term for concealing stolen property, "Mr. Herbst has certainly shown he is incapable of functioning at liberty in the community, either on parole or probation," Probation Officer Jesse W. Johnson told the judge.

Twister Takes Lives Of Two

KAHOKA, Mo. (UPI) — A tornado struck this northeastern Missouri town late Tuesday, killing two persons and injuring several other persons, state police reported.

"We have at least two persons killed, a 15-month-old boy and a 50-year-old woman. Several were hurt, but we don't know how many yet," said Highway Patrolman Donald Alvord.

He said the twister hit about 9 p.m. in the small town just south of the Iowa border and west of the Illinois border.

NOT WORRIED — Julie Nixon Eisenhower predicted Tuesday that the Watergate affair will not swamp the Republican party, telling reporters she believes "the GOP and the rest of the nation will realize that this was just seven men who made a mistake and others made a mistake trying to cover it up.

Bill Would Legalize Home Grown 'Grass'

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Marijuana smokers could grow their own in backyard "victory gardens" and legally use the crop under legislation approved by an Assembly committee and sent to the house floor.

Californians overwhelmingly rejected an identical ballot initiative, Prop. 19, by a 2 to 1 margin last November.

It was the first time a bill to legalize marijuana smoking has reached the floor of either legislative house.

With no votes to spare, the Assembly Criminal Justice Committee Tuesday voted 4 to 2 for the bill (AB376) by Assemblyman Henry A. Waxman, D-Los Angeles.

It would legalize private use, possession and cultivation. But selling the drug still would be illegal.

The committee also sent to the floor a much milder bill (AB449), by Assemblyman Alan Sieroty, D-Beverly Hills, to remove all felony penalties for marijuana possession. Convictions would be treated as misdemeanors. The vote was 7 to 0.

Gov. Ronald Reagan vetoed an identical bill last year.

Another measure legalizing marijuana smoking but not cultivation was rejected on a 3 to 3 vote. That bill, also by Waxman, was patterned after recommendations of President Nixon's National Commission on Marijuana and Drug Abuse.

The deciding "swing" vote for the cultivation bill was cast by a Republican, Assemblyman Kenneth L. Maddy of Fresno. All other yes votes were cast by Democrats.

Maddy told a newsman he was not commmitted to voting for the bill on the floor but believed it should be fully debated there. He also reported being impressed by arguments that home cultivation would head off commercialization of the drug.

Dr. Leo Hollister, medical investigator at the Veterans Administration hospital in Palo Alto, said Madison Avenue-style promotion of marijuana could be avoided by allowing smokers to grow their own in "victory gardens."

Robert Ashford, state coordinator of the rejected ballot initiative, said "by allowing people to grow their own we can deprive marijuana dealers of large numbers of their best customers..

"People will grow their own marijuana," Ashford continued, "and the market price will adily drop. Complicated, expensive airplane and boat smuggling operations will become less feasible and less profitable."

But Carl W. Anderson, lobbyist for the California Peace Officers Association, countered: "In the process of returning young Americans to the farm you're going to have a lot of problems."

He also said legalizing marijuana smoking would "stimulate the underworld into home delivery."

Scholarship Awarded To Marin Youth

William Louis Larkins Jr., a senior at Marin Catholic High School, last night was awarded a $4,000 four-year college scholarship by Pacific Gas and Electric Co.

Larkins, who lives at 222 Evergreen Drive, Kentfield, was one of 12 Northern and Central California high school seniors to win the scholarships for which 3,500 students were competing on the basis of scholastic ability alone.

Two other scholarships were awarded by the company for need as well as ability and two were awarded to outstanding children of company employees.

The awards were presented at a banquet in San Francisco, at which 32 runners-up in the competition received shares of common stock. These include Carlita Kay Horst, a senior at Petaluma High School.

Water Is Off At Watergate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Apartment dwellers in one section of the Watergate complex —which gained notoriety by the political bugging case — were bugged by something else Tuesday: lack of water.

Tenants in the plush Watergate South building were without water for nine hours while workmen repaired a break in a water main.

POTTERY — Helen Michel of the Lawrence Berkeley Laboratory at 4 p.m. next Monday in Room 108 of Darwin Hall of Sonoma State College will describe how nuclear devices can be used to determine where ancient pottery was made.

A Housing Victory For Family

Overriding the objections of its staff, the Marin County Housing Authority board last night authorized a young San Rafael family to place its Woodland Avenue apartment on the leased housing program.

Ed Emond and his family claim to have been accepted for the program only to be told, two weeks after moving into the apartment, that they did not qualify because they exceeded a 20 per cent limit on the number of subsidized units allowed in any one apartment house.

Emond appealed to the Marin County Human Rights Department, claiming he had been treated unfairly by the housing authority staff.

The housing authority staff countered that since no lease had ever been signed, and no written authorization given, Emonds was out of luck and could not receive the $124 subsidy on the $160 per month apartment.

The housing authority board last week heard the appeal but delayed action until its staff could meet with Emonds and human rights officials to iron out the differences.

That meeting took place yesterday, and last night Robert Lee, who heads the leased housing program, said he could not change his recommendation, even though the City of San Rafael had waived its 20 per cent limitation.

Executive Director Wallace K. Shepherd told the board the staff's negative recommendation "doesn't mean we can't feel for Mr. Emonds but we have to stick by the rules."

Board member Philip S. Ehrlich Jr. responded that no rule was being violated if the city was willing to waive the 20 per cent limitation in this case.

Shepherd responded that "Emonds is not the issue. . .It's the (20 per cent) policy and whether we go along with an exception" for one person and not another.

"What do we tell those people we turned away because of the 20 per cent limitation?" asked George Brady, Shepherd's assistant.

"If this passes, I will wager that the repercussions from Marin City will be that Emonds was accepted because of the pigmentation of his skin," he said, referring to the fact that Emond is white.

"We can't allow special treatment because of his unwarranted sponsorship by the human rights department," Shepherd said, adding Emonds showed a "lack of human values" by jumping the waiting list for housing.

Ehrlich and board member Harold A. Strauss responded that such was not the case since Emonds had found the apartment and brought it into the leased housing program under established procedure.

The waiting list is for those who have not found their own apartments or homes acceptable to the program, they said.

Strauss, who attended yesterday's staff meeting with Emonds, said he was surprised many of the arguments had not been expressed during that meeting.

Gerald J. Hood, executive director of the human rights department, said the important thing was "finding housing for the Emond family."

"An honest error has been committed and there's a chance to correct it," he said.

Strauss agreed saying he didn't know who to blame for the foulup but that it wasn't important.

His motion to approve the Emond application drew support from Ehrlich and James G. McDonald and opposition from Arthur Miller Jr., who said rules should be followed. Irving Perlman abstained from voting.

Zeppo Divorced

Remodeling Of Office Is Paid Off

The Marin County Housing Authority board last night approved a $750 final payment to one board member's architectural firm for remodeling of the agency's new offices at Northgate Industrial Park.

James G. McDonald, a partner in the San Anselmo firm of Wagstaff and McDonald which did the work, abstained from voting.

In answer to questions McDonald said the total contract was for "about $1,600 or $1,700" and saw no impropriety about it. He added that the work had been done for a lower than usual price.

In other action last night, the board requested its staff to develop cost figures on remodeling four Marin City public housing units at a time as opposed to 12.

The Marin County Grand Jury recommended four at a time thus freeing eight for occupancy but Executive Director Wallace K. Shepherd said the work could be done cheaper if contractors were given 12 at a time.

Some 150 units in the high rise apartment buildings are slated to be remodeled with $525,000 in federal funds. The architect has yet to be hired.

The board also signed a $7,000 agreement with the Marin County sheriff's office for special protection at the agency's Marin City office. Residents said the special deputy should be assigned to patrol the streets.

House Bill Seeks Ash Confirmation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House has voted 229 to 171 to make the present director of the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) and his deputy subject to Senate confirmation.

Republicans Tuesday lost in an attempt to have Senate confirmation apply only to future holders of the two offices but not the present director, Roy L. Ash, or his deputy, Frederic V. Malek.

The House measure would abolish the jobs of Ash and Malek and then immediately reestablish them subject to confirmation. The Senate had passed a milder version 63 to 17 in February.

Grant For TV Dramatic Series

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Exxon Corp. and the Corporation for Public Broadcasting Tuesday announced a combined grant of $2 million to WNET-TV for the production of a major drama series, "Theater in America."

The Exxon grant of $1 million is the largest sum ever given to educational television by a corporation for a single season's domestic production.

"Theater in America" will include 18 to 20 dramas to be broadcast nationally. About a dozen of these will be based on regional theater groups.

Proponents Of Guns To Meet Tomorrow

The first meeting of the new Petaluma branch of the National Association to Keep and Bear Arms will be at 8 p.m. tomorrow at 720 I Street, Petaluma.

The association is a conservative organization which opposes all gun control legislation, according to Donald Hausmann, chairman. At the meeting a film strip, "Firearms and Free Men," will be shown and there will be a discussion of gun control.

FARMER'S FLOOD BUGGY

A farmer in St. Mary's, Mo., isn't going to be using his tractor for farming for awhile, because of heavy flooding, but that doesn't keep him from using it for transportation through the deep waters. Severe flooding has hit seven Mississippi River basin states and worse flooding is expected because of heavy rains in the upper Mississippi Valley.

Behr Joins Hospital Closing Probe Panel

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael, has been appointed to a committee charged with investigating the state administration's proposed phaseout of hospital services.

The select committee created by the Senate Rules Committee is headed by Sen. Alfred E. Alquist, D-San Jose, and includes Senators Alan Short, D-Stockton; Robert Lagomarsino, R-Santa Barbara; George Deukmejian, R-Los Angeles; Randolph Collier, D-Del Norte, and Howard Way, R-Fresno.

The committee, given subpoena power and authorized to hire what staff if needs, will look into complaints that state mental hospitals are set for closing before adequate care is arranged in local communities.

The committee will also investigate complaints of conflict of interest on the part of consultants who prepared a report on the state mental health program and will look into reports that mentally ill persons involved in crime end up in jail rather than in suitable treatment facilities.

Mayor Alioto's Son Takes Wife

RENO (UPI) — Thomas Alioto, 26, the astrologer son of San Francisco Mayor Joseph L. Alioto, has wed a young New Orleans woman.

It was disclosed Tuesday that Alioto married Nelda J. Jones, a 20-year-old black, two weeks ago. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Jones of New Orleans.

Records indicated the couple filed for a marriage license April 14 at the Washoe County Clerk's office and were wed the following day.

College Housing Need Is 'Acute'

An acute shortage of housing for students at College of Marin was reported yesterday by Julie Simpson, director of the student government's housing referral service.

Miss Simpson, a prenursing student, estimated that about one third of the student body is in need of housing at one time or another during the college year, and many are presently forced to "camp out" in vans.

She asked that landlords with quarters available for students list them with the service at the college and said the preference as to kind of tenant will be respected.

Most needed, according to Miss Simpson, are rooms renting for no more than $100 a month.

84 Strep Cases Reported Last Week

Eighty-four cases of streptococcus infection were reported last week in Marin County, making it the most prevalent communicable disease reported according to Dr. Carolyn B. Albrecht, Marin County health officer.

Eighteen cases of gonorrhea were reported; three of mumps; two each of syphillis and infectious hepatitis and one each of tuberculosis and salmonella.

Help Advances For Runaways

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate juvenile delinquency subcommittee Tuesday unanimously approved a bill to build temporary shelters and provide counseling for youngsters who run away from home.

The measure, sponsored by Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., subcommittee chairman, passed the Senate late last year but was never acted upon by the House.

The bill would authorize $10 million a year to finance houses to provide shelter, food and counseling for the estimated one million young Americans who run away from home every year.

Mayor Alioto's Son Takes Wife

RENO (UPI) — Thomas Alioto, 26, the astrologer son of San Francisco Mayor Joseph L. Alioto, has wed a young New Orleans woman.

It was disclosed Tuesday that Alioto married Nelda J. Jones, a 20-year-old black, two weeks ago. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Jones of New Orleans.

Records indicated the couple filed for a marriage license April 14 at the Washoe County Clerk's office and were wed the following day.

College Housing Need Is 'Acute'

An acute shortage of housing for students at College of Marin was reported yesterday by Julie Simpson, director of the student government's housing referral service.

Miss Simpson, a prenursing student, estimated that about one third of the student body is in need of housing at one time or another during the college year, and many are presently forced to "camp out" in vans.

She asked that landlords with quarters available for students list them with the service at the college and said the preference as to kind of tenant will be respected.

Most needed, according to Miss Simpson, are rooms renting for no more than $100 a month.

84 Strep Cases Reported Last Week

Eighty-four cases of streptococcus infection were reported last week in Marin County, making it the most prevalent communicable disease reported according to Dr. Carolyn B. Albrecht, Marin County health officer.

Eighteen cases of gonorrhea were reported; three of mumps; two each of syphillis and infectious hepatitis and one each of tuberculosis and salmonella.

Help Advances For Runaways

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate juvenile delinquency subcommittee Tuesday unanimously approved a bill to build temporary shelters and provide counseling for youngsters who run away from home.

The measure, sponsored by Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., subcommittee chairman, passed the Senate late last year but was never acted upon by the House.

The bill would authorize $10 million a year to finance houses to provide shelter, food and counseling for the estimated one million young Americans who run away from home every year.

GRECIAN FESTIVAL

Food Page

GRECIAN FESTIVAL

Variety Of Foods Will Be Offered

"Flavor of Greece" is the theme for the second annual Grecian festival, which will be held Saturday and Sunday at the Marin Veterans Memorial Building and on the adjoining fairgrounds.

Those who attend the festival to eat will find a variety of flavors in Grecian foods prepared by the women of the Greek Orthodox Church and served both in the taverna, a sidewalk cafe, and the kaffenion, a coffee shop.

The women have prepared mousaka, egg plant and beef pie; tiropetes, pastry and feta cheese rolls; dolmathes, stuffed grape leaves with rice; spanakopita, a cheese and spinach dish; pilaf; souvalakia, barbecued beef on a skewer; baklava, layered pastry with honey and nuts; diples, deep fried pastry covered with honey and nuts; koulourakia, butter cookies; daridopita, spicy nut cake; kourambiethes, butter cookies showered with powdered sugar; and loukomades, deep fried honey and nut balls.

Recipes for the dishes are being compiled into a cookbook, which will be available later in the year. Included in the book will be Mrs. Chris Christo's mousaka and Mrs. Gus Stathis' dolmades. Mrs. Christo and Mrs. Stathis are both San Rafael residents.

MOUSAKA

4 large egg plants
Olive oil (for brushing eggplant)
3½ to 4 lb. ground beef
2 large onions-chopped
1 tsp. salt
½ tsp pepper
½ tsp. garlic powder

1 can whole tomatoes (16 oz)
1 can tomato sauce (8 oz)
½ tsp. oregano
1 tsp. salt
½ tsp. pepper
grated cheese
1 cup chopped parsley

¼ lb. butter
¾ cup flour
1 quart milk
1 tsp. salt (heaping)
white pepper
6 eggs

Add one-half teaspoon garlic powder, one-half teaspoon pepper, one teaspoon salt to ground meat. Brown until partially cooked, add onions to meat and continue browning.

In large sauce pan combine tomatoes and tomato sauce. Crush the whole tomatoes, add one-half teaspoon oregano, one teaspoon salt, one-half teaspoon pepper and one cup parsley.

Peel and slice egg plant length-wise, one-fourth inch thick. Brush both sides with oil and season lightly with salt and pepper. Broil on both sides til just golden brown.

Using pan approximately 17 x 12 x 2, put a layer of eggplant on bottom of pan, slightly overlapping each slice. Sprinkle evenly with grated cheese. Next add half of meat sauce on top of egg plant. Repeat ending with egg plant on top. Set aside.

In saucepan, melt one-fourth pound butter, add one teaspoon salt, a few dashes white pepper. Add three-fourths cup flour, stir and lightly brown. Slowly add one quart milk, stirring constantly. Cook until very thick.

Beat six eggs very well. Add a little cream sauce to eggs, then add eggs back into sauce and mix well. Pour about half of sauce evenly over casserole. Bake 10 minutes at 350 degrees.

Remove pan and add rest of cream sauce evenly over casserole. Sprinkle generously with cheese. Bake 30-40 min. until lightly brown.

DOLMADES

1 lb. ground round
1 big yellow onion — chopped fine
⅓ bunch of parsley, mint and dill
1 egg
⅔ cup of rice
Salt, pepper and ½ cup of olive oil.
1 jar grape leaves (12 oz)
Brown onion with olive oil.

Mix ground round, egg, rice and the greens.

Add the already brown onion and enough water til mixture is very moist.

Blanch grape leaves, remove long stem on leaves and lay them but one at a time with stem side up.

Place approximately 1 teaspoon of meat mixture (more or less, depending on size of grape leaf) on leaf, closest to stem.

Turn the edges of the leaf up over meat and roll leaf toward the points.

Add 2 cups water, sprinkle salt and pepper on top.

For a Quick Sauce

Beat yolks of two eggs and whites separately.

Heat the dolmathes and its juice. Have hot juice to add to egg mixture.

Fold egg whites into yolk mixture, add hot juice slowly. A little flour may be added to thicken. About two tablespoons.

Add juice of one or two lemons to juice, as sourness required.

Fold in some sour cream for added flavor and texture.

This is best made over double boiler.

Pour over the Dolmathes for a delicious flavoring.

Also preparing the delicacies will be Mmes. James George and James Cordello of Sonoma, Mrs. James Adams, Mrs. Markos Perivolaris of Novato and Mrs. Michael Balopoulos of San Anselmo.

Meatless Dish List Expanded

One more meatless meal to add to the family repertory is a tuna-mushroom ring, suggested by Peggy Hopkins, Pacific Gas and Electric Co. home economist in San Rafael.

It is served with a spinach sauce for added flavor as well as nutrition.

She also suggests a low calorie tapioca pudding to complete the low cost meal.

TUNA-MUSHROOM RING

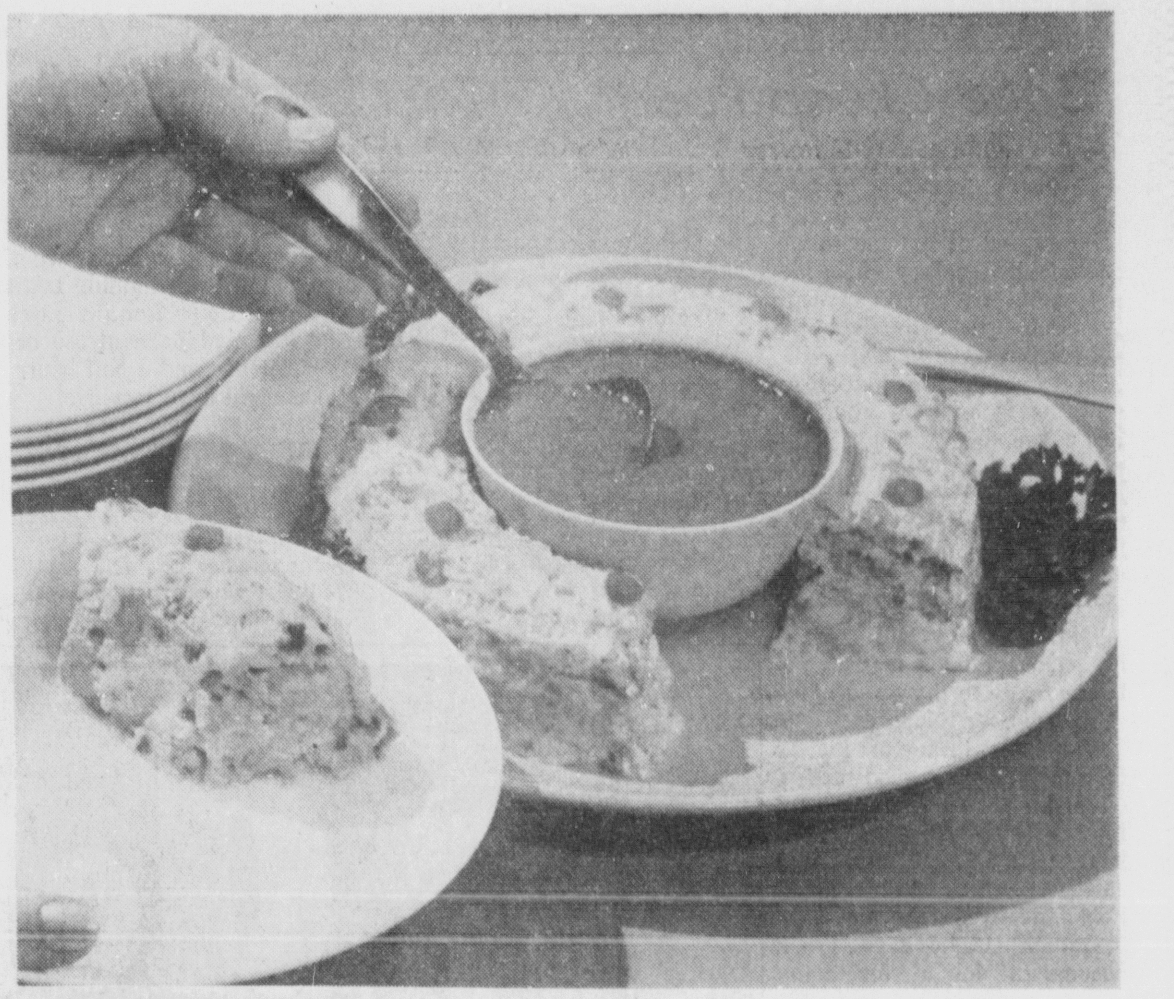
1 7-ounce can chunk-style tuna, drained
1 10½-ounce can cream of mushroom soup
2 eggs, beaten
2 cups cooked rice
1 cup milk
1 3-ounce can chopped mushrooms (⅔ cup)
1 tablespoon chopped pimiento
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
1 tablespoon grated onion
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper

Rinse tuna; drain well then break apart; set aside. Place soup in bowl and stir to make smooth. Blend in eggs. Stir in tuna, rice, milk, and remaining ingredients, mixing well. Turn into well greased one-and-a-half-quart ring mold. Set in pan of water and bake in 325-degree preheated oven for one hour. Remove from oven; let stand five minutes; turn out on heated platter. Fill center with buttered vegetable or a cream sauce such as cheese, mushrooms or Spinach Sauce (recipe below). Makes six servings. Approximate cost: 20 cents per serving.

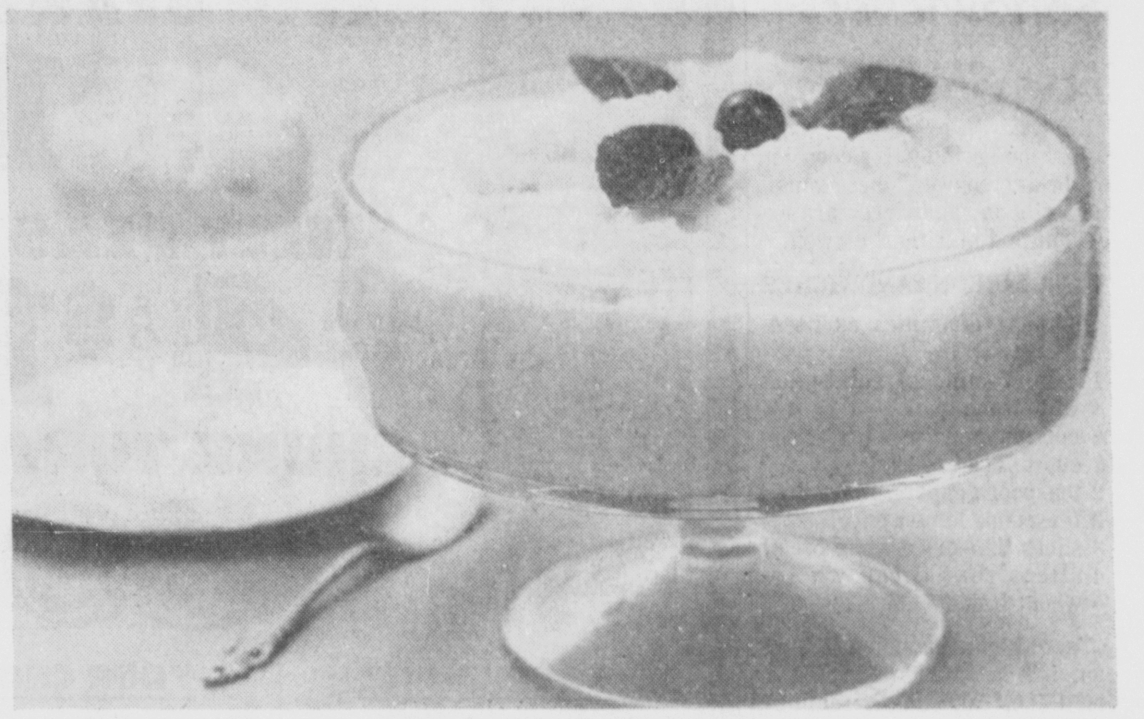
SPINACH SAUCE

1 10-ounce package frozen chopped spinach, thawed
1 cup milk
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 tablespoon minced onion
2 tablespoons flour
1 teaspoon seasoned salt
Dash Tabasco
2 teaspoons lemon juice

Place thawed spinach and milk in blender bowl; blend until spinach is pureed. Set aside. Melt butter in saucepan; add onion and saute until it is limp. Stir in flour; let simmer for two minutes. Blend in milk-spinach mixture and cook, stirring, until mixture boils. Add salt, Tabasco and lemon juice. Serve hot over Tuna-Mushroom Ring. Makes two cups; six servings. Approximately 5 cents per serving.



TUNA MUSHROOM ring is a low cost meatless meal and can be combined with a spinach sauce or a cream or cheese sauce for variation.



TAPIOCA IS an old favorite among desserts. This version of the pudding has only 106 calories per serving and is easy to make.

LOW CARLORIE TAPIOCA PUDDING

½ cup instant non-fat milk
3 tablespoons quick cooking tapioca
4 tablespoons sugar
⅛ teaspoon salt
1¾ cups water
1 egg, separated
¾ teaspoon vanilla

Combine milk, tapioca, two tablespoons sugar and salt in saucepan, mixing well. Add enough water, stirring, to make medium thick paste. Stir in egg yolk. Blend in remaining water. Let stand five minutes.

Meanwhile, in small mixer bowl beat egg white until foamy; gradually beat in two tablespoons sugar. Continue beating until soft meringue; let stand with beaters in mixture to be used later.

Cook tapioca mixture over medium heat, stirring constantly, until it comes to a full rolling boil. Remove from heat. Start beating until evenly blended. Remove beaters and cool slightly: Stir in vanilla. Chill thoroughly.

Makes about three cups, or five servings. One hundred six calories per serving.

How To Cut Meat Costs Is Shared: A Flank Steak Roll

Merle Ellis was the guest on Diane MacMillan's "Kitchen Time in Marin" KTIM radio show yesterday, giving tips on how to save money by cutting up meat at home.

He shared a stuffed flank steak recipe with listeners and readers:

ROLL OF STUFFED FLANK STEAK

1 flank steak (as thick as you can find)
1 tablespoon olive oil
1 tablespoon butter
6 to 8 mushrooms, chopped
6 to 8 green onions, chopped
½ cup ham, diced (this can be left over, boiled ham, Canadian bacon)
1 or 2 Polish sausage, diced (this can also be a variety of other smoked sausages)
1 cup pine nuts (slivered almonds)
1 recipe Neva's Quick Pilaf (recipe below)
1 cup grated cheese (Gruyere, Swiss or Cheddar)
1 more tablespoon each, butter and olive oil
1 cup flour seasoned with salt, pepper and tarragon
1 10½ ounce can beef bouillon or 1½ cups beef stock
1 cup red wine

In a heavy skillet saute in butter and oil the mushrooms and onions until limp. Add ham, sausages, nuts and pilaf. Mix well and set aside. Butterfly the flank steak. Place flank steak on counter and with a sharp knife slice almost through lengthwise so that, when folded over, the steak is twice as large.

With a mallet, heavy frying pan or rolling pin pound the steak until as thin as possible. Liberally spread with grated cheese and cover with a layer of dressing. Save leftover stuffing or something else. Or stuff two flank steaks and freeze for future use.

Roll the stuffed flank steak like a jelly roll and secure with tooth picks and lace with string. Roll in seasoned flour and brown in oil and butter. Add beef stock and wine and simmer until tender, approximately two hours. Add more stock as needed.

To serve: slice and serve on warmed platter. Thicken sauce with a couple of teaspoons of arrowroot dissolved in an equal amount of water. Pour over slices. Serve with salad, French bread and hearty red wine.

NEVA'S QUICK PILAF

1 cup rice
2 tablespoons butter
½ package dry onion soup mix
2 cups water

Brown rice in butter and add onion soup mix.

Shake first to blend seasonings.) Add water, cover and simmer until moisture is absorbed, approximately 30 minutes.

Swedish Salad Is Good With Ham And Potatoes

This Swedish salad combines a variety of fruits and is a fine accompaniment to baked ham and scalloped potatoes dinner.

SWEDISH SALAD

A grand molded salad chockful of fruit.

1 can (1 pound and 4 ounces) crushed pineapple in heavy syrup
1 envelope unflavored gelatin
2 eggs
1½ teaspoons prepared yellow mustard
1½ teaspoons cider vinegar
⅛ teaspoon salt
½ cup heavy cream, whipped
½ cup diced celery
1 red Delicious apple, unpeeled and diced

Drain pineapple well; to the syrup add enough water to make one and one-fourth cups and pour into the top of a double boiler. Sprinkle gelatin over pineapple syrup and allow to stand five minutes to soften. Add eggs, mustard, vinegar and salt; beat until blended.

Cook over boiling water, stirring constantly, until gelatin dissolves and mixture thickens slightly — about five minutes. Chill until slightly thicker than unbeaten egg white. Fold in whipped cream.

Fold in drained crushed pineapple, celery and apple. Turn into one-half cup molds or custard cups. Chill until firm. Unmold and garnish with salad greens. Makes eight servings.

Liquor Amounts For Reception

Will you serve cocktails and mixed drinks at the reception after a champagne toast to the bride and groom?

Figure on 13 to 17 1½ to 2-ounce drinks from each fifth of liquor, or 16 to 21 drinks from each quart, says the Women's Division of Licensed Beverage Industries, Inc.

One hundred ice cubes, or an 8-10-ounce bag of commercially made ones, supplies enough cooling for 30 to 35 drinks. But a large block of ice chills punch best.

'Good Cheap Food' Book Just Too Late

Boycotting of red meats has caused the grocery meat departments to come up with substitutes to help fight the spiraling costs of meats.

Turkey provides excellent amounts of protein, vitamins, while keeping fats at a minimum. It is available in many convenient forms, from whole turkeys to parts. Some of the latest developments are turkey steaks, cutlets and ground turkey.

Today's modern broad-breasted turkey comes to the house ready to thaw and place in the oven for roasting.

The hottest turkey product as of right now. . . ground turkey. Ground, dark turkey is a most interesting ground meat that is being used in most dishes that call for other ground meat. Economically priced and high in protein and low in fat, it has become a delight for many homemakers, especially dieters.

Try one of these turkey recipes:

STUFFED TURKEY LOAF

2 pounds ground turkey
½ cup chopped onion
¾ cup chopped celery
¼ cup butter
3 cups prepared stuffing mix
2 eggs, slightly beaten
½ cup water
½ cup tomato juice

Brown onion and celery in butter in medium hot skillet. Combine with stuffing mix, eggs and water to make a stuffing. Add half of stuffing to ground turkey, mixing well. Pat out half of meat mixture in a two-quart loaf pan (4½ x 8½ x 3 inches), spread with stuffing, then top with remaining meat mixture. Pour tomato juice over loaf and bake at 350 degrees for one and a half hours. Makes eight to 10 servings.

TURKEY WINGS SWEET 'N SOUR

4 turkey wings (4-5 lbs.)
2 tablespoons cooking oil
½ cup water
2 tablespoons cornstarch
⅓ cup brown sugar
¼ cup vinegar
¼ cup soy sauce
¼ cup catsup or chili sauce
4 cups hot fluffy rice (1⅓ cups uncooked)

Disjoint turkey wings at both joints and set aside wing tips.* Wash, pat dry, and brown well in hot fat in skillet; drain off excess fat. Add water, lower heat and cover; simmer turkey wings for about two hours or until tender.

Remove wings from skillet and measure drippings; add enough turkey stock or water to make three-quarter cup and return to skillet. Combine cornstarch, brown sugar, vinegar, soy sauce, and catsup and blend until smooth. Stir into turkey drippings and cook and stir until thick and smooth. Add turkey wings and heat through. Serve wings on hot fluffy rice and pass additional sweet-sour sauce. Makes four servings.

(*Wing tips may be simmered for two hours in water barely to cover with pieces of carrot, celery, and onion, also with three or four peppercorns. Stock may be used for this or other recipes.)

SPANISH TURKEY LEGS

2 turkey drumsticks (about 3 lbs.)
2 tablespoons cooking oil
1 cup chopped celery
½ cup chopped onion
1 small green pepper, slivered
1 cup fresh chopped or canned tomatoes
1 cup water
1 bay leaf
1 teaspoon salt
6 stuffed olives, sliced (if desired)
2 cups dry noodles

Wash drumsticks and pat dry with paper towel. Brown on all sides in hot oil in heavy skillet. Stir in celery, onion, and green pepper, and saute lightly. Add tomatoes, water, bay leaf, and salt; simmer, covered, for two hours, or until turkey meat is tender. Add olives and noodles, cover and simmer for 20 minutes or until noodles are tender, adding more liquid if necessary. Separate meat from turkey legs, discarding the bones, and serve at once. Makes six servings.

Tuna Ribbon Sandwiches For Showers

For the spring party occasion or bridal shower, these small tuna ribbon sandwiches are excellent and nutritious as well.

TUNA RIBBON SANDWICHES

Increase quantities as needed.

1 can (7 ounces) solid-pack white tuna
¼ cup mayonnaise
¼ cup minced celery
2 teaspoons capers, minced
2 teaspoons lemon juice
8 slices thin-sliced white bread
4 slices thin-sliced whole-wheat bread

Turn tuna, including oil in can, into a small mixing bowl and flake. Add all the remaining ingredients except the bread; mix well. Spread tuna mixture (about two tablespoons for each) on two slices of white and one slice of whole-wheat bread. Press the slices together, having whole-wheat slice in center, sandwich style. Repeat with remaining filling and bread. Wrap in transparent plastic film and chill several hours. At serving time cut off crusts and cut each sandwich into four long slices. Makes 16 ribbon sandwiches.

Can Openers

The safety experts caution never to use a can opener that leaves jagged edges. These can be the source of deep and painful cuts. Always remove the tops rather than bending them back.

To make a little meat go a long way, combine it with meat extenders such as rice, spaghetti, macaroni, noodles, crackers, bread crumbs, or cereals.

ANNUAL BOAT PARADE IS SUNDAY

Yachters Prepare For The Season

Marin Women

Wednesday, May 2, 1973 Independent-Journal, 21

SCRUBBING THE "Nepenthe" for opening day of yachting season on San Francisco Bay on Sunday, Mrs. Thomas Corn waxes the deck of her Columbia 28 at Sausalito Marine Boat Yard. Encouraging her is Mrs. J. Paul Silvestri, who crewed for her husband to win the Corinthian Yacht Club Midwinter Series.

Four Belvedere women whose family lives are oriented to yachting are lending a hand with preparations for the ferryboat ride to benefit Marin General Hospital on Sunday, opening day of yachting season on San Francisco Bay. And they are also helping prepare their families' yachts.

Members of the Raccoon Branch of Marin General Hospital Volunteers, Mmes. Thomas Corn, J. Paul Silvestri Jr., Bob Bernheim and Harvey Rogers are helping with the Raccoons' 10th annual opening day ferryboat ride which sails in and around the boat parade.

Boarding will be at 10 a.m. at the Windjammer Restaurant dock in Tiburon, departure at 10:30 a.m. and return at 12:30 p.m. Refreshments will be served aboard.

Tickets may be obtained from chairmen Mrs. K. L. Rice Jr. and Donald McCune, both of Tiburon.

BOATING ENTHUSIASTS, the four San Francisco Yacht Club members are readying their own yachts for a season of racing, ocean-going vacations, bay and delta cruising and entertaining aboard.

Wendy Corn and Shirley Silvestri chatted about their sailing activities on the sunny patio of the Silvestris' Belvedere Lagoon home last week where a Hobie Cat, Sun Fish and rowboat are docked.

Mrs. Corn said her family loves to cruise their Columbia 28 sailboat on the bay and anchor off Angel Island or on the other side of Tiburon. Her five children are very much at home aboard; one sits on the mast and the 5-year-old likes to stay up in front.

"The kids tow the little El Toro with us and explore; they love to play Robinson Crusoe. The two older ones can sail big boats as well as the El Toro. They want a 505 so they can hike out on the trapeze," she said.

Mr. and Mrs. Corn and their children, Sam, 14; Sallie, 12; Peter, 10; Polly, 6 and Alfred, 5 live on the water in a large, historic Beach Road house with its own dock. In the summer the "Nepenthe" is moored to a buoy there.

"My husband likes to come home in early afternoon sometimes and we go out sailing. Once Tom fell in and all the neighbors saw," Mrs. Corn said.

She likes to entertain with luncheons aboard and take friends up the delta or cruising on the bay. They anchor and swim, "although some people come out faster than they go in," she said.

AN "UPRIGHT" sailor, Wendy Corn prefers cruising and leaves the strenuous Yacht Racing Association regattas and ocean races to Shirley Silvestri's father and husband aboard the "Peregina," a Cal 39 owned by Shirley's father Dr. Alvin Haag.

"I am not an 'upright' sailor," Mrs. Silvestri said with a smile. "I like racing on the bay with lots of exciting changes in tide and wind. I feel I know the boat. I can do almost everything except for winches, which are a question of stamina," she said.

She crewed in the Tri-Islands Race around Santa Barbara, Catalina and San Clemente Islands.

Paul and Shirley Silvestri also enjoy day sailing with friends and Shirley's parents.

"Dad bought a boat 10 years ago and we all took up sailing. My husband organizes the crew of seven needed for racing," she said.

When one of the men of the Peregina's crew cannot race, Mrs. Silvestri is called upon. When the Peregina competes in overnight regattas such as the upcoming Vallejo race, she is in charge of the galley.

"I'm not physically strong enough to crew in strong summer winds; the winches are too much for me," she said.

However she helped her husband win the Corinthian Yacht Club Midwinter Series — there was not too much weather and they had a light-hearted father and son crew, she said.

Their son Russell, 11, who sets the spinnaker, is the third generation in the family to sail the Peregina. He crewed in the Whitney Series off Los Angeles this spring.

The Silvestris' 8-year-old daughter Laura likes cruising on the Cal 39, but only races in their Sun Fish on the lagoon with her mother and brother.

"ANOTHER NICE thing about sailing is that when you are out on the bay you are at peace — no phones. It's man against environment; it takes energy, but a very different kind than the business world demands," she said.

Shirley Silvestri prefers bay racing to ocean sailing because the bay is more exciting. If you can race on the bay, you can race anywhere, she said.

Aboard the Mahalo, while they were helping their children scrub the family boats last week, sisters-in-law Mrs. Bob Bernheim and Mrs. Harvey Rogers discussed sailing plans.

"The kids of both families enjoy family sailing aboard the Cal 25," said Susan Bernheim. Last summer the two families took the Grand Slam and the Mahalo up the San Joaquin River to swim and sun until school started.

"In order to get back fast for the first day of school when the wind died, we towed the sailboat," said Mrs. Bernheim.

THIS SUMMER the two families plan to sail together aboard the Grand Slam down the southern coast, probably to Baja, Mexico, she mentioned.

Both families also enjoy cruises such as their last Memorial Day weekend sail to Ensenada Yacht Club in Alameda.

"Sometimes we just tie up to a tree, throw out the stern anchor and swim and barbecue on the stern. Or we go up the San Joaquin River to Tinsley, to the delta club house for St. Francis Yacht Club members to enjoy the lovely lawns and swimming pool," Mrs. Bernheim said.

Her father-in-law Jules Bernheim, now 80, who with his wife has summered on Corinthian Island since 1936, taught his son Bob and daughter Nancy to sail.

"Grandpa bought the Boston Whaler to give the children rides around the bay. The whole family went with him to pick up the boat and sang 'For He's a Jolly Good Fellow'," said Susan Bernheim.

In February her husband crewed on Jim Flood's "Samarkand" to Puerto Vallarta. He also has been crew to Mexico, Hawaii, Santa Barbara, Acapulco, Mazatlan and LaPaz.

"Very few women are invited on ocean racing unless you do it as a family," Nancy Rogers remarked.

A BAY YRA skipper, Mrs. Rogers raced the Mahalo to fourth place for the season in the Cal 25 division of YRA last year. And she came in second in the Cal 25 Perpetual Trophy Race last year.

Her sons, Ken, 14 and Steve, 12, sometimes crew for their mother. The Mahalo needs five or six people to race with a spinnaker. Ted Brash of Belvedere is "captain of the foredeck." Harvey Rogers maintains the Mahalo and enjoys racing his Sun Boat on the lagoon, according to Mrs. Rogers.

Nancy Rogers has been a semi-finalist in the Adams Cup, the women's national sailing competition.

By MOLLY MARIN

Lady Yvette Walter of Mauritius Island in the Indian Ocean toured the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross Monday in the final leg of a tour of the United States arranged by the U.S. State Department.

She is the wife of the Mauritius minister of health, Sir Harold Water and has visited Washington, D.C., New York City, Boston, Buffalo, N.Y., Philadelphia, Santa Fe, N.M., Albuquerque, N.M., Phoenix, Ariz., and Los Angeles.

The purpose of the trip was to study craft projects that the women of Mauritius can use in establishing a cottage trade on the island, which is becoming a tourist mecca, according to Lady Yvette.

The island, which is 468 square miles, has a population of 850,000 with many races and cultures, she explained, but no indiginous art and her hope is to develop a dignified culture.

She was impressed with the dry flower arrangements in the Decorations Guild Shop at the art and garden center and surprised that many of the flowers used are native both to Marin County and her island. When she returns home later this week she will begin classes to teach the women what she has learned.

Lady Yvette will join her husband in London where he has been attending meetings on population control. As minister of heatlh he is concerned with overpopulation of the island because of the racial mixes, Lady Ymbtte explained, and wants t introduce family planning to avert racial problems.

SEVERAL MARINITES will be among the guests at a party Friday evening, which is a send off for Maestro Seiji Ozawa and the San Francisco Symphony prior to the departure for a European-Soviet Union tour.

At the party in the grand ballroom of the Fairmont Hotel will be the Rev. and Mrs. Angus Dun Jr. of Greenbrae and Messrs. and Mmes. Kenneth J. Baune and J.A. McQuown of Mill Valley and Mr. and Mrs. J.H. Dollar of Kentfield. Mrs. Courtney M. Benoist of Kentfield is a member of the committee arranging the party.

Other guests will be San Francisco consular officials from each of the eight countries the orchestra will visit — France, Belgium, England, Switzerland, Germany, Austria, Italy and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics — May 15 through June 24.

AN AFTERNOON of chamber music, champagne and sunshine is promised by the organizers of the final fund raising event for the Marin Youth Orchestra Piccola's trip to Spoleto, Italy this summer.

The party will be held Sunday from 4 to 7 p.m. in the garden of the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Matson Roth in Ross, and guests will be invited to sit among the young musicians on the veranda overlooking Mount Tamalpais and to join in with cymbals, triangles and percussion instruments as the orchestra plays Haydn's "Toy Symphony."

Marin sponsors of the party are Messrs. and Mmes. Clarence O. Amonette Jr., William Cavalier, A. Crawford Greene Jr., Edwin L. Giffith, Paul Hanson, Joseph Henderson, Louis Lundborg, Webster Otis, Robert N. Pomeroy, Thomas C. Reed, Roth, Garrett Scales, Bennet Skewes-Cox, Ellis Stephens, Richard Treadwell and Mrs. Henri Bercut and Dr. and Mrs. James Dawson, all of Ross; Senator and Mrs. Peter H. Behr, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Salkind and Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Schultz of Mill Valley; Sister Mary Samuel Conlan, O.P., Mr. and Mrs. Boris Lakusta, Dr. and Mrs. David Rosen, Mrs. Raymond Haven Thayer and Mr.and Mrs. Mario Zabalaga of San Rafael; Virgil Hollis and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Stanton of Belvedere; and the Harold Watkins and Edward M. Zellers of Kentfield.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Dog's A Big Deal, Children Not Welcome At This Shower

DEAR HELEN:

We were invited to a baby shower. One of my friends (who didn't know the hostess but was a friend of the honoree) arrived with her two children, 5 and 9, because at the last minute she was unable to find a sitter.

She was greeted at the door by the lady of the house with word that she was not prepared for children, so please take them elsewhere. She wasn't allowed in, but had to leave her gift at the door.

The rest of us watched gifts being distributed by the hostess' pet dog who carried them in his mouth to the honoree. Terribly "cute." We were all supposed to make much of him.

Granted, the woman should have called and related her sitter problems, but the verdict would have been the same. And these are good kids.

This is hospitality? — T.J.

DEAR T.:

It's more like hostility. But, face it, there are people who can't stand children, just as others cringe at "performing" dogs. Since the rejected guest and the uppity hostess need never see each other again, let's just say "to each her own" — and hope the dog didn't slobber! — H.

DEAR HELEN:

Our 23-year-old attractive, well-educated daughter has been living with a recently divorced man for almost two years. He chooses not to work because he can then avoid child support. (His children and former wife are now on welfare.)

Our daughter supports this parasite, who uses her for a meal ticket. But I recognize she has chosen her path and I try to include him in the family.

However, it wears thin! Apparently to justify her life style, she is glamorizing her liberalized attitudes to our 16-year-old son. She has urged him to come and live with them.

I've always said I would love my children even though I did not like what they did, but my antagonism is becoming so intense — especially since our daughter demands that her arrogant lover be included in every invitation — that I feel like a hypocrite, trying to be cordial. She glories in embarrassing me; he constantly brags about their non-marriage, and his non-job status.

It appears the only solution is to sever ties completely, for though I still care for her, I can't take him any longer.

Please, Helen, what do other parents do in similar situations? — LOSING HER

DEAR L.H:

What other parents do isn't relevant — for no two situations are exactly alike. If you feel more comfortable excluding your daughter and her man from family gatherings, then don't invite them. It appears they attend mainly to flaunt a life style which embarrasses you —and that's not daughterly love!

I suspect the rift grows wider each time you play the hypocrite and these two rub it in. Try honesty: at least they'll respect you more, even though they see you less.

Got a problem? An adult subject for discussion? A fun idea? You can talk it over in her column if you write to Helen Bottel, care of the Independent-Journal.

SANTA'S BEARD WAS JUST TOO LONG. "I MUST GET IT CUT," HE SAID.
SANTU'Z BIRD WUZ JUST TO LAN. "Δ MUST GET IT KUT," HI SED.
LANG

Christian Science Monitor Sketch by Gene Langley

HAMMOND, Ind. — The sentences on the blackboard looked like a poor attempt at spelling. There was "sed" for "said" and "kut" for "cut" and "bigan" for "Began."

Much of the rest was even worse. Many of the letters were either backwards or not in the regular alphabet at all.

But the children in the room were not confused. They read the story without hesitation. This was a special way to learn to read and they were enjoying it.

The scene was set in the Lincoln Elementary School here in Hammond, and in seven other classrooms within the same district, last fall. The youngsters were using Unifon, a special 40-symbol alphabet, to find their way through the intricacies of the English language.

MOST ADULTS have probably forgotten how difficult English is to learn. But individuals studying it as a second language are acutely aware of its irregularities.

"There are at least nine ways to spell the long 'I' sound alone," comments Dr. Margaret Ratz, director of innovative programs in the Hammond schools. "Unifon eliminates the confusion by having just one symbol for the long 'I' — in fact, one symbol for each sound and one sound for each symbol."

Although this seems logical enough in its own way, a visitor to the Unifon classroom wonders about another kind of possible confusion. Pupils have to deal at some point with two sets of symbols, Unifon and the regular alphabet. How do they know one from the other and make the transition?

"No problem," replies Joyce Broclaw during a break in teaching in her Lincoln School classroom. "The first child began making the transition after Thanksgiving, having worked in Unifon since September. We keep traditional books out in the room. The kids pick them up and start reading them whenever they are ready."

When I visited Miss Broclaw's room she had seven "average" pupils ranged around a table with her, reading a simple story written in the standard alphabet. The youngsters were still in the transition period, going from Unifon to "traditional."

When a word such as "sails" (a double vowel for the long "A" sound) bothered them, Miss Broclaw reached around to the blackboard behind her and spelled the word in Unifon. That did it.

During this exercise, most of the children in the room were reading regular books on their own. A half-day aide moved among them. The four best readers were downstairs in the learning center (library), listening to tape recordings of bird calls and descriptive narration about them.

CHILDREN LEARN the Unifon alphabet quickly, in the first month, according to Mary Lukens, a teacher at Columbia Elementary School. "Once they've mastered Unifon, they can go to the board and write in it. Any word they can say, they can write," Mrs. Lukens explains. "It gives a child something he can count on."

Dr. Ratz elaborates on this point:

"With Unifon, children aren't bound to a little group of words as they are in traditional teaching. Anything they can say, they can spell because the spelling is consistent with the sound. That gives children a sense of confidence. They say, 'Gee I can function in school.' They're successful."

Hammond teachers who use Unifon seem sold on it.

Comments Mrs. Nancy Koselke at Irving Elementary: "I just love it. I don't have any kids who feel frustrated."

Remarks her colleague, Miss Mary Silvasi: "I would never go back to the other way. The children are so enthusiastic."

Another teacher is said to have been on the verge of resigning out of sheer frustration when Unifon came along. Now she is content because her pupils are progressing.

Unifon was devised about 10 years ago by John R. Malone, a Chicago newspaper economist. It has been used in Indianapolis and is currently found in Park Forest, Ill., and in New Orleans under a Ford Foundation grant.

"We need a fully tested program," declares Dr. Ratz, and this the Hammond schools are getting, with evaluation being handled by the Industrial Relations Center of the University of Chicago.

ALTHOUGH UNIFON made its appearance in Hammond classrooms last fall, the program actually began there with teacher preparation during the previous school year. Funding comes from Title III of the federal Elementary and Secondary Education Act.

A three-year grant, funding will continue at least through the next school year. This money has covered administrative, supervisory, and training costs, as well as underwriting the production of five readers in Unifon and a "codebreaker" book. It will also pay for evaluation.

At least eight more classrooms will be added next year.

Some Eye Damage Is Laid To Light

Some forms of eye damage may be related to the cumulative effects of a long, well-lighted lifetime, including its hours devoted to television watching, says Dr. Mark O. M. Tso, research associate at the Armed Forces Institute of Pathology.

"The effects of prolonged exposure to light of relatively low intensity need to be investigated," Dr. Tso told a Research to Prevent Blindness science writers' seminar in Los Angeles.

Author Says We're All Good, Bad

By JOAN LISETOR

There is some good and some evil in all of us and we must accept the evil, according to humanist psychoanalyst Dr. Rollo May.

Dr. May spoke last night in the gymnasium of the College of Marin. His talk, "love and the Demonic," was sponsored by the Marin Association for Mental Health.

Dr. May is the author of seven books. The most recent, "Power and Innocence," covers the human potential movement he discussed last night.

Much of the talk was a definition of terms, which makes Dr. May easy to listen to but often difficult to understand.

The love of which he spoke, he said, was in a larger setting, a community, which is a group of people with compassion, sharing hopes, fears and anxieties. Compassion, he explained, is an expression of concern and makes communication possible.

In a community love is externalized, within a community people can disagree with one another and the dark side of life is made acceptable and livable.

The demonic is the aspect of a person with the power to take over the self in a disintegrating way, according to the psychoanalyst. It can be sex, rage or power, he said, or anything that has the capability of being both constructive and destructive.

"The demonic gives us the energy to love, create and defend. The aim is not for contentment, fulfillment or growth," he said. "Contentment is two steps away from apathy. A utopia will never succeed because it depends on perfection, which does not exist.

"Everyone has heard the saying from the popular novel, 'Love Story,' 'Love means never having to say you're sorry.' It is such a beautiful sentence but complete nonsense to believe love can be so perfect that a lover will always understand. Love is just the opposite. It is the freedom to say you are sorry and mean it."

If love and the demonic are so closely related what do we do with loneliness, Dr. May asked. Admitting there is no escape from loneliness he suggested shifting to constructive solitude.

Those ostracized and crucified by the community tend to become the heroes of the next generation, he said. The hero is one to face ostracism with courage giving the community-its animation. Those of recent times to attack our apathy are Daniel Ellsberg and the Rev. Daniel Berrigan.

"I know Daniel Ellsberg and Daniel Berrigan. They are very sensitive men. They acted by compassion, expressing the demonic feeling within" he said.

Tragedy is more important than comedy because it gives dignity to human life with a simultaneous sense of fate and freedom, Dr. May said.

"Americans can't admit defeat because they don't understand tragedy," he said. "It is possible at this moment in time to accept a sense of tragedy as a people and no longer be dupes of Forest Lawn — we are never going to be sick, never die. We are uncomfortable as a result of a war, the Watergate affair. We (can) realize we are living in a world that is closing its eyes to the demonic. Destruction, even like what happened in Vietnam can be turned into something constructive."

If Eve hadn't performed an evil act we probably would not have had civilization.

HOW TO PLAY

A Word To Wise: Play For Long Suit Rather Than The Ruffers

South had a complicated choice in today's hand. He could try to ruff out his losing diamonds with dummy's trumps, or he could try to set up and cash dummy's long clubs. He had to think several moves ahead to make the right choice.

South dealer
East-West vulnerable

WEST	EAST
♠ 10 9 5	♠ 8 3

◇ A 10 8	◇ J 9 5 2

◇ K Q 7 4
♣ K 8

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♣	Pass
2 ♠	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
4 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead — ♡ 3

HEART ACTION

West opened the three of hearts, and East took two tricks in that suit. East next shifted to a low diamond and South's queen drove out the ace. West returned a trump, leaving it up to South to play for the rest of the tricks.

South considered his two lines of play. If he took the king of diamonds and ruffed a diamond in the dummy, he would have to return to his hand with a club in order to ruff the last diamond. Then he would have to get back to his own hand once more in order to draw the rest of the trumps.

CARDS NEEDED

South looked closely at the cards he would have to use up in the process. He would have to ruff a diamond with dummy's king of trumps. He would also eventually have to ruff a club with one of his own high trumps. This would surely set up a trump trick for one opponent or the other.

The other plan was far simpler. South won the first round of trumps with the king, cashed the king and ace of clubs and ruffed a low club with the jack of spades. This established dummy's long suit.

IN DUMMY

Now South drew trumps with the ace and finally with dummy's king. This landed him in the dummy with all trumps drawn. He could cash the rest of dummy's clubs to make his contract.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner deals and bids one spade and the next player passes.

You are next, holding:
♠ - 10 9 5
♥ - J 8 6 3 2
♦ - A 10 8
♣ - J 7.
What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid two spades.

You are not strong enough to bid the hearts first and raise the spades later. Your first duty, when you can afford only one bid, is to raise partner's major suit.

BIRTHDAY QUIZ

By GORDON B. GREB

Quick change artists! Success changed the names of all of today's birthday greats. Who were they originally?

1. Bing Crosby is 69 today, but that's not the name his folks gave him after he was born in Tacoma, Wa. The nickname got firmly attached when he was a youth, everybody called him that at Gonzaga University, and soon he was starring on recordings, radio shows, movies and television, known even as "Der Bingle" during the war years. Twice married, he's simply "pop" to six sons and one daughter. His real name is (A) Bill Cosby, (B) John Crosby, (C) Harry Crosby.

2. Engelbert Humperdinck counts 37 birthday candles — that is, our 20th Century pop crooner does: Originally this name belonged to a famous German composer. Our modern artist, born in Madras, India, took the name on the advice of a publicist and made it famous all over again, singing "Release Me" and "The Last Waltz." His real name is (A) Arnold Dorsey, (B), Tommy Dorsey, (C) Jimmy Dorsey.

3. Eddie Sullivan (1887-1951) was the name he assumed to crash major league baseball. While playing college ball for Columbia University, this 19-year-old joined the Philadelphia Athletics, calling himself "Sullivan." He lost his amateur status when the news leaked out, resumed his real name, and became an all-time star at second base. His lifetime batting average (25 years) was: .333. This Hall of Famer was (A) Eddie Collins, (B) Eddie Mathews, (C) Edward Delahanty.

4. Catherine II (1729-1796) was Empress of Russia. A German by birth, she was wed to the man who became Emperor Peter III but when he threatened to divorce her, she organized a palace revolt, seized the throne, and had Peter imprisoned. She was called Catherine the Great for her 34 years of rule but was born with the name: (A) Maria Teresa, (B) Sophia Augusta, (C) Cathy Ann.

Marceau's Talents Mark Him As World Treasure

By JOHN BEAUFORT
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

MIME MARCEL MARCEAU
Will Appear in Marin May 17

NEW YORK, N.Y. — The other evening while watching Marcel Marceau "make the invisible visible" at New York City Center, it occurred to me that some appropriate international body should designate him a world cultural treasure. The designation — as the Japanese do with their master artists — would merely formalize the fact.

In the course of his career, Marceau has created some 80 numbers, of which he considers 20 classics. The program which opened the City Center engagement was divided between style pantomines and selections from the repertoire of Bip, his white-faced alter ego. Representing the former were such works as "The Trial," a marvel of multiple impersonations; "Sideshow," a Marceau carnival of circus acts; "The Dream," one of his most psychological works; and "The Mask Maker," which reaches a climax of near terror when a laughing mask gets stuck on his face.

With the indispensable Pierre Verry on hand again to make title-card holding itself a fine art, first nighters saw Bip in a variety of moods. Bip chased butterflies (quick motions of the head and a fluttering of the hands tell the story), painted a picture, baby sat, magically multiplied himself, went to a society party, tangoed, "tamed" a lion, and — almost — committed suicide. Whether new or familiar, each number was a revelation.

Marceau and his particular "art of silence" began entertaining the world outside France a quarter of a century ago. In 1947, Marceau and Bip, then newly created, began their international adventures with a tour of Switzerland, Belgium, Holland, and Italy. Since then, the white-faced Everyman of the striped pullover and culotte, battered top hat, and jaunty red flower has become familiar the world over.

Traveling to every continent and a number of islands, he has demonstrated before millions of delighted spectators the universality of the mime art.

Marceau will appear at the Marin Veterans Memorial Building at 8:30 p.m., May 17.

Marceau reached his commanding position on a world stage after a period of intense preparation. His youthful idols were the great figures of the silent screen: Chaplin, Keaton, Langdon, Laurel and Hardy. His master was the great Etienne Decroux, whom he credits with "reanimating mime in Europe."

Jean-Louise Barrault and Marceau were fellow students of Decroux and later fellow actors. Subsequently, Barrault committed himself to the spoken theater while Marceau became France's ambassador extraordinary of mime. Marceau and Bip have captivated North American audiences since 1955, when they made their first of nine visits to this continent.

Like all great performers, Marceau creates freshly for each occasion, each audience. He has, furthermore, over the years been exploring new areas, reaching for new depths.

He feels that his miming has become more psychological, more philosophical, more spiritual. He talks of drawing on a legacy of influences — Greek, Roman, Indian, African, Oriental.

"The mime creator rediscovers the signs that man has used since ancient times," he said when I talked with him.

Besides making people laugh, Marceau seeks to give audiences something to remember, to take away with them — some more profound experience. In such ways he sees mime fulfilling the function of art to bring light into the world.

"If I want to make a comment," he declared at another point, "I have to make the spectator see the wonder of the art which is the reflection of life."

Our visit in the vast City Center auditorium was preceded and interupted by Marceau's discussions with his stage manager, wig man, costumer, and the associate who works with him in "Bip, Illusionist," one of the new numbers.

After each interruption, Marceau, speaking fluent English, picked up the thread of the interview as if there had been no break. Offstage, he exhibits a relaxed concentration. He is a slight, neat man, with firm, well-ordered features, luxuriant dark hair in a stylish medium cut with long sideburns. The day we met he was wearing a deep blue velvet suit and red polka-dot shirt open at the throat.

At one point, when Marceau was called away for a stageside conference, an associate remarked that the mime's rigorous schedule on his biennial six- or seven-month tours is demandingly rigorous. Marceau devotes himself entirely to giving eight performances a week (four over weekends), publicizing his show, and allowing as much time as possible for the constant stream of students who seek him out.

The rise of student interest in Marceau and mime has grown directly out of his tours, which always include numerous campus engagements. Marceau told me that, in 1968, a new generation began coming to his shows. He added that 80 per cent of his present audiences are under 30 and that there are now 10 or more mime troupes on college and university campuses. When he operated his mime school in Paris, half of the 100 students were Americans.

Reopening the school is one of the projects high on his agenda because "if there were no schools of mime, the art would die out." He also intends organizing a new mime company to create and perform "mimo-dramas." During its 12 years of existence, his earlier company did 20 such dramas, including a memorable adaptation of Gogol's "The Overcoat."

Marceau intends touring for 10 more years before concentrating on teaching, directing, and producing. He also wishes to continue recording his pantomimes on films and tape; so far, he has done 20 films of his work. Mime, he explained, cannot be reduced to a scenario because "when you create numbers, it is not just the story but the style."

Mime he calls "the eliptic art, which can show within a few minutes a whole life." He does just that in the unforegetable Everyman capsule, "Youth, Maturity, Old age, and Death." In his view, "Mime is the art of metamorphoses . . . the shortest distance between two points."

A mime is "like a cartoonist, an impressionist." As "Bip, Illusionist" demonstrates, mime is also the art of illusion. And Marceau is a master illusionist.

To him, "The dance is like Icarus, the mime is like Prometheus."

Auditions For Youth Orchestra

Auditions for the Marin Youth Orchestra will be held during the last half of the month by the Marin Symphony Association.

All auditions will run from 3 to 6 p.m. at San Rafael High School's music building, except for soloist auditions, which will be at San Domenico School in San Ansemo.

Auditions for first violin, oboe and bassoon will be held May 16; for second violin, viola and clarinet, May 18; for piano, harp, flute, cello and bass, May 22; for percussion and brass, May 25, and for soloists, May 29.

To be elibible, students must already participate in their school orchestras or band.

Woodwinds and brass will be required to prepare a specific piece for the auditions.

A Close Vote On Growth In Novato

The Novato City Council has narrowly retained the proposed policy to limit growth in the city to 500 dwelling units a year.

Councilmen reviewing the revised Novato General Plan Monday night, voted 3-to-2 to keep the growth limit policy in the proposed new plan with Mayor Fred F. Ruegg and Councilman Dorothy P. Young dissenting, according to senior planner Mark Westfall.

The plan will be referred back to the planning commission which will have a joint meeting with the council at 8 p.m. May 10 and a public hearing on the plan May 14.

Councilmen also changed the map designation on the flatland owned by the John Kinney Estate, about 500 acres, near Black Point, a change that would permit up to 2,000 units.

The council designated the area for water oriented residential, erasing an earlier map designation of argicultural bay plain which would have permitted about 100 homes.

The Kinney estate has been seeking approval of plan to build 2,300 homes on 700 acres in the area, the majority in a lagoon-type development.

For the 460-acre Joseph Sanchez property near Pleasant Valley, the council approved from 100 to 300 homes.

Four-Hand Piano Concert Set In San Rafael

The piano team of William Corbett-Jones and Sylvia Jenkins will perform in concert at 7:30 p.m. May 20 at Caleruega Hall, Dominican College of San Rafael.

The concert, originally scheduled for next Sunday, is the last in the 1973-74 Music Associates Chamber Music Series.

Corbett-Jones and Miss Jenkins specialize in the art of four hands at one piano, and have played throughout Europe and North America.

Miss Jenkins is a faculty member at University of California, Santa Cruz and Lone Mountain College, and Corbett-Jones is an associate professor of music at California State University, San Francisco.

MUSIC REVIEW

Marin Symphony's Salute To The Americas Well Received

By SYLVIA L. RUBY

A largely successful program of a variety of styles of music from the Americas was presented at the Veterans Memorial Building by the Marin Symphony last night.

In a fitting tribute for the celebration of the 25th anniversary of the signing of the charter of the Organization of American States, guest conductor Carmen Dragon selected works from the United States, Canada, Mexico, Brazil and Argentina. The auditorium was filled and the audience response enthusiastic.

Opening the program with the American sound of Aaron Copland's Outdoor Overture, Dragon delivered the clean articulation and square tempos called for in the "open prairie" theme. Mark Dodson did a fine job on trumpet.

William Schumann's New England Triptych and Leonard Bernstein's "Glitter and Be Gay" from Candide completed the United States' contribution to the evening.

The Triptych bears a strong resemblance to Charles Ives' Three Places in New England, especially in the last movement with alternating chordal hymns and parade marches of fifes — effectively portrayed by high woodwinds — and snare drum. The seven percussionists required had fun with this work. Oboist Jean Stevens and bassoonist Virginia Ojeda handled solos in the melodic quiet second movement very well.

The Bernstein song was a delightful vehicle for soprano Claudia Cummings. Her light and sophisticated voice was secure in pitch and her enunciation clear. Coloratura passages were handled with lightness and ease.

Less successful were the Villa Lobos selections from Bachianas Brasileiras No. 5. Miss Cummings lacked the necessary warmth of tone for the aria. The cello accompaniment sounded insecure in the Dansa due to Dragon's unclear conducting of the tricky rhythms and shifting meters.

Favorites of the audience were the Mexican traditional pieces arranged by the conductor, and the Ginastera dances from the ballet "Estancia." The Mexican songs brought the full orchestra sounds of the Hollywood Bowl to this Northern California community and Dragon made the most of the marvelous combination of Mexican melodic cliches from fiestas and bullfights.

Ginastera is a fairly complex Argentinian contemporary composer. His dances, too,include the Latin fire, but in a more refined manner. The flamboyant Danza Final consists of a constantly reiterated melody growing in intensity to a final cymbal crash. This was a fine performance.

The most unusual work in the program was the Lyric for Orchestra by the Canadian composer Harry Somers. This predominantly atonal piece developed great feelings of tension which somehow carried through moments of quiet droning and even pure silences. Although the music is made up largely of overlapping dissonant chords swelling and fading, the work was not lacking in melodic content. The orchestra was perfection in its careful timing and sensitive dynamic changes. Cellos were particularly solid in sound.

It was a night for brass and percussion instrumentalists. The Latin works, of course, included much variety of percussive instruments and warm brass sounds, but the Northern countries nearly equaled them in their demands. The orchestra is fortunate to have the fine musicians necessary.

Marin County can feel proud that this performance will be broadcast internationally by the Voice of America, reaching an audience potential of 40 million.

Margot Fonteyn To Perform In Marin Ballet

Dame Margot Fonteyn will appear as a guest artist with the New London Ballet in a performance at the Marin Veterans Memorial Auditorium at 8:30 p.m. June 20, John Kornfeld Associates Inc. has announced.

The company under the direction of Galina Samsova and Andre Prokovksy will open the program with short ballets and the famous pas de deux from the second act of "Swan Lake" to be danced by Miss Fonteyn and her partner, Heinz Bosi.

Prokovsky and Miss Samsova will be featured in "Othello," choreographed by Peter Darrell to music by Liszt, and the program will close with Miss Fonteyn in highlights from "Sleeping Beauty."

WASHINGTON (UPI) — William J. Handley, Ambassador to Turkey, has been named senior adviser to Secretary of State William P. Rogers and coordinator for international narcotics matters in the State Department, it was announced Tuesday.

"Oliver!" To Open Hall At Dominican

The British film version of the musical "Oliver!" will be the first movie shown in the refurbished Angelico Hall at Dominican College, at 7:30 p.m., May 8.

Accoustical tile has been put in the hall. A new movie screen has been installed on the stage, according to Lillian Seaver, public relations officer at the college. An arc projector has been bought for the hall.

This is the first time that the college will be able to show a movie to more than 150 persons. It can now accommodate 1,000, she said.

The refurbishing of the hall was done through a gift of Laurence Bettis, a Boise, Ida. banker.

"Oliver!" is based on Charles Dickens' "Oliver Twist." It has the familiar characters of Oliver, Fagin, Nancy, Bill Sykes and the Artful Dodger. There is an admission fee.

Dominican Sets Preregistering

Preregistration for the fall semester at Dominican College in San Rafael, will be held tomorrow and Friday and Monday and Tuesday of next week.

Graduate students may register between 9 a.m. and noon in Room 10 of Guzman Hall on any one of the four days.

Undergraduate students must see their faculty advisors or department chairmen by appointment. Preregistration assures the students of a place in the classes of his choice.

Second Man Sentenced For Cocaine

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A second Sausalito man was sentenced yesterday in U.S. District Court in connection with seizure by agents of an ounce of cocaine last year.

Brian N. Smith, 27, of 80 Cloud View Avenue, was given four months at the Parlin Fork Conservation Camp in Mendocino County after pleading guilty earlier this year to possession of an ounce of cocaine Sept. 15 at the home of another Sausalitan.

That man, Marco F. Madio, 23, was given a sentence similar to Smith's last week.

George E. Miller, 31, a Washington, D.C., attorney, was sentenced with Smith yesterday. He was ordered by visiting Judge Charles Wyzanski to spend four months in a work furlough program in Santa Clara County.

The three men originally were accused of offering to sell agents 11 pounds of cocaine for $110,000. Federal, state and local narcotics agents seized the ounce of cocaine in a raid at the Madio home.

Chairman Is Dead

NEW YORK (UPI) — Frederick S. Beebe, chairman of the board of the Washington Post Co. and head of a communications network that included Newsweek magazine and several radio and television stations, died of cancer Tuesday. He was 59.

School May Go Alone On Deer Park Turf

The Fairfax School District board, faced with widespread opposition to turfing Deer Park School ballfields in cooperation with the county, last night decided to investigate ways of proceeding with the project on its own.

Original plans for the project included splitting a $37,000 tab with the county for turfing of two ballfields and providing a county access road through the unincorporated area near Fairfax. Residents have objected to the project, saying the access road would open up potential development of nearby watershed lands.

"The board is reluctant to give up the idea of the turfing" but last night abandoned any joint effort with the county, said Supt. H. Reginald Hammond. Instead, the board directed Hammond to look for ways to go it alone, perhaps with volunteer aid from residents.

The board last night also accepted with "restrained enthusiasm" a recommendation from the Fairfax Parks and Recreation Commission that turfing of the area not exceed two acres, and not include an access road, bridge, realignment of a nearby creek or any cutting of trees.

The commission made its recommendation after citizens argued that turfing a large portion of the area would attract crowds, create traffic congestion along Porteous Avenue and result in costly maintenance.

The school board, which has budgeted $15,000 for the project, will again consider the matter at 7:45 p.m. May 15, Hammond said.

The Fairfax School District board also:

EVALUATION — Heard a report from the district's evaluation committee that evaluation of teachers should include standardized testing, teacher observations, consultation and student progress.

BUDGET — Said the district will hold a "major" budget session at 7:45 p.m. May 15.

SURPLUS — Declared surplus a 20-by-100-foot strip of land at White Hill School so that resident Dennis D. Mellerick, of 21 Sherman Court can buy it. Mellerick's home is built to the property line of the school's playground.

PERSONNEL — Granted a leave of absence to taacher Mary Beth Walker, accepted the resignation of White Hill library aide Lola Berlenbach, who is moving, and said that positions of three teachers who have left the district will not be filled next year, bringing next year's teaching staff to 45.

TRANSFER — Said Alec Isabeau of San Anselmo may attend school in Fairfax.

ENROLLMENT — Said enrollment last week was 952 students, down two students from the previous week.

ADJOURNMENT — Adjourned to 7:45 p.m. May 15 in White Hill School.

Explosion Has Familiar Ring

WELLS, Nev. (UPI) — The Roseville ammunition train explosion was similar to one in 1969 at a remote section of the northeastern Nevada desert.

Five cars of a Western Pacific Railroad train, loaded with bombs and other ammunition, blew up 14 miles southeast of Wells then, injuring two crewmen and two transients.

Cause of that blast was not determined, officials said, although it gouged holes 15 feet deep in the rail bed.

Lot Will Be Turned Into Park

The Gallinas Village Community Services District board last night decided to proceed with plans to convert a weed-covered lot on Adrian Way into a minipark, a project that has been stalled for over a year.

Plans for the triangular parcel across from the recreational center, which was leased from the Las Gallinas Valley Sanitary District for $1 last year, include installation of walkways, gravel surfacing, landscaping and benches, according to Marguerite F. Clark, district secretary.

The board will meet at 8 p.m. tomorrow in the community center to consider the costs of improvement plans, she said.

The parcel now sports shuffle board and horseshoe facilities, she said.

In other business, the board last night said the district teen club will distribute the Village Voice, the district newsletter, for a $25 fee. Postage for mailing the newsletter has cost about $35 in the past, according to Mrs. Clark.

The teen club plans to hold a car wash at 10 a.m. May 30 at the Mobil station near the Civic Center on North San Pedro Road, she said.

Novato Campus Petition Signed

College of Marin faculty members, seeking reevaluation of plans to construct a campus at Novato, have forwarded petitions with 142 signatures to the Marin Community College District Board.

Robert W. Essig, a member of the committee which circulated the petitions, said Monday, "We got 142 signatures," including 109 from faculty members, "representing about two-thirds of the faculty."

The petitions are expected to be presented to the board tonight.

The petitions, citing small families, dropping elementary enrollment, population growth controls and the high cost of living in Marin, are asking the board to reconsider the need for a second campus in the district.

Quintuplets Gain, Hospital Reports

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Quintuplets born to a woman who took fertility drugs were improving satisfactorily in their hospital environment Tuesday.

Pediatricians said that Diane Anderson, the smallest and frailest child, was able to breathe on her own after having been placed in a respirator during the weekend.

Novato's Stratford Hurls Perfect Game

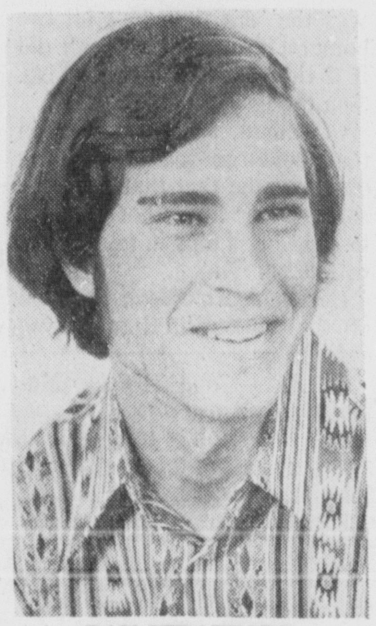
If perfect games are always as easy as Ray Stratford's, it's a wonder there aren't more of them.

The senior right-hander from Novato High School retired all 21 batters with routine ease yesterday afternoon to pitch what was believed to be the first perfect game in Marin County Athletic League history as the Hornets defeated visiting Terra Linda, 3-0.

"I tell you — I'd like to turn him inside out and pitch him left handed," said Novato coach Marlin Olson.

"Usually when there's a no-hitter, somebody stands on his head to make a spectacular play," said losing coach Keith Fraser, "but in this one the only thing close to a hit was a line drive to right field by Greg Chapman in the second inning," caught by Dan Metzger.

"My fast ball and curve were both working," said Stratford. "I was hitting the corners inside and outside."



RAY STRATFORD
21 up, 21 down

Stratford struck out eight and retired nine others on soft pop-ups. Novato statisticians charted him with 57 strikes in 93 pitches. "He went to three balls on only three batters, but he had a lot of 2-and-2 counts," said Olson.

It was the second no-hitter of the season for Stratford, who handcuffed Tamalpais on opening day. The righty boosted his MCAL record to 3-1 and gave Novato its fourth straight victory, moving the Hornets into a second-place tie with San Rafael at 6-3 behind Redwood's 8-1.

Novato scored in the first inning when Dave Brazell walked and Metzger tripled, and added two runs in the fourth on a single by Metzger, double by Stan Conte, run-scoring infield grounder by Tom Conklin and RBI single to right by Ken Ferrari.

Novato's Thomas Stars In Minors

Tom Thomas, a young man who tore up the Marin County Athletic League in his prep baseball days at Novato High, is now tearing up the Carolina League in professional ball.

Thomas, an outfielder for Salem, Va., a Pittsburgh Pirates' farm club, is leading the league in hitting with a .381 mark, 16 hits in 42 at bats, his hits total also leading the league. In addition, Tom has scored seven runs, knocked in six and has two home runs to his credit.

When he was at Novato Thomas was a third baseman, but was converted into an outfielder by the time he reached Washington State University. After being previously drafted by the California Angels and not signing, Thomas was drafted in the secondary phase by the Pirates and signed with the Bucs in 1971. He's off to a fast start in 1973.

DEWEY FORRY of San Rafael, former standout at Terra Linda High, is also having a great start as a relief pitcher for Bakersfield of the California League. In the first report to the I-J from Player Periscope of Novato, a service which seeks out the statistics of minor leaguers for newspapers, the figures on Thomas were not the only bright ones. Forry, as Mr. Periscope notes, has pitched four innings in three games and has a win-loss record of 2-0 and an earned run average of 0.00.

First report on John Dolinsek of Novato, outfielder for Denver of the Triple A American Association, shows him with two singles and two doubles in 19 at bats for a .211 average with the Houston Astros' farm club.

Later reports should be coming in on other minor leaguers from Marin: Al Curtiss and Mike Parnow of Fairfax, Cliff Hall of Marin City and Russ Dillon of Novato. When you include major leaguers John Boccabella (Montreal) and Bill Lee (Boston) of Terra Linda, it makes nine Marin County players in pro baseball. That means the scouts are keeping pretty busy in this territory. "Hit the ball good, Joey. You don't know who's watching!"

THE PEOPLE AT the Caravan Inn, the Phoenix home of the Giants, wrote nice notes to members of the Giants Boosters of Northern California telling how much the hotel enjoyed having them during their Phoenix stay in March. I like the closing line: ". . .and we look forward particularly to seeing you next year when we hope we will all be welcoming the Giants as world champions." After all, just across the street from the Caravan is the Sands, and the team headquartered there at spring training WAS the world champ.

IT'S GOOD TO SEE that Ron Cerrudo of Napa, whose parents Mr. and Mrs. John Cerrudo still reside in San Rafael, made it into the list of top 100 money winners on the Professional Golfers' Association tour after his finish in last week's Byron Nelson Golf Classic. Ron's final round of 69 gave him a 283 total and prize money of $3,918. His $10,450 total puts him 85th on the PGA's money tree.

Raiders Obtain Steeler Back

OAKLAND (AP) — The Oakland Raiders said today they have acquired defensive back Lee Calland from the Pittsburgh Steelers in exchange for an undisclosed draft choice.

Calland, 31, a native of Louisville, Ky., went to the Minnesota Vikings in 1963 after playing at the University of Louisville and missed all but one game of the 1964 season with a broken arm.

He went to Atlanta in the expansion draft and played 1966-67-68 seasons with the Falcons before Pittsburgh claimed him on waivers from the Chicago Bears midway in the 1969 season and have used him as a starter in most of their games since then.

His best season was in 1970 when he had seven interceptions.

Amazing Win For Giants

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — If there ever was any doubt the San Francisco Giants were for real this season, they wiped it out Tuesday night. Just ask the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The amazing Giants scored seven runs after two were out in the ninth inning to beat the Bucs 8-7.

"What can I say?" Willie McCovey bubbled. "This is the most amazing team I've ever seen, they just don't know how to give up."

Bobby Bonds doubled with the bases loaded to drive in three runs and end the game but it was a pinch-hit grand slam homer by Chris Arnold that pulled the Giants to within striking distance.

"I knew when I hit the ball we had a least a tie," Bonds said. "I kept on running so they wouldn't make a play on Howarth, who was the winning run."

Bonds hit a line shot over shortstop that left fielder Willie Stargell cut off. But the ball dropped out of his glove and third base coach John McNamara waved Howarth home with the winning run.

"All I was worried about was making them try to get me so that tying run could score," Howarth said.

"Then I saw McNamara waving me home I decided to slide head first."

There was no need to slide. The throw to the plate was wide in addition to being late.

Arnold hit for Gary Thomasson in the ninth inning despite the fact Thomasson had hit a homer earlier in the game.

"I wanted a right-handed batter," Manager Charlie Fox said.

Arnold went to the plate to make contact and keep the rally going. The count went to 3-2 and he figured Pirate relief pitcher Ramon Hernandez would throw a fast ball.

"And that's what I got," Arnold said.

The Pirates had built up a 7-1 lead in the early innings and Bob Moose got the first two outs of the ninth inning after a leadoff walk.

But then he walked two more batters and Arnold hit his homer. Gary Matthews doubled and Hernandez then walked two more batters.

Pirate relief Ace Dave Giusti hurried in and gave up the double to Bonds.

"I wasn't even going to stay on the bench," Bonds said. "I didn't think I would get another chance to bat because I led off the ninth inning."

The victory went to Elias Sosa, who has a 3-0 record.

The victory was the 12th in the last 14 games.

THE ONLY ONE — San Rafael High School's Lance Loughlin slid home for the Bulldogs' only run yesterday as the relay throw got away from Redwood catcher Doug Hartman in a Marin County Athletic League baseball game at Albert Field. Dave Steele's single chased him home. A San Rafael victory would have put the Bulldogs into a first-place tie with Redwood, but the Giants reacted angrily to this first-inning score by San Rafael and struck for six runs in the second to win going away, 10-1.

Redwood Wallops San Rafael, 10-1

Redwood High School bombarded San Rafael for six runs in the second inning and coasted to a 10-1 triumph over the Bulldogs yesterday in a crucial Marin County Athletic League baseball game at Albert Field.

The defending champion Giants won their eighth game in nine tries and opened up a two-game lead over San Rafael and Novato, both 6-3.

Redwood loaded the bases in the second with one out and scored one run on a single by Doug Hartman, another on a walk to winning pitcher Mark Ruggles, two on a single by Bob Vogel, one on a single by Mike Connor (hitting in his eighth straight game) and one on a sacrifice fly by Gary LaTorre.

In thethird, Ruggles singled home another run and precipitated a rundown off first base allowing another run to score before he returned safely to first. In the fourth, Daryl Edralin's sacrifice fly and an error brought home the runs.

Ruggles was removed in the sixth inning with the 10-1 lead because he had thrown too many pitches, according to Giant coach Al Endriss. San Rafael's Mike Farris, the MCAL's leading winner at 5-0, would have started but injured his pitching elbow in an accident over the weekend.

Greg Schaefer singled home the winning run and Joe Nystrom pitched a two-hitter to give the Suburban Auto Pistons a 1-0 victory over the Suburban Auto Blues in a San Rafael Parks and Recreation Department adult softball league game at Albert Field last night, but the Blues came back to defeat Kruger's, 7-3, on Rod Powell's three-run homer.

A's Odom Loses 5th Game

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — John Odom is luckless.

The Oakland Athletics' right-hander has been pitching well this season but has a 0-5 record to show for it.

The latest humiliation came Tuesday night when John Briggs hommered on his first pitch in the ninth inning to lift the Milwaukee Brewers to a 4-3 victory.

Lakers Hold On To Beat Knicks

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — The Los Angeles Lakers are exactly one game ahead of their pace of a year ago when they won their first NBA championship ever. But nobody is talking four straight.

"It's only one win in black and white," warned Gail Goodrich, "and it takes four to do it."

A 22-point loser to New York in the title series opener last season, the Lakers built up a 20-point lead late in the third period Tuesday night and then had to hang on with everything they had for a 115-112 victory over the stubborn Knicks.

"That was one of the most frustrating games I've ever sat through," said frowning Laker Coach Bill Sharman. "The turnovers in the last quarter are what really hurt."

Although Los Angeles is 1-0 at a time when it was 0-1 last year the Knicks demonstrated with their comeback that they're a

Maxply Fort Racket

"THE GRAND SLAMMER"

In all Tennis History there have been only three "Grand Slams," the winning of the Australian, French, English and American Tennis Championships by the same player in the same year. The last two, in 1962 and 1969, were won with the Maxply Fort. The incomparable 'feel' of the Fort is the reason so many international champions choose this classic wood racket. To achieve it, the multiply selected hardwood frame is reinforced at the shoulders with full crescent overlays, and specially designed throat wedges are inserted to spread impact force evenly throughout the frame. Head, throat and handle are eternally bonded into a single, highly responsive unit for the most positive control in tennis. Unquestionably the world's finest tennis racket, the Maxply Fort is the ultimate result of Dunlop dedication to top quality in every phase of design, materials, and manufacture. Available: Light — 4-3/8, 4½, 4-5/8; Medium — 4½, 4-5/8, 4¾.

Redwood Netters Top Terra Linda

Redwood High School continued to roll toward another Marin County Athletic League tennis championship yesterday by beating previously undefeated Terra Linda, 6-1, in Larkspur.

After the first two singles matches, Redwood seemed to have little trouble disposing of the Trojans. The first singles match saw Giant Steve DeMartini, returning after a week layoff due to oral surgery, beat Doug Carlisle in three sets, 6-3, 4-6, 6-0. In the second match, Jamie Lee handed Redwood its first loss of the year, beating Mark Strasser, 6-1, 6-4. From then on Redwood swept all sets to win easily.

Redwood's 72nd consecutive league tennis win gave the Giants a 7-0 record on the year, while Terra Linda is 6-1.

In other league matches yesterday, Tamalpais whipped Drake, 5-2, Marin Catholic edged San Marin, 4-3, and San Rafael shut-out Novato, 7-0.

Settecento Earns A Shot At 'Derby'

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — Martin J. Wygod's Settecento qualified for a shot at the Kentucky Derby next Saturday when he outgamed heavily-favored Mr. Prospector in the stretch at Churchill Downs Tuesday to win the $21,000 Derby Trial Stakes by a length and one-quarter.

Only five horses started in the mile race and all the others were outdistanced in this final prep for the first of the Triple Crown classics.

I'm Guaranteed was third, six lengths behind Mr. Prospector, with Blue Chip Dan fourth, three lengths farther back. Gold Bag finished last and may have lost a chance to run in the Kentucky Derby.

Settecento and Gold Bag were the only two starters who had been expected to challenge America's top three-year-olds in five days. Settecento, ridden by Larry Adams, apparently qualified for the task. Gold Bag was a disappointment.

Mr. Prospector was a heavy favorite at 3-5 with the crowd of 14,580. The colt got off to a slow start, but once he swung into high gear rapidly picked up his rivals after they had gone a little more than a quarter of a mile. He charged right by them before they reached the start of the final turn and at that point seemed to be headed for an ever-widening victory.

Fifteen other horses were listed as Kentucky Derby starters and all of them may run if the track is fast on Saturday.

The gelding breezed five furlongs in 57 seconds and finished six in 1:10 1-5. He ran the first three furlongs in :34.

Schecky Greene, speedy winner of the Stepping Stone Purse on opening day, apparently also is going to start.

There will be three entries in the derby. Favored Secretariat will have a running mate in Angle Light and second choice Sham will be coupled with Knightly Dawn.

Twice a Prince, Restless Jet, Impecunious, Warbucks, Our Native, Royal And Regal, Starkers and Navajo also are expected to start. The entry box closes Thursday morning.

A muddy track Saturday could reduce the field with Forego and Restless Jet coming out. But the Churchill Downs track dries so rapidly if the sun gets at it, that scratching would be a last minute decision.

Canadiens Take 2-0 Advantage

MONTREAL (UPI) — The Chicago Black Hawks are racked with injuries as they head home to meet the Montreal Canadiens in the third game of the Stanley Cup finals down 2-0.

The Canadiens won Tuesday night's second game, 4-1, but Chicago Coach Billy Reay is still optimistic about his team's chances.

"We can still come back and tie this series," he said. "If I didn't thinnk we could do it I wouldn't be coaching here. I'm going to put three of our Dallas farmhands in the lineup Thursday night."

The Hawks were without defenseman Keith Magnuson, who is out with a broken jaw, and center Stan Mikita was dressed Tuesday night but did not see action because of a badly cut finger.

In the first period of Tuesday's game veteran defenseman Doug Jarrett tore a muscle around the rib cartilage when he collided with the Canadiens' Rejean Houle and could not return to action.

"The Canadiens have a fast hockey team. It is hard to keep up with them and force the play," said the 54-year-old Reay.

Yvan Cournoyer scored twice for Montreal, giving him 11 goals in the current playoffs, a personal all-time high.

Cournoyer, who scored the winner in the second period and added a third period power play goal, said, "I came close to a hat trick but I'll keep that third goal for Chicago. Believe me the Black Hawks will play better over there."

The Canadiens got a first period goal from defenseman Pierre Bouchard, who scored his first ever playoff marker. Claude Larose assisted on Bouchard's goal and also played a great defensive game, managing to keep Chicago's Dennis Hull, who leads the playoff scorers with 18 points, off the scoresheet.

Frank Mahovlich scored Montreal's other goal into an empty net with 34 seconds to play while Cliff Koroll scored for the Hawks.

San Marin Nine Tops Tam, 3-0

Tom Bowen pitched a five-hit shutout and San Marin High School came up with single runs in the second, third and fifth innings for a 3-0 Marin County Athletic League baseball victory yesterday over visiting Tamalpais.

Rich Villa singled home George Hoberg with the first run, Bob Louie drove in Mike Linder with a single for the second, and Louie's infield out scored Al Davidson with the third. Linder and Hoberg had two hits each for the Mustangs, and Tim Nowell hit a triple for Tam.

Winnipeg Looking To Offense

WINNIPEG (UPI) — The Winnipeg Jets will be looking for more offense tonight when they hope to draw even with the New England Whalers in their World Hockey Association final.

"I sure can't knock our goaltending because that's kept us in many games during the playoffs," said Bobby Hull, playing-coach of the Jets. "I think we have to stop playing that Horatio-at-the-bridge kind of hockey, thinking our goalies always will bail us out back there."

The Whalers crushed Winnipeg, 7-2, in the series opener at Boston on Sunday.

More Rough Basketball Expected

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (UPI) — Russian basketball Coach Vladimir Kondrashin isn't convinced the absence of UCLA's Bill Walton is the key to his team's success against the United States National squad.

"With him or without him, we'd still win a few and lose a few against the Americans," said Kondrashin Tuesday. "He makes no difference to us."

The U.S.S.R.-United States series moves into its third game tonight with each club seeking to gain the upper hand in the classic, which is deadlocked at 1-1.

The United States, with Walton in the lineup, easily downed the Soviet Union team 83-65 Sunday in Los Angeles, but the Bruins' star was kept out of Monday's game in San Diego by an injury, and the U.S.S.R. rallied for a 78-76 win.

The Soviets dominated the backboards in the San Diego game and coach Bob Cousy lamented his team was going to need more muscle than finesse to win the series.

"I have instructed my players to be as physical as they can be," said Cousy.

That extra muscle could come from Big Ten most valuable player Steve Downing of Indiana. American officials were trying to get Downing to join the American team in time for the third game and he was listed as a possible starter.

Downing, who led Indiana to the NCAA finals and a third place finish, averaged 20.1 points per game and was a standout rebounder. He was a first round draft pick of the Boston Celtics and Indiana Pacers.

The first two games of the series have been marked by near bloodshed play under the boards and the roughness has at times overshadowed the scoring.

Kondrashin has singled out UCLA backup center Swen Nater for most of his criticism about elbowings.

"Number 13 (Nater) resorts to rough play even when the ball isn't in his area," Kondrashin said Tuesday. "He has treated (Alexander) Belov very roughly."

The Russsian coach said the play in the first two games of the series has been much rougher under the boards than was the case in the Olympic Games at Munich last fall.

Aussie Signs For Pro Track

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Distance runner Tony Benson, Australia's leading two-miler for the past two years, has signed a pro track contract with the International Track Association.

The ITA announced Tuesday that Benson will make his pro debut at the Toronto Pro meet Friday, May 11, and will compete in meets in Philadelphia on May 12 and in San Diego on May 19.

BASEBALL ROUNDUP

Aaron Whacks 2 More But Braves Falter, 9-6

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The phenomenon of Hank Aaron's run for the record is beginning to obscure the success or failure of the Atlanta Braves.

The Braves are off to a sagging start with a 7-14 record but Aaron's dramatic surge at the outset of the season is overshadowing the Braves' sorry start.

Atlanta lost another one Tuesday night by a 9-6 margin to the Montreal Expos but after the game, the main topic of conversation was Aaron. He clouted two homers to continue his march to the milestone.

He not only moved closer to Babe Ruth in career home runs, he gained ground on Honus Wagner.

Aaron—who has just nine hits this season although seven of them are homers—now has a total of 3,400 hits in his career.

"Where does that put me?" Aaron asked after the game as he inquired about his hit total. He then added with a smile, "but don't tell me about that Ruth, I've heard enough about him."

Aaron's total of 3,400 hits put him just 30 behind Wagner's fourth place total of 3,430. Ty Cobb's record of 4,191 is out of his reach.

Of course, THE record, the one everyone is interested in, is Babe Ruth's total of 714 homers. Aaron now has 680 homers and needs just 34 to tie Ruth. It was the 58th time he's hit two homers in one game. Ruth did it 72 times and Willie Mays, No. 3 on the list, 63.

Of course, all the interest in the home run record has also obscured the fact that Aaron is so high in many other categories and he is tops in total bases with 6,203.

At Bats—Cobb 11,4229; Musial 10,972, Aaron 10,956.

Hits — Cobb 4,191; Musial 3,630, Speaker 3,515, Wagner 3,430, Aaron 3,400.

RBIS—Ruth 2,209; Aaron 2048.

Aaron hit a two-run homer in the third and added a solo blast in the seventh. The only frustrating thing for Aaron— besides the fact the team is losing—is that his batting average is only .150 this season with nine hits in 60 at bats.

Aaron's quest for the home run record is one of the reasons for his low average. He admits, "I don't know if I'll ever hit .300 or even .270 again." But an average of .150 is a bit embarrassing for a guy like Hank Aaron.

The game?

Oh yes, the game. Aaron's second home run tied it 6-6 but the Expos got three runs in the eighth to decide it. Pinch-hitter Hal Breeden singled in the winning run and Ron Hunt singled in a pair of insurance runs.

In the other NL games, Houston blanked Philadelphia 3- 0, San Diego beat St. Louis 10-5, Chicago beat Los Angeles 9-5, and San Francisco outlasted Pittsburgh 8-7.

In the American League, Chicago edged Baltimore 6-5, Milwaukee nipped Oakland 4-3, California beat Detroit 6-2, New York topped Kansas City 6-1 and Texas edged Boston 7-6. Cleveland at Minnesota was rained out.

Jim Wynn hit his eighth homer and Jerry Reuss pitched a seven-hitter to give Houston the victory over the Phils and Steve Carlton. Carlton, who was 27-10 last year, is now only 4-3 this year. But last year he was 5-6 and won 22 of his last 26 decisions.

Billy Williams, Ron Santo and Jose Cardenal all homered in the four-run fourth inning to pace the Cubs past Los Angeles. Williams' blast was a two-run homer while Santo and Cardenal hit solo shots. The Cubs collected 14 hits while beating Tommy John.

Nate Colbert hit a bases-loaded ground rule double to cap a six-run fifth inning as San Diego beat hapless St. Louis. St. Louis chipped in with five errors while suffering their 16th loss against three wins.

UCLA Cager Nater Inked By ABA Virginia Squires

Combined AP & UPI

NORFOLK, Va. —The Virginia Squires of the American Basketball Association said Tuesday they have signed center Swen Nater of UCLA to a multi-year contract for an undisclosed amount of money.

The Squires said the signing of Nater, who was the first round draft choice of the Milwaukee Bucks of the National Basketball Association, would not affect his eligibility to continue playing in the current U.S.-Soviet Union basketball series.

A spokesman for the Squires said the club acquired the rights to the 6-foot-11, 250-pound Dutch native from the defunct Floridians of the ABA last summer.

BOATING

By STAN DAVIES

Tips To Help Avoid Docking Disasters

Under power or sail, there are two sets of circumstances where the beginner in this boating game can make serious errors of judgment.

One is a failure to realize that the rudder has much less effect on a boat as speed decreases. The other circumstance is a failure to judge speed correctly after traveling along at a good clip for a prolonged period.

If you see a beginner bang his boat into a dock wall, it's usually because of one of these shortcomings. However, a boater doesn't have to be a beginner to make these mistakes. Even old hands, if they have never given the circumstances the proper thought, make the same errors.

In the process of docking either misjudgment can be expensive. But there's a way to avoid trouble — and it's very simple: Just stop your boat completely. Let it sit quietly for 10 seconds a few boatlengths away from the dock, then start your docking procedure as a completely independent action.

While you are stopped, you can observe the natural influences that will affect your approach . . . such things as wind, current and wave action. Try to come into your berth against the strongest of these forces — you have better control.

The most common and costly mistake in docking is coming in too fast. It's very easy to misjudge speed after you've been zipping along in a fast boat at 30 miles per hour. When you slow for the approach, 15 mph feels like 5. And the boat which answered smartly to the wheel or helm at top speed is a sluggish log at idle, yet your reflexes are still geared for the snappy control you were just enjoying.

So remember, when approaching the dock, stop before moving in.

Here are some questions on this topic I've been asked:

Q. I'm told that docking a houseboat is much harder — I'm getting one —— ?

A. A houseboat really handles just like any other power boat — when there's no wind. But even in a little breeze the high sides of a houseboat act like sails. Take extreme care in coming down wind towards a dock. Many houseboats have been badly damaged by swinging broadside to the wind and coming up to the dock with a crunch.

Q. Is there a "best" angle at which to approach a dock?

A. Anywhere between 15 and 30 degrees is best. Any angle greater than 30 degrees means that you have to swing the stern sharply to lie parallel to the dockside. The chance of misjudgment increases and if the stern swings too much, it hits, and there is sure to be damage.

Q. Warn others . . . I swung my boat hard to avoid a concrete pier, the bow missed, but the stern hit so hard I ruined the boat. Why . . . ?

A. Every day you see people who forget the major difference in the way a car and a boat are steered. With the boat, the stern swings. A sharp turn that allows the bow to clear an obstruction often throws the stern into the same obstruction with damaging force. An awareness of this effect is among the first things a boater should acquire.

LAKERS

better team than the one which lost in only five games in 1972.

Red Holzman, the astute Knick coach, agreed.

"We got blown out in the first game by Boston (134-108) and came back," he said. "We're far from dead."

The Knicks came back to upset the Celtics in seven games in the Eastern Conference finals, which ended Sunday night in Boston.

"There's no question," said Jerry West of the Lakers, "an extra day off would have helped the Knicks. With another day off, I'll guarantee you'll see a different team entirely.

The Lakers and the Eastern Conference titlists play again here Thursday night with the best-of-seven series switching to New York Sunday afternoon and next Tuesday night.

If necessary, the teams will be back in Los Angeles for game No. 5 Thursday night, May 10.

Ahead 93-73 with 1:12 to go in the third period, the Lakers saw their advantage whittled down to just three points—113-110--with 1:18 to go.

But New York threw the ball away with 39 seconds left and Bill Bradley missed a 15-footer with 21 seconds to go.

Bill Bridges then scored on a breakaway with 17 seconds to go and the Lakers had a five-point lead.

Goodrich led the Laker attack with 30 points, 19 of them in the second half. Jim McMillian added 27, 14 in the third quarter, and West scored 24, although he played just 29 minutes.

Laker center Wilt Chamberlain pulled down 20 rebounds and blocked eight shots, and Holzman said: "That big guy is amazing. He does so much to hurt you."

For the Knicks, who beat the Lakers in the 1970 finals, Dave DeBusschere led the way with 25 points and Bradley hit 24.

In the final quarter, the Lakers committed eight of their 21 turnovers. The Knicks, on the other hand, made 12 turnovers.

Although he wouldn't say so for the record, Sharman was upset at referees Mendy Rudolph and Jack Madden for whistling 11 offensive fouls against his team while none was called on the Knicks.

West, who poured in 19 points in the first half, fouled out with 3:09 to play with the Lakers in command 108-102 on an offensive foul against Frazier. It was one of two offensive fouls charged against West, who hadn't fouled out of a game since the 1970 playoffs.

"There was absolutely no way I fouled him (Frazier)," said West.

Briggs spelled his doom. Odom allowed the Brewers only five hits and Briggs got the only two that really counted.

Pedro Garcia singled off Odom in the third inning and Odom then walked Don Money and George Scott to load the bases. Briggs scored them with a two-out triple to give the Brewers a 3-2 lead.

Oakland tied it with an unearned run in the seventh. Bert Campaneris singled, stole second and continued to third when Darrell Porter threw the ball into centerfield for an error. Campaneris scored the tying run when Joe Rudi bounced in to a double play.

The A's took a 1-0 lead in the first on four walks. Starter Bill Parsons walked Campaneris, Bill North and Rudi to load the bases and was replaced by Jim Colborn. Colborn struck out Reggie Jackson and got Sal Bando on a foul pop but walked Gene Tenace on a 3-2 pitch to force in Campaneris.

Tenace drilled his sixth homer in the third to make it 2- 0.

Seals Sign Three More Players

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — The California Seals, who lost many players to the World Hockey Association last season, don't want any more of their young stars to slip away.

Tuesday they signed three young players to multi-year contracts for undisclosed terms, including center Walt McKechnie, who led the team in scoring.

McKechnie had 16 goals and 38 assists for 54 points.

Also signing contracts were wings Craig Patrick and Joey Johnston.

Drake Ends Baseball Drought

Drake High School, winless in its first eight Marin County Athletic League baseball games this year, finally ended the drought yesterday by beating visiting Marin Catholic behind the three-hit pitching of Don Asay.

Bob Gare pinch-ran after Mark Parachini had tripled in the sixth inning and scored the winning run on the front end of a double steal. Warren Pino later scored an insurance run on an infield out.

The Pirates, 2-18 on the year, tallied in the second inning when Steve Schneider walked and scored on an error, and again in the fifth when pinch runner Carlo Parachina came home on a passed ball.

Rancho Moves Into 1st Place

Rancho Cotate High School of Rohnert Park beat visiting Piner of Santa Rosa, 4-2, at Sonoma State College yesterday to take over first place in the Sonoma County League baseball race.

The victory raised the Cougars' SCL record to 5-2, giving them a one-half game edge over Piner (5-3) and Healdsburg (5-3), which lost yesterday to El Molino of Forestville, 7-6.

In other Southern Sonoma high school diamond action yesterday, Petaluma remained one half game behind Vallejo in the North Bay League with a 9-5 victory over visiting Montgomery of Santa Rosa, St. Vincent of Petaluma moved into a first place tie with Tomales in the North Central League II by beating host Point Arena, 4-2, and Tomales was edged, 7-6, by NCL II host Calistoga.

Jerry Wachowiak pitched a five-hitter to avenge a first round loss to Piner and put the Cougars in a strong position to take their third consecutive SCL baseball crown. Wachowiak, who raised his league record to 4-1, allowed just one earned run and fanned seven Prospectors.

Marshall Brant, who paced Rancho Cotate with two hits, drove in the eventual winning run in the third inning for the first of his two runs batted in.

Petaluma committed five errors to let in four unearned Montgomery runs, but the Trojans backed pitcher Sam Piezzi with an 11-hit attack, led by Mike Maselli, who laced three singles and a double.

The Trojans won the game with a four-run sixth inning rally fashioned on singles by Tim Wallmark, Dan Solid and Stan Highstreet and Maselli's double. Highstreet's hit brought home two runs.

Jim Leoni pitched five innings, was taken out for Harry Lewis and then brought back to the mound in the seventh frame to squelch a Point Arena rally.

The Pirates had runners on second and third with one out, and two runs in already, when St. Vincent coach Ed Major hurriedly put Leoni back in to pitch. He responded by getting the next two batters out to save his own victory. Leoni recorded strike outs in the first four innings he pitched.

QUICK COMMUNICATION

This emergency police two-way radio data system, called RCA Voice Plus, was produced by Rydax Inc. of 76 Belvedere Street in San Rafael. RCA ordered the equipment for more than 100 police vehicles of the DeKalb County Police Department in Georgia. Rydax system equipment substitutes number codes for routine voice messages such as "On assignment", "Off duty" or any one of 99 different messages that can be reduced to codes. Transmission of routine messages by Rydax code is said to be faster and more accurate than conventional two-way voice communications. The police car driver pushes a button to transmit the message, which is printed out at the dispatch office along with the car's identifying number and the time the message was received. The digital coded message can be sent and acknowledged in a little more than one second.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Issue Of Pollution Clouding Picture

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I hold 100 shares of Englehard Minerals & Chemicals (NYSE) at a cost of $31 a share. Why has the price dropped when earnings are good? — J.S.

A. Over and above its basic spheres of operation — international mineral trading, fabrication of precious metals and production of minerals — Englehard is involved in the area of pollution control. It is this speculative "kicker" which gives the shares an aura of glamour, and is also responsible for their poor market performance of late. The decision of the Environmental Protection Agency to extend to 1976 application of the standards of the 1970 Clean Air Act, has not materially changed Englehard's prospects. The company has developed a catalytic converter which it has contracted to supply to Ford Motor. Commitments were also made to three major foreign automakers. This type of device is currently thought to be the best available means of meeting the 1970 antipollution standards.

Because the subject is controversial and a vast array of conflicting opinion is being promulgated. Englehard shares have suffered in the market, which traditionally abhors uncertainty Yet, from the more mundane aspects of its operations, Englehard managed to lift sales to $1.93 billion last year At only 13x estimated 1973 earnings shares appear undervalued and should be held.

Q. Last April we invested $12,000 in Central Securities Corp. (ASE). We are discouraged by the performance of these shares. What should we do now? — J.G.

A. The performance of these shares reflects not only the changing value of the underlying portfolio but the substantial discount from asset value at which the shares are trading. The discount, at 35 per cent, is more than double the average discount for all closed-end funds. In view of the company's performance record, which is average, the discount appears unwarranted. The fund's portfolio is concentrated in the common stock of smaller growth companies, although major commitments are held in IBM, Inter Telephone & Telegraph and Swift & Co. With patience, your shares should recover. Thus, in my view, shares should be retained.

News On Wage-Price Plans Help The Market

NEW YORK (UPI) — Anticipation that President Nixon will toughen some aspects of his wage-price stabilization program helped push prices higher through noon today in moderate trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

Wall Street observers said investors were hoping Nixon would take some action to slow inflation. Government officials said Nixon probably would require big corporations to get prior approval for price increases or more than 1.5 per cent and raised the possibility of orders to roll back price rises exceeding increases in costs. The President will issue a statement late in the afternoon.

International Telephone & Telegraph was the most active issue, up ¾ at 33 on 171,000 shares. ITT reported higher quarterly earnings Tuesday.

Prices on the American Stock Exchange advanced in moderate trading. Teleprompter was the most active issue, off ⅝ at 19 ½ on 34,100 shares.

On the Big Board, computer and electronics issues advanced moderately. Burroughs gained 1 ¾, Motorola 1 ¼ and IBM 1.

Glamor stocks gained ground with Xerox up 1 1-3, Corning Glass 1 ¾ and ARA Services 1 ⅝.

Oil stocks moved higher. Halliburton jumped 2 ¾, Getty 2 ⅛ and Atlantic Richfield 1 ⅛.

Dow added 2 and Eastman Kodak 1 in the higher chemicals. Motor, steels and aircrafts advanced in fractions. Airlines and rails turned mixed in fractions.

New Ownership Of Restaurant In Stinson Beach Is Being Announced

Elwood's Restaurant in Stinson Beach will be taken over next week by The Road House Inc., headed by Charles E. Hancock of Stinson Beach, who ran for county supervisor last year.

Hancock, owner of Bolinas Bay Stock Farm and Christmas Tree Ranch, entered the race for the fourth supervisorial district post vacated by Louis H. Baar, but later withdrew and threw his support to current Supervisor Gary T. Giacomini.

Hancock said the name Elwood's will be changed to The Road House, and the dining area will be expanded from the present seven tables to about a dozen tables, in addition to the counter. "We plan to remove the pool table and pinball machine in the back and use that for dining."

Hancock said the breakfast and lunch menu will remain the same as in the past, but the Road House restaurant will also serve evening dinners on a regular basis.

Hancock ran a restaurant in the Carmel-Monterey area for about four years in the late 1950s and early 1960s. He bought a Stinson Beach ranch in 1969 and has been raising horses and Christmas trees since then.

Other principals in the new restaurant are C. Allen West, San Anselmo public accountant, and Judy Heuschkel of Oakland, Hancock's sister.

Present owners of Elwood's, Harry R. and Nola Shurtleff of Stinson Beach, plan to retire after operating the restaurant for 19 years.

Courts Handcuff Selves With Own Rules

Independent-Journal
SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY
32 SAN RAFAEL, CALIFORNIA, WEDNESDAY, MAY 2, 1973 EDITORIAL PAGE

Under the title, "Are the Courts Handcuffing the Police?" the Commonwealth Club of California has just issued a study that concludes that, whether or not they are "handcuffing police," courts are handcuffing themselves.

The report results from an in-depth study by the club's section on law enforcement. Like almost all Commonwealth Club studies, this one availed itself of the knowledge of experts and the judgment and intelligence of the club's members. The resulting report is dispassionate, reasoned, and not to be lightly dismissed.

"The section's conclusion," says the report, prepared by chairman M. Lester O'Shea, "is that there can be no question but that delay in the courts and the exclusion of evidence caused by court decisions have resulted in the acquittal of guilty persons and in the avoidance by criminals of conviction for the actual crime committed, with resulting sentences also not commensurate with the crime."

IT THEN PUTS the blame primarily on a rule adopted by 5-to-4 vote of the U.S. Supreme Court in the case of Mapp vs. Ohio in 1961, known as the exclusionary rule.

In that case, the Supreme Court held that evidence obtained without following the careful procedures of a specific search order could not be used in a criminal trial. It claimed this was of "constitutional origin," citing the 14th Amendment's guarantee of equal rights and privileges as the constitutional fount.

"Since the admissibility of evidence can now be challenged on many grounds, with many motions and appeals, it is possible to delay the start of a trial almost indefinitely," the club's report says. It notes that this process can be repeated with one piece of evidence after another, fighting perhaps all the way to the state Supreme Court on each — before the trial can begin.

This delay naturally works to the advantage of the accused. It also costs the taxpayers an inordinate amount of money.

COLUMNIST William F. Buckley recently held that the exclusionary rule "has had the effect of turning many trials into investigations not into the guilt or innocence of the defendant, but the legality or illegality of the methods by which he was apprehended." He quoted a recently retired New York judge as complaining that criminal prosecution now takes nine or 10 times as long as it did before the Supreme Court's 5-to-4 adoption of the rule.

This rule, with its immense capacity for mischief, is a court invention — a case of the judiciary's tying its own hands and subverting its own purpose.

As Buckley noted in his column, "For generations it was accepted that even tainted evidence could be considered by the jury, on the theory, as one justice put it, that the question ought to be, 'Is the man guilty?' not, 'Did the constable err?'"

If courts are seeking to reform their processes — as judges often say they are — perhaps here is a place to start.

New Yorker Succeeds As Saturday Review Fails

That great pariah of the effete American intellectual, the sophisticated tongue-in-cheek New Yorker magazine, seems to be thriving, while the Saturday Review, which has month after month, year in and year out, dared to keep its aim right on the target, is folding.

Have the worms finally gotten to the roots of the olive tree?

Assembly Subverting Will Of The People

It appears that the Assembly is about to subvert the will of a majority of the voters on the issues of capital punishment. A bill to reinstate the penalty is bottled up in a judiciary committee, hand picked to include a majority of foes of the death penalty. Bob Moretti has admitted that there is little chance of it ever being reported out for an Assembly vote. This is an arrogant means of preventing our elected assemblymen from standing up to be counted. It is not democratic government.

We citizens rarely have the opportunity to pass judgment directly on legislative matters by the initiative. The pros and cons of capital punishment were thoroughly debated and the mandate of the people was strongly for the measure. It is infuriating to find a small group of politicians cavalierly disregarding this bi-partisan mandate.

I say to you Mr. Bob Moretti if this is your leadership then forget about running for governor.

Time Change Not A Savings Account

Memo to the nerd who, year after year, writes twice a year about Daylight Savings Time. (And, as you like to do so much, the "sic" goes after "savings.") The item in question is DAYLIGHT SAVING TIME. As much as local proprietors of savings and loan companies must appreciate the subliminal reference to their operation, the time change is something —perhaps one of the few things — they have no control over. Repeat; it is DAYLIGHT SAVING TIME. Think you can hang onto it?

One Minority Ignored; Another Accommodated

If the Muir Beach homeowners don't want 500 people (nude or not) crowding their tiny private beach, I don't blame them, but the way in which the matter is being handled is — it seems — illegal.

The sheriff's office has no authority to conduct a regular patrol entirely within the bounds of private property.

The county board of supervisors decline to "adhere to minority interests" by seeking a beach for nude bathing, but they have responded well to a smaller minority residing at Muir Beach, who now have an on-premises security guard at taxpayer expense.

If I desired such service for my home or office, I would have to hire a guard from a commercial agency, I presume at my own expense.

San Anselmans Taxed Enough For Open Space

If "concern for the environment" means to take into consideration jobs, housing, food, a healthy pocketbook, as well as visual open space, then we think San Anselmo expressed this concern in the recent election.

San Anselmo property owners will be taxed 10 cents starting July 1 to support the county's buying program of open space each year for untold years to come. San Anselmo property owners also support the buying of any open space whether in San Rafael, Tiburon, Lucas Valley or Marinwood, because proportionately we will have to make up loss of tax income to the county and College of Marin, etc.

Somewhere along the line we have to consider whether we can devise other uses for land in buffer zones than buying it to lie fallow forever.

With the small amount of acreage involved in San Anselmo we think this can be done.

(The purchase of open space lands with bond money in San Rafael, Marinwood, etc., will make no difference to tax rates in San Anselmo. In no way does it affect the revenues of county or school districts. — Editor)

Don't Let Watergate Become Smoke Screen

Regardless of both parties, it should never have happened. . . We all know this Watergate affair should be cleared up, yet we must not let it take over and let the business at hand go by. It seems like something or someone is always trying to keep the American people off guard. You recall in the old days of the carnivals, when the carnival folks had pretty girls walking through the crowds giving the rubes the glad eye and showing their pretty ankles. The girls lost nothing, but Mr. Rube lost his pocketbook.

I am sure the Democrats have some wayward sons in their family tree that they are not too proud of. So take some advice from an old cow hand from the Rio Grande, and let both parties sit down like men and work this matter out. Let us not let this decoy become a smoke screen so strong that it will cause our eyes to burn that we can not see clearly and cause us to lose our sense of reasoning and to be alert.

Reasons For Suicide Barrier On Bridge

In reference to the "Politically Popular" article of April 23 by Paul E. Peterzell we feel compelled to relate some of the positive issues in favor of the Golden Gate Bridge Authority's proposed suicide prevention barrier.

In the Bay Area, suicide has become synonymous with the Golden Gate Bridge. It has become world renowned as a place to suicide and has attained a glamorous aura for those bent on self-destruction. Nearly 500 people are known to have leaped from this site to their death, and the toll keeps mounting. The proposed suicide barrier would effectively inhibit many impulsive self-destructive acts.

Suicidal persons often choose a specific method of suicide which they have fantasized and for which there are no ready alternatives. Thus, if a person is stopped from a particular method that he had chosen, he does not immediately choose some available alternative. Since suicidal crisis tends to be of limited duration, blocking a particular method of suicide may be sufficient to delay the suicidal act until the person's defenses or the situation have reconciled. Moreover, based on the evidence and success of a similar suicide barrier placed on the Empire State Building in New York, it was found that not only were suicides stopped from this site, but further they did not transfer to other neighboring tall buildings. Thus we can reasonably conclude that the proposed Golden Gate Bridge barrier will not increase the incidence of suicide on other bridges or from tall buildings. . .

Believes Ralph Nader Supports Fluoridation

Concerning the letter from Mr. Bob Lucy printed in the April 16 issue, in which he claims that Ralph Nader opposes fluoridation, I wish your paper had researched the statements so that editorial comment might have been added. The issue is of importance to the dental health of the people of the country and therefore deserves attention.

Bob Lucy states that Mr. Nader refers to Dr. Prival's report "Fluoride and Public Health". I had read this document. It is in my library. I read it again and agree with it. It SUPPORTS fluoridation of water supplies just as the rest of the scientific world supports it.

Quote from page 44: "in view of the great impact that fluoridation can have in improving dental health and the large body of knowledge that has been accumulated concerning the health effects of fluorides, it seems only reasonable to conclude that the benefits of fluoridation far outweigh any risks that may be involved."

In his letter to me Dr. Prival states, "Ralph Nader asked me to answer your letter concerning the question of fluoridation." One can only conclude that Ralph Nader believes in Dr. Prival's judgement which is definitely favorable to fluoridation.

Can we then say that Bob Lucy's claim is only hearsay?

Single Assemblyman Able To Thwart Vote Of People

By RUS WALTON

I thought this was representative government here in Babylon; of and by and for the people. I deluded myself.

One man — just one legislator — is thwarting the will of millions.

Its' Assemblyman Robert Moretti I'm stewing about, the Democratic speaker of the house. He's lousing things up.

Last Nov., 5.4 million Californians voted (67.2 per cent) to restore capital punishment. I mean, restore it for the criminal; it was never abolished for the victim.

THAT 2-1 VOTE for Proposition 17 was a pretty clear cut decision.

Some legislators thought so, too. They moved to implement the will of the people. Sen. George Deukmejian, R-Long Beach, was one. He introduced SB 450 to mandate capital punishment for certain crimes: plane hi-jacking and train wrecking involving fatalities; arson that caused grave bodily harm or death; kidnaping, rape, sex crimes, armed robbery and assault resulting in grave bodily harm or death.

The Senate Judiciary Committee passed the bill, 9-2. Senators George Moscone, D-San Francisco, and David Roberts, D-Los Angeles, voted "no". Sen. Nicholas Petris, D-Oakland, and non-Sen. Alan Robbins, D-Los Angeles, absent.

There is little doubt that the bill will be passed by the State Senate. That means it will go to the Assembly — to the Assembly Criminal Justice Committee. It will go there and die.

Because that's where Moretti enters the act, and pulls the switch.

MORETTI IS AGAINST the death penalty — and that's his privilege.

But, he admits that if SB 450 did get to the floor of the Assembly, so that all the assemblymen could vote on it, it would probably pass. He doubts that it will ever get out of committee. And, he should know.

Moretti appointed the members of the seven-man Criminal Justice Committee, including the four-Democrat majority that is opposed to capital punishment. That's one of the reasons those four are on that committee.

It adds up to one thing: the will and actions of one man, elected by 49,713 voters, can tell 5.4 million Californians to go to hell.

And it means that four assemblymen, who altogether polled 256,000 votes, can do the same.

Here are the four Democrats who can be expected to kill SB 450 — or any other death penalty bill that comes before them: Robert W. Crown (Oakland), John J. Miller (Oakland), Alan Sieroty (Beverly Hills), and Henry Waxman (Los Angeles).

In three of those four districts (Crown, Sieroty and Waxman) the Proposition 17 vote was overwhelmingly "yes". Only in John Miller's district did the death penalty fail; only John Miller can say that he represents the will of the majority of his constituents.

But, representative government goes cheap in Babylon these days.

There is something wrong with a system when it permits one man from one of the state's 80 Assembly districts to thwart the will of 5.4 million voters.

Democrats Draw Sudden Hope From GOP's Watergate Troubles

WASHINGTON — While we have been watching the Republicans dive from the tower into the water bucket, very few people have been paying much mind to the spring stirrings with the opposition party.

The only time lately when either national party has seemed worse off than the Republicans today was less than six months ago, when the Democratic ticket won one measly state. Yet there is still a pulse there, and the more damaging the Watergate crisis becomes to the GOP, the more life seems worth living again to the defeated Democrats.

IMMEDIATELY, I ENVISION angry rejoinders to this from Republicans like George Bush, the national chairman, who will insist that the Watergate and all that goes with it are in no way attributable to his party as such. It was just a bunch of bad guys who happened to be working for the same boss and spending the same money, he will say.

On the other side, Robert Strauss would maintain that it was not the Democrats as such who suffered that terrible defeat last fall. It was, instead, the McGovernites.

Like Bush, Strauss would be technically correct. Like Strauss, Bush now has a monumental rebuilding job before him. But Bush's job is tougher, because it involves public confidence. Strauss's remains formidable, but at least he can see it, get a grip on it.

In a reversal of last year's procedure, when the 1974 elections warm up you will find hundreds of Republicans running away from Mr. Nixon, rather than clutching at his coattails. Already John Connally's celebrated switch of parties has become less certain, or anyhow less imminent. In Virginia, former Democratic Gov. Mills Godwin seems less eager to embrace the Republican Party which may and may not offer him its gubernatorial nomination this year.

And many Democrats in the South and elsewhere are digging out their donkey tiepins again, proclaiming that they always did stand foursquare against the Nixons and Haldemans — when, in fact, last time around they did all they could to dissociate themselves from their own national ticket.

They sense forthcoming opportunity. Pragmatists among them, those interested in winning elections, are getting respectful hearings for their proposals to return to representative party procedures. A year ago, the cresting wave of "participatory democracy" would have bowled them over at uttering such thoughts.

THE DEMOCRATIC National Committee's commission on delegate selection and party structure just met here, and while it fretted over the quota system in esoteric detail, it received more important general statements about the party's reason for being.

They came from the Coalition for a Democratic Majority, whose task force for this session was headed by Rep. James O'Hara (Mich.) and Maryland's Richard Schifter. It speaks for a broad (nonradical, non-New Left) spectrum of the party.

"We now realize that the Democratic Party must regain the support of groups which some had come to regard as irrelevant," their document says. "We need not only more active and articulate groups such as the newly awakened blacks and browns, the women, the young and the intellectuals.

"We also need the blue-collar worker, the black professional, the southern moderate, the white ethnic, the elderly, the small businessman, the farmer and many others. None of these groups will give its support to the party if it feels that it is being forced to accept a second-class status while other groups are favored."

All of which is so self-evident that it is remarkable that it needs to be said, and even more remarkable if anybody among the Democrats still challenges it, in spirit or letter. (Even George McGovern himself has conceded that the quota system of the convention that nominated him was wrong in large part.)

BUT THE DEMOCRATS are surfacing from extreme depths. Someone needs to say the self-evident in a conciliatory way, so the party can proceed from those obvious truths to reunited campaigning.

As for George Bush, surely he is wishing that there were some self-evident truths about the current situation in his party that he could bear to hear stated out loud.

ROSCOE DRUMMOND

McGovern, Kennedy Seeking To 'Come Home To America'

WASHINGTON — Remember the drumbeat of the 1972 Democratic convention? It was: "America, come home, America, come home!"

Now the two who strayed farthest during the campaign —presidential nominee George McGovern and Sen. Edward Kennedy — are themselves coming home. And for cogent political reasons.

Kennedy wants to be in a position to get — if things look right —the 1976 Democratic presidential nomination.

EACH KNOWS that his goal will be unattainable unless he sheds most of the ideas and ideology of the "new politics" which he expounded so unreservedly and unsuccessfully six months ago.

It is quite a distance to cover politically. Those who brought about the nomination of Senator McGovern at Miami were intent upon having a candidate who rejected the political center of the Democratic Party. To them it represented bad politics and bad policy and on that litmus test they nominated the right man. McGovern was true to his supporters, and Senator Kennedy, his best campaigner and leading crowd pleaser, was true to Senator McGovern.

But in disdaining the political center of their own party, they found that they were rejected by the political center of both parties —and the voters.

NOW BOTH WANT to get back to the mainstream of electable politics.

McGovern has already come out against convention quotas for blacks, women and youth. He sees no reason why the political machines (like Mayor Daley's in Chicago) shouldn't run their own convention delegate slates another time.

He is acting to erase his 1972 image as "soft on drugs" by voting for tougher penalties for heroin and morphine peddlers and mandatory sentences for those who commit federal crimes while armed.

He has not been criticizing the continued U.S. bombing of Cambodia, he has shifted his position on financial aid to North Vietnam (now he's against it), and he has scaled down his proposed cuts in defense by about 75 per cent.

He is now talking against big government.

He is talking against "ill-functioning social programs" and indicates he would just as soon repeal some of them.

MOST REVEALING of all, Senator Kennedy, after weighing all the advantages and disadvantages, has decided to go to Alabama on the Fourth of July to deliver the major speech honoring Gov. George Wallace.

The occasion is to do honor to the "Spirit of America" and to do honor to Governor Wallace as the award-winning representative of the "Spirit of America."

In the past Senator Kennedy has usually depicted George Wallace as the epitome of racism.

Apparently the senator is thinking of the future.

I-J REPORTER'S NOTEBOOK

By PAT PERRY

He Wasn't The Usual Hitchhiker; It's Not The Usual Shop Center

He was hitchhiking at the Marinwood on-ramp to the freeway — a tiny old man with a deformed spine and a surgical boot six inches thick. The temperature was 82 degrees and he wore a respectable sports coat and tie, and although I never pick up hitchhikers there comes a time. . .

Climbing awkwardly into the car, he gasped that he only wanted to go down the freeway as far as the Lucas Valley offramp, because he was calling on Franchini's Chateau restaurant.

"I'm selling ads for a newspaper," he said. "Wouldn't have hitchhiked but the bus doesn't go from Marinwood to there."

As we drove down Highway 101 he insisted that all I had to do was pull to one side of the road, let him out — "and then I'll just hop across the other side."

THE THOUGHT of that thick boot and that poor humped back just hopping across 101 was too grim to bear. I zipped him around under the freeway and dropped him outside the restaurant.

The point of all this tale is that he was incredibly grateful. No ladies had ever given him a ride, he said, cheerfully waving and wishing me "all the luck in the world."

Further down the freeway a great crowd of big strong students lounged waiting for rides. I hoped they got them. But I know who deserved a lift the most.

EVERYONE'S SO KEEN on planning and total environment and zoning and ordinances, the whole subject is in danger of becoming the new religion. It's becoming positively irreverent, even unpatriotic, to suggest that a house or a shop or a town can be built unless it's preplanned to meet regulations.

But the fanaticism tends to be undercut by the charm of the older sections of Marin County, the higgledy piggledy hillside houses, and the horribly nonconforming structures that have more style and panache than a whole acre of conforming boxes.

For my money the most charming shopping center in Marin County — please forgive me, dear advertisers of all the others — is the Lark Creek complex in Larkspur. It wasn't exactly planned as one. There were a couple of old houses and some old shops and a creek and a magnificent stand of trees. But this unplanned combination has emerged into something with, again, more style and panache and pleasant ambience than any air-conditioned mall.

City Manager Fight On Cotati Agenda

The continuing battle of three youthful members versus two oldtimers on the Cotati City Council is expected to flare up again tomorrow when the council meets at 7:30 p.m. in the city hall.

At the council's April 18 meeting the three Sonoma State College graduates elected to the council last year moved to fire City Mgr. Paul W. Salfen. The three out-maneuvered their older colleagues by introducing an ordinance to reduce the required vote for such a dismissal from 4-1 to 3-2.

The ordinance is on the agenda again tomorrow as is election of a new mayor for the coming year.

Councilman Herbert T. Winter last month threatened recall of the three younger councilmen over the proposed firing of Salfen.

Suit Is Filed Over Tickets

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A San Mateo County resident has filed a $1.5 million lawsuit because he was arrested for traffic warrants even though he had paid his fines.

Gurdaman Duggal, 34, Foster City, said in his Superior Court complaint that he had paid his fines on Dec. 12 but because of a records foulup here was arrested in Foster City on Jan. 4 and had to spend the night in the San Mateo County Jail at Redwood City.

Duggal sought $400,000 from San Francisco, $200,000 from Foster City, $200,000 from San Mateo County and $700,000 from five Foster City policemen.

Heald Awards Scholarships

Novato students have won three of four full tuition scholarships to Heald Business College in San Francisco, according to Mitzi S. Ulrickson, college director.

Winners of the scholarships, valued at $1,500 each, were Jeanne Marie Bywater and Debra Ann Caldwell, both of Novato High School and Lori Sue Winterboer of San Marin High School.

The winners were from a field of 10 finalists from high schools in northern California.

Trial Set On Driving Count

A Tamalpais Valley man arrested on suspicion of drunken driving the day after an appeals court overruled his conviction for making obscene movies has been ordered to appear May 24 for trial on the driving violation count.

Lloyd K. Downton was arrested early Jan. 30 at the Alexander Avenue exit from Highway 101 in Sausalito after attending a celebration of the court ruling.

A California Highway patrolman arrested him because his car was weaving and because he failed a roadside sobriety test, according to the patrol.

Hub Recreation Classes Scheduled

A new four-week session of recreation classes — ranging from yoga and bellydancing to antique repair and tiny tots — will be held by the San Anselmo Parks and Recreation Department beginning May 21.

The department has also announced its cosponsorship of the Ross Valley Chess Club, which meets each Tuesday at Rubson Park at 7 p.m., and a folk dancing club which meets at 7 p.m. on the first Friday of each month at Isabel Cook School.

Applications Available For Summer School

Applications for the San Rafael School System's elementary summer session are available at the district office, Third and E Streets, elementary summer school director Joseph L. Marrino announced today.

Applications for summer school, which begins June 22 for a five week period, should be returned to neighborhood schools as soon as possible, he said, because staff hiring depends on enrollment.

Summer sessions will be held at Bahia Vista, Coleman, Gallinas, Glenwood, Short and Davidson schools, according to Marrino.

Two Teacher Groups Back Anti-Union Measure

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

While the California Teachers Association and California Federation of Teachers are pushing bills to bring union collective bargaining to the public schools, a Los Angeles County legislator has introduced a measure to do just the opposite. And he has done so at the behest of two organizations of teachers.

Assembly Bill 1400, by Assemblyman Robert C. Cline, R-Woodland Hills, would outlaw exclusive union representation of teachers. Cline introduced it for the Professional Educators Group of California and the Professional Educators of Los Angeles, which are inter-related organizations.

AB 1400 would amend the Winton Act, which governs negotiations between teachers and school boards. It specifies that the certificated employees council, which represents teachers under the Winton Act, could not delegate its negotiating powers to a committee of its members or anyone else, and could not itself be the exclusive bargaining agent.

This is intended to correct a perversion of what Gordon Winton, former Merced legislator who was author of the Winton Act, has said was its intention.

Winton has said that his act was not designed to permit any organization to be the exclusive representative of teachers. However, the certificated employees council membership is in ratio to the memberships of all organizations represented among the teaching staff in a school district. As it works out, if one organization has a majority of the teachers — as CTA does in most districts — its members on the council can appoint a committee to do the actual negotiating. Minority members of the council thus are "frozen out." This has become standard practice in some districts.

Cline's proposed amendments forbid delegation to any teacher group or individual of the authority to represent teachers. They also provide that any teacher could, if he wished, do his own negotiating with the board.

His AB 1400 further specifically forbids any sort of pressure being used to force any teacher to join a specific organization or permit it to represent him in negotiations.

ALL THIS IS in direct contradiction to Senate Bill 400, introduced by state Sen. George R. Moscone, D-San Francisco, with CTA sponsorship and CFT support. Moscone's bill provides for exclusive representation of all teachers by whatever union has a majority of members. Its language also would legalize teacher strikes and the agency shop, in the opinion of the legislative counsel. It would repeal the Winton Act.

CTA and CFT are also backing another collective bargaining bill, AB 1243 by Assemblyman Bob Moretti, D-North Hollywood. This one calls for exclusive representation of all public employees — including school teachers — by any union having a majority membership.

Since CTA and CFT are the two biggest unions among California teachers, it may be assumed that Moscone and Moretti represent a majority of teachers with their bills. However, R. D. Lane, a Riverside teacher who is president of the Professional Educators Group, declared in announcing sponsorship of Cline's AB 1400:

"WE FEEL THAT it is important for one teacher organization in this state to stand up for the minority point of view. Our bill is designed to protect the voice of the minority in negotiations with the public school employer. We reject the idea that collective bargaining and the right to strike will improve the quality of education."

Actually, Lane's organization may be speaking for a majority of teachers, although it has only a small minority as members. Neither CTA nor CFT has ever polled its members to find out whether a majority of them want exclusive union representation.

Spock Ends N. Viet Visit

SAIGON (UPI) — Dr. Benjamin Spock and his wife left North Vietnam Monday after touring areas bombed by the United States and meeting with Premier Pham Van Dong, Hanoi's Vietnam News Agency said.

Spock, who ran for president last fall on the Peace and Freedom ticket, visited North Vietnam's Ministry of Public Health and the Commission for the Prtection of Mothers and Children, the agency said in a broadcast monitored in Saigon.

The broadcast said Spock visited "many localities subjected to U.S. bombing," including the Bach Mai Hospital."

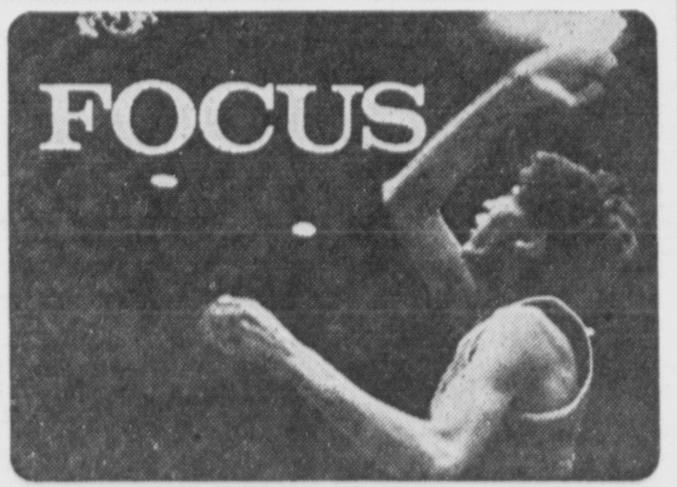
A Citation For Belching Smoke

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The cargo ship Carolina got a ticket Monday—for belching too much smoke.

The citation was delivered by Barney Griswold, senior inspector for the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District, who said he spotted the smoke while on patrol.

Seatrain officials said their vessel was undergoing boiler repairs and the work caused the smoke.

The ship was tied up at Pier 22.



Soviet Basketball

Although basketball was played in Russia before the Revolution, there was not a team from the USSR to compete with other countries until 1947. Their teams have become major competitors. While the biggest player on the 1947 men's team was only 6'4", the players on today's team average almost 2 inches taller. The more than 3½ million people playing the game all over the Soviet Union create a vast pool of talent and diversity to draw from. Now engaged in a 7-city tour of the U.S., the Soviet team is challenging the only country with a winning record against it (3:8).

Apartments For Rent (Unfurnished)—2720

Is your apartment or house standing vacant — and losing you money?

Have you ever thought about how much money you lose each day or week your apartment stands vacant? Here's a chart to point out the drain on your income:

YOU ARE LOSING

If Your Monthly Rental Price Is:	Every Day	Every Week	Every Two Weeks
$150	$ 5.00	$35.00	$70.00
175	5.83	40.81	81.62
200	6.67	46.69	93.38
225	7.50	52.50	105.00
250	8.33	58.31	116.62
275	9.16	64.12	128.24
300	10.00	70.00	140.00
325	10.83	75.81	151.62
350	11.66	81.62	163.24

(Based on a 30-day month)

Add to this the cost of maintaining a vacant apartment and you have an even larger loss. Doesn't it make sense to: FIRST, run an I-J Classified ad, & SECOND, to take a little time and run a BETTER ad — more benefits, more discription, less abbreviations (82% of readers don't know the meaning of AEK).

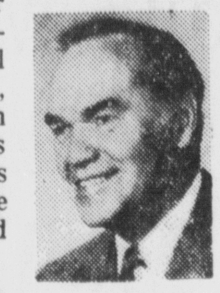
HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Illinois Outbreak Best Shows Measle Vaccine Effectiveness



The measles outbreak (regular measles or rubeola) in two Illinois communities demonstrated the value of the vaccine. Almost all cases occurred among unvaccinated children, despite a state law requiring immunization on entering school. One community had 54 cases and another had 217. The majority of victims had not been vaccinated. In contrast, the rate was very low among children who received the vaccine or who had had measles.

MEANWHILE, NO CASES of measles were seen in a Lutheran and Roman Catholic school where vaccination was mandatory, even though there was close contact between the unaffected children and members of the community that had developed measles during the outbreak. In neighboring school districts where a high percentage received the vaccine, only three children developed measles. This speaks well for the protection provided by measles vaccine.

Measles, a highly communicable disease, is caused by a respiratory virus. It spreads from one person to another by infectious droplets. Articles soiled with viable respiratory secretions also spread the disease. Few susceptible individuals escape when it occurs in epidemic proportions. The incubation period is 10 to 12 days, but the youngster is contagious for several days before the rash crops out.

MEASLES IN THE early stages resembles a cold with fever, cough, malaise, runny nose, and watery eyes. Telltale evidence is seen along the inside of the cheeks (white spots surrounded by a red halo — Koplik's spots). The well-known rash makes its debut on the face and behind the ears. From here it spreads and, in severe cases, the child looks and feels ill for up to 10 days.

Complications such as pneumonia and ear infections usually stem from secondary bacterial invaders. Encephalitis is an exception in that the brain damage is caused by the measles virus itself. There is no specific remedy. However, aspirin keeps the temperature at a respectable level. To ward off serious complications, the use of the preventive vaccine is stressed.

Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to Dr. Van Dellen, c/o the Independent-Journal.

HEADACHES, NERVES

G. N. writes: Are there any tests to determine whether headaches are due to nervousness?

REPLY

Yes, but mainly by using tests that exclude other causes of headache. When the results are negative, the physician must probe the events preceding the headache, along with the emotional and nervous makeup of the individual. Incidentally, most headaches can be traced to tension, fatigue, and anxiety — conditions frequently related to nervousness.

BLOOD IN EYE

Y. R. writes: My 81-year-old husband has blood in his eye. He has no pain. What could cause this?

REPLY

Hemorrhage into the eye occurs rather frequently when the vessels are fragile or hardened, or perhaps your husband is taking certain drugs, such as aspirin. Bleeding into the white of the eye has the best outcome, because the condition is on the surface and does not interfere with sight. The blood absorbs completely.

Classes In Drama Set For Children

Drama classes for Southern Marin youngsters from 3 to 9 years old are being given Tuesday and Thursdays at the Strawberry Recreation District's community building with a play planned for later this month.

Children from 3 to 5 may join one group, which meets Tuesdays from 2:50 to 3:25 p.m., while those 6 to 9 may join the other, which rehearses from 3:30 to 5 p.m., according to director Linda I. Polfus.

The older children will present a play written by Miss Polfus, "The Enchanted Girl," in late May, she said. Exact dates will be announced later.

She also said a drama group for older children aged 9 through 12 will begin this summer. Children interested in any of the groups may obtain further information from David E. Roberts, district recreation director, whose offices are at the community building.

The drama classes are not restricted to children who live in the recreation district, Miss Polfus said.

Chopped Onions For Ear Ache?

LONDON (UPI) — In the county of Northampton, a doctor has reported, some of his patients think the way to cure an earache is to stuff chopped onions in the patient's ear.

For depression, he said, some Northampton residents eat fresh dandelions and to cure a chilblain, others soak their feet for 30 minutes in a lavatory.

Dr. C.P. Elliott-Binns, writing in the current edition of Medical News, said he found 320 such folk remedies used by some of his 1,000 Northampton patients.

One cure he said was likely to die was putting raw meat on warts. Meat prices, he said, are too high.

Die Off Of Carp Probed

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The state Department of Fish and Game is investigating the die off of thousands of carp throughout the Sacramento-San Joaquin Delta.

The department reported Tuesday that its personnel have collected diseased carp and subjected them to analysis in the department's fish pathology section but no exact cause of the deaths has yet been determined.

However, Dick Beland of the department said the cause was believed to be a undefined epidemic disease condition rather than a water quality problem.

"It's a widespread die off from one end of the delta to the other involving thousands of fish," Beland said, adding no other fish are threatened.

Unions Defend Policy On Dues

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ten labor unions have asked a federal court to bar two right-to-work organizations from filing suits around the country against union shop contracts.

The unions said Tuesday that the National Right to Work Legal Defense Foundation and the National Right to Work Committee have filed 20 suits around the nation challenging union shop contracts, which require employes to join unions or pay dues in order to hold their jobs.

The unions' suit, filed in U.S. District Court, claimed that as long as the groups receive contributions from employers the suits violate a federal law forbidding employer associations from financing suits.

Today is Wednesday, May 2, the 122nd day of 1973 with 243 to follow:

The moon is new. The morning stars are Mercury, Mars and Jupiter. The evening stars are Venus and Saturn.

Singer-actor Bing Crosby was born May 2, 1904

On this day in history:

In 1863, Gen. Thomas Jonathan "Stonewall" Jackson was mistakenly shot by his own Confederate soldiers. He died May 10.

In 1941, the Federal Communications Commission approved the regular scheduling of commercial television broadcasts.

In 1945, the Allies announced the unconditional surrender of Nazi troops in Italy and southern and western Austria.

In 1972, FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover died at the age of 77. Also that day, 91 persons were killed in a mine fire at Kellogg, Idaho.

A thought for the day: Irish poet Oscar Wilde said, "There is no such thing as a moral or immoral book. Books are well written, or badly written, that is all."

San Rafael air quality yesterday:
Oxidants, clean air.
Nitrogen dioxide, clean air.
Carbon monoxide, clean air.
Smoke particles, clean air.
Other areas:
San Francisco, clean air.
San Jose, light air pollution.

Colorless oxidants, brownish nitrogen dioxide and smoke particles aggravate respiratory diseases. Carbon monoxide causes dizziness, headaches and slows reflexes. Smoke particles come largely from industrial sources, the other three come primarily from motor vehicles.

Fisheries Laboratory Continues

The Tiburon Fisheries Laboratory expects to continue operations on the former Naval Net Depot property, where the U.S. Bureau of Mines' marine minerals depot was closed two months ago.

The fisheries laboratory, which is under the Commerce Department's National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, has received no order to close, Richard Shomura, its director, said today. In fact, Shomura is now preparing a plan for its permanent operation, including replacement of some of the old net depot buidings.

Current project of the laboratory is a study of the effects of oil in salt water on fishes and other marine vertebrates. About 25 persons are employed, Shomura said. More than 40 were at work at the marine minerals depot until it was closed by government order.

The Tiburon facility is the only research facility that has access to the bay, Shomura declared. Therefore he feels it should be kept.

The laboratory director said he would like to see the property developed as a marine science center, and has approached several institutions of higher education with this idea. "U.C. Davis is interested," he reported.

The laboratory occupies parts of four buildings on the 30-acre property and makes use of the pier.

Shomura said he saw no conflict between continued operations of the laboratory and acquisition of the rest of the property, now unused, for a county park. He said he had discussed such as idea briefly with Pierre W. Joske, county parks and recreation director.

Plea Entered To Auto Theft

Ronald Roland Cardinalli, 18, of San Rafael has pleaded guilty to a felony auto theft charge on condition he receives no more than six months in jail.

The plea bargain was arranged Monday with the district attorney and Judge David Menary Jr. of Marin Superior Court, who set sentencing for June 4 to obtain a probation report.

Cardinalli was arrested Jan. 20 by San Rafael police at Fourth and E streets soon after a 1967 BMW was taken from the BMW Auto Zentrum at 1826 Fourth Street.

Buried In Cement

TYLER, Tex. (UPI) — Cement mixture spilling from a broken chute poured over construction worker Harweda Jones Monday, burying him under 15 feet of concrete. He was dead by the time rescue workers were able to dig his body out.

Denial To Bad Checks Is Entered

A Mill Valley man has denied in Marin Municipal Court that he wrote three bad checks totaling $275.09 to Sausalito stores last July.

Following the innocent plea Monday, Judge Gary W. Thomas of Marin Municipal Court set a preliminary hearing for Peter Edler May 22.

Mill Valley police went to Edler's home April 11 after receiving a report of a family quarrel, but left with Edler.

Police said they ran a computer check and found he was wanted on a $1,000 warrant charging him with writing checks his bank account could not pay for.

The allegedly bad checks were for $103.94 at Ronnie's Camera Shop, 789 Bridgeway, July 2, and for $71.40 and $99.75 last July 1 and July 2 to Hanna Leathers, 777 Bridgeway.

Barger Pleads Guilty To Help Girl Friend

Barger, 34, also was returned his Hell's Angel belt buckle by Judge Harold B. Hove.

Hove sentenced Barger to one to 10 years in prison for false imprisonment and kidnaping and one to 15 years for possession of a gun by an exconvict in connection with a 1972 incident. The sentences will be served concurrently with his current 10 years to life term for narcotics possession.

Barger entered the guilty pleas after Deputy District Attorney Donald Whyte agreed to drop narcotics possession charges against Sharon Gruhlke, 23, a former Livermore beauty queen who has lived with Barger for several years.

The jury that convicted Barger was unable to reach a verdict on Miss Gruhlke. Both were charged after officers found $10,000 worth of heroin, cocaine and marijuana in their Oakland Hills home last May.

Four other Hells's Angels pleaded guilty to lesser charges in connection with the beating and kidnaping of two men by the motorcycle gang in Oakland on Jan. 22, 1972. The two men were found by police bound and gagged in a car trunk after a high speed chase through the Oakland hills.

The four motorcyclists, who had been scheduled to go on trial for kidnaping, assault with a deadly weapon and attempted murder, pleaded guilty instead to false imprisonment.

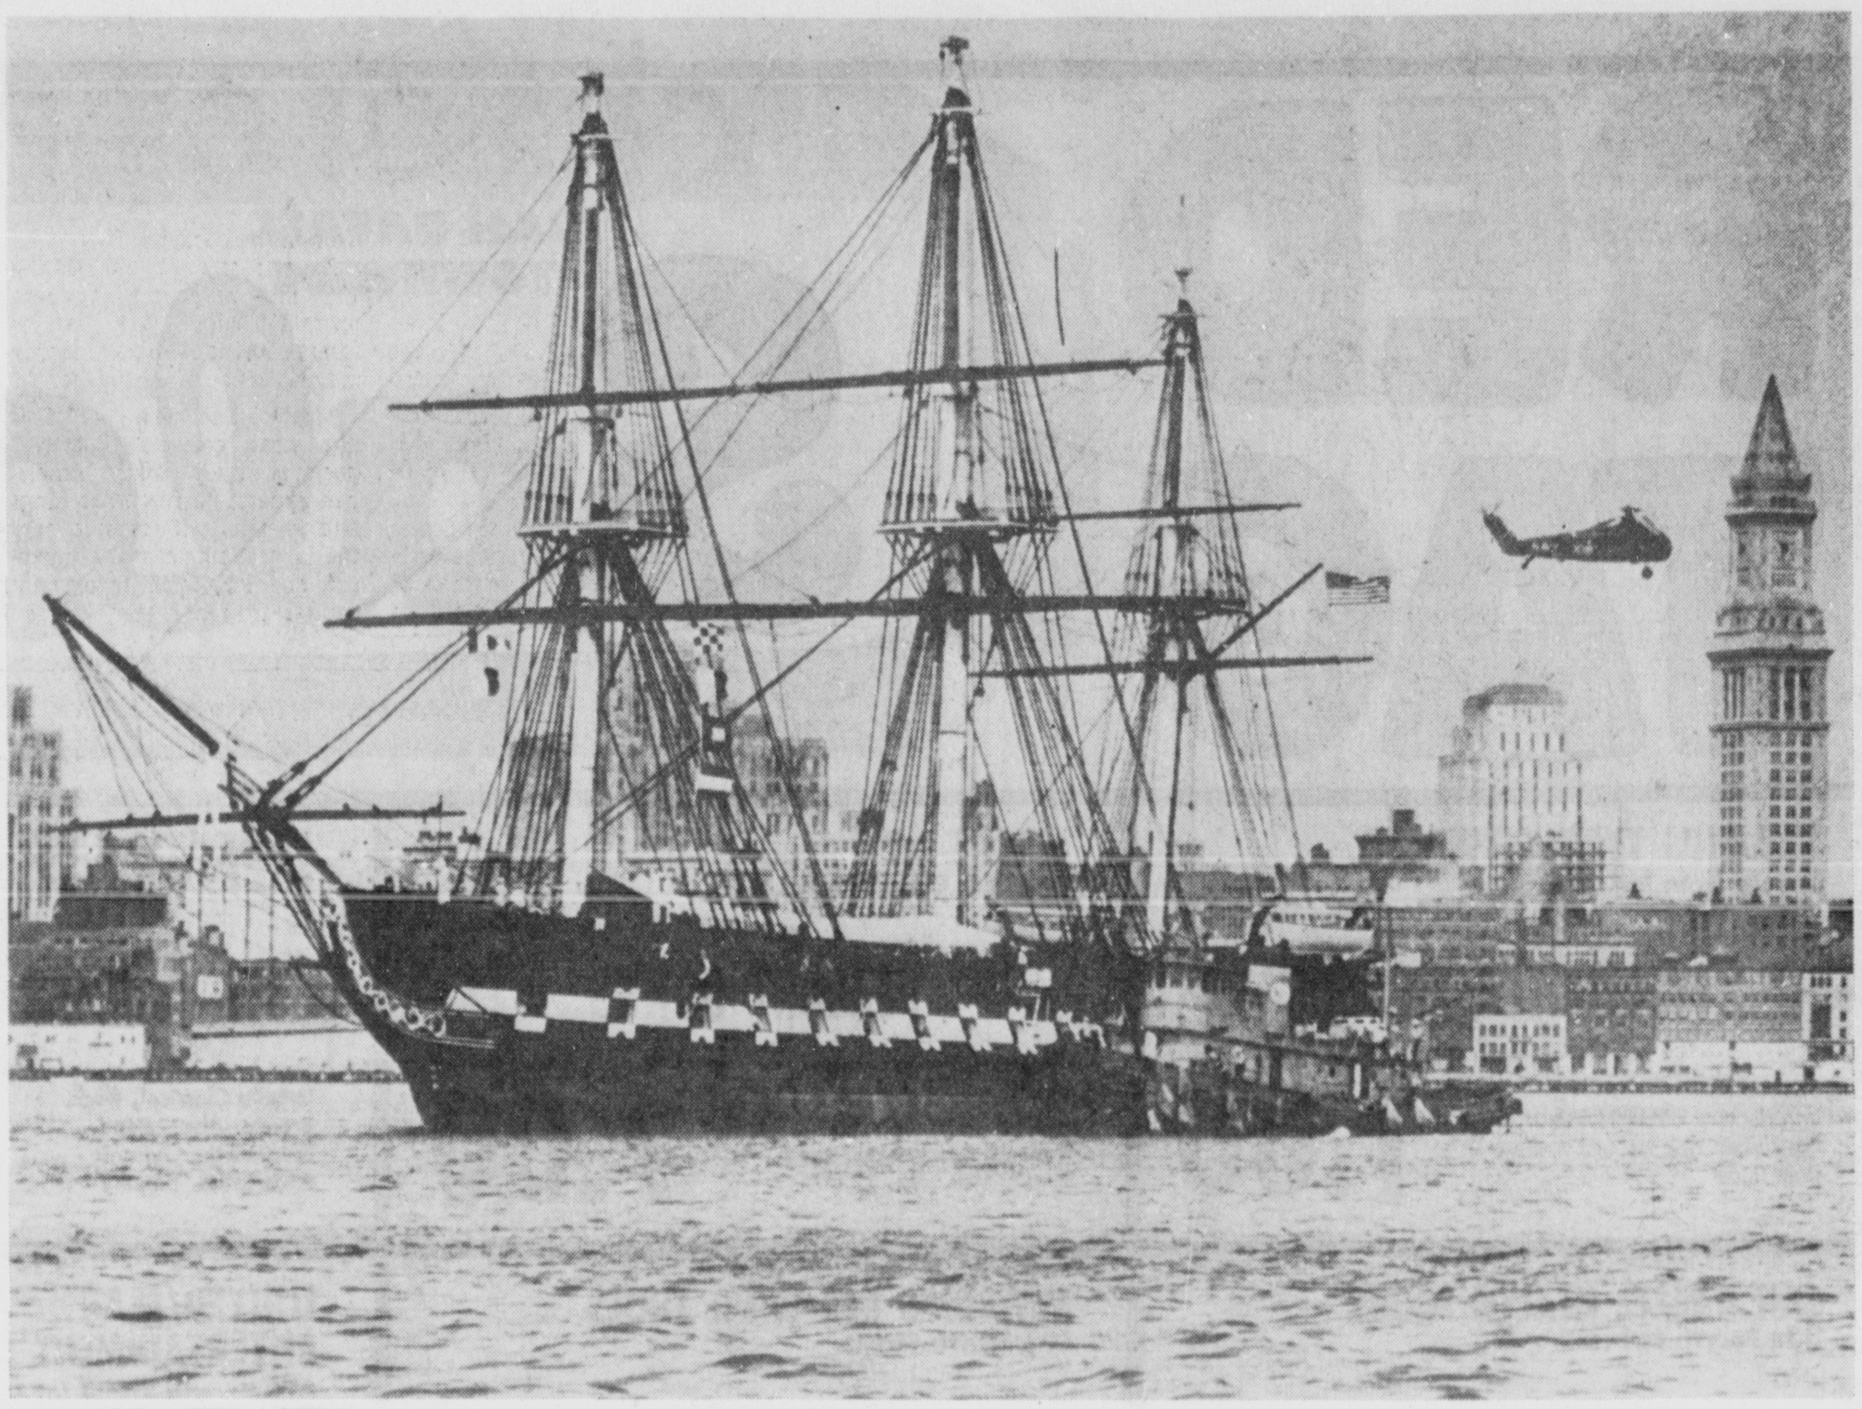
BUT TOO MANY?

Boston Will Welcome Bicentennial Visitors

By RALPH HUBLEY
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service



MAJOR ATTRACTION — One of the big attractions for the American Revolution bicentennial vistors to the Boston area will be the Naval fighting ship the Constitution shown being brought across Boston Harbor. (Christian Science Monitor photo)

BOSTON — The British are coming! The British are coming! And so are the Germans and the Japanese — to "help" New England observe the American Revolution bicentennial.

While the welcome mat is out, local preservationists are deeply concerned over what over-stimulated tourism may do to historical and natural treasures.

The thrust of much overseas travel promotion today is to visit the U.S. during its bicentennial celebrations to enjoy the special events scheduled during 1975-76. In order to make travel in the United States possible for overseas visitors, special transportation and accommodation rates have been arranged with airlines, buses and trains. But what at first looked like a wonderful opportunity to turn the tide of outgoing dollars, now takes on more the appearance of an undertow.

New Englanders are hoping the British Bicentennial Liaison Committee now in session will urge visitors to come to the U.S. this year or the next to avoid the huge crowd.

"You will certainly be most welcome, but why would you British want to come at this time? Won't it be a bit embarrassing for you?" an American travel agent asked his colleague from London.

"Not at all," the Briton replied. "It was one of the best things that could have happened to the empire. We lost a colony but gained a very helpful ally. The rapid growth of America also has helped to spread the English language here and around the world. You see we, too, are celebrating."

Will New England be able to handle the expected 20 million visitors during the bicentennial period? Finding a place to stay seems to be the most pressing problem.

"The American Revolution bicentennial celebration will be the greatest motivator of travel the world has ever seen," predicted William D. Toohey, chairman of Discover America Travel Organizations, "that is —if in our rush to build facilities, resorts, and attractions for these travelrs, we do not destroy the basic commodity the travel industry has to sell."

Toohey was making a plea to preserve the environment while accommodating friends from abroad. How can the lovely rolling countryside of Lexington and Concord be appreciated if lined with motels or bumper-to-bumper traffic? Or can you imagine the Old Man of the Mountain with concession stands right under his nose? The continuing struggle to save his features from erosion would be lost without a tranquil setting in which to observe them.

Also nearly all national landmarks need major repairs. Costs of these run to thousands of dollars. Most of the damage reportedly comes from wear and tear of tourists. Thus the preservationist's concerns over the onrushing crowds.

Federal funds are available for restoring designated national landmarks. But many historic buildings and sites are not so designated. Money for these must be raised locally. Some bicentennial projects will be eligible for federal funds on a matching grant basis. Cities and towns in Massachusetts, for instance, recently were notified that a $40,000 grant has been made available to them.

But what about handling the crowds? Boston, for instance, anticipates nearly 16 million visitors during the 20 months of major bicentennial activities. Since Boston is one of the first areas forced to face up to handling such crowds, what the city does or fails to do will interest other areas.

Boston already may have begun preparations too late. The following areas are the most critical:

Accommodations. Most hotel space already has been booked, even that of a new hotel to be built in Cambridge and the addition to a Back Bay hotel now under construction. There are not enough nearby camping areas, and proposals to open new areas have run into opposition from naturalists and other conservation groups. The suggestion for housing guests in individual homes has met much skepticism even though it worked very successfully in Japan during Expo '70. The private home system was only a partial success at Montreal's Expo '67.

Transportation. Traffic normally is a little lighter in Boston during summer vacation months.But parking space is still at a premium. Imagine trying to find additional parking space near the USS Constitution? And all tourists should be advised against using highways to Cape Cod or to Maine or New Hampshire Friday afternoon and evening and also Sunday afternoon and evening when the traffic is returning to Boston.

One transportation expert has presented specific recommendations for relieving traffic problems in each of the six states.

William W. Harsch, of the Geo-Transport Foundation of New England, said Connecticut needs a "transit-based strategy" where visitors with a common destination will travel jointly, either on buses, railroads, or minibuses. He said numerous points should be connected in a statewide system, using portal parking sites.

Harsch said Rhode Island needs a "transportation hub strategy" with three or four portal parking sites, with Providence as the transportation hub to points of interest in the state. He said the Rhode Island situation is very promising.

"The three northern states — Maine, New Hampshire, and Vermont — need a low-density strategy," he continued, "using the interstate highway system with bottlenecks ironed out. Bennington, Vt., and other attractions should use satellite parking and mini-buses to prevent crowding at historical sites. Arcadia National Park could use this system, too."

In Massachusetts, Harsch suggested a Boston target area that would include busways, night delivery of goods, staggered working hours as a transit strategy. He also recommended a visitors computerized information center to schedule accommodations and direct best mode of transportation.

The strategy suggested by the New England Heritage Trail Foundation is to begin early and scatter the visitors.

"Through 1974," a spokesman for New England Innkeepers Association said, "we can take care of more history-minded tourists than now come to New England. But in the centennial years, neither 'they' nor 'we' will be happy over service, accommodations, and the increased travel. It is the obvious desire of New Englanders to do the thing well, to be gracious hosts, that is behind their present concern."

The foundation urges visitors to follow the New England Heritage Trail in all six regional states. A brochure-map published by the New England Innkeepers is available free upon request from their office at 25 Huntington Avenue, Boston, Mass. 02131. It outlines the routes to follow. Historic sites, monuments, and battle locations are identified. Church towers, like the one of Paul Revere fame, old forts where engagements heightened the feeling for liberty and gave birth to America, stand beside the Heritage Trail.

State tourism offices in each capital city have more travel literature to supplement the Innkeepers' map. The New England Council at the Statler Office Building, Park Square, Boston, 02116, also has a tourist office.

Boston, too, wants to scatter visitors off the well-worn Freedom Trail by setting up other "trails." The Boston 200 Guidebook will list a Commercial Trail, Architectural Trail, Tea Party Trail, Black Heritage Trail, Education Trail, Religion Trail, and Science and Education Trails. But where these trails cross, the only advice now offered is "Watch out!"

On the more optimistic side, the bicentennial observances are an opportunity to focus attention on the need for protecting and restoring certain neglected historic buildings and areas.

For example, National Historic Preservation Week, May 6-12, will point out many buildings having architectural and historical significance that are in danger of being destroyed. One of the landmarks threatened in New England is the Union Station at New London, Conn. The campaign to save it is led by the National Trust for Historic preservation, a private organization chartered by Congress.

The most encouraging sign is the availability of expert advice in New England on preservation, restoration, and research. Not only are the universities actively engaged in this field, but New Englanders are old hands at the game.Old Sturbridge Village in western Massachusetts, Strawberry Banke in Portsmouth, N. H., and the restoration and upkeep of historic houses in Newport, R.I.: Concord, Plymouth, and Boston, Mass., have been examples for other areas.

Funding of restoration projects is the major hurdle. President Nixon has allocated $18 million in his budget for the restoration of places of "bicentennial interest." This includes other areas besides New England, so there will be some stiff competition for these funds.

Only some of the shrines and landmarks in Boston, however, are on the national parks register and eligible for matching funds from the federal government. There are some monuments that neither the city nor the state control. So renovation will have to be left up to associations involved.

But in the last analysis it will be private citizens, the "minutemen" of the 1970's, who will be called to meet the emergency. Their standing orders to themselves might be:

1. Reinforce renovation campaigns.
2. Harbor a visitor.
3. Retreat from historic attractions.
4. But stand before the tourist charge with open arms, a smile, and a helping hand.

New Dialogue With Chile Is Expected

By JAMES NELSON GOODSELL
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

Washington has cleared the air a little and the result may be a resumption of suspended United States-Chile talks.

That's the way the United States decision not to indemnify International Telephone and Telegraph Corp. for the takeover by Chile of its Chilean telephone subsidiary is interpreted in both Washington and Santiago.

The suspended talks, aimed at working out some sort of modus vivendi between the two nations, have been stalled since December. Domestic events in both countries — President Nixon's inauguration in January and legislative balloting in Chile in March — made continuation of the talks infeasible for several months.

But elections in Chile took place more than a month ago and other factors have apparently held up a resumption of talks. For one thing, relations between the two nations have shown a continuing deterioration since the first talks were held in Washington in mid-December.

Moreover, Chile has been less than enthuisastic about resuming bilateral negotiations during the Senate hearings on ITT efforts to block Salvador Allende Gossens' assumption of the Chilean presidency in 1970.

Now, however, that the Overseas Private Investment Corporation (OPIC) has denied ITT's $92.5-million claim in connection with Chile's expropriation of ITT's telephone operation, sources in Washington indicate that a new move will soon be made to get the talks going again. Similar hints are coming from Santiago as well.

OPIC, the government corporation that insures United States businesses against losses from expropriations of their foreign operations, ruled that ITT had not fully lived up to its "contractual obligations" in connection with its relations with the Chilean Government.

Bradford Mills, the OPIC president, in announcing the decision to deny the ITT compensation claim, said the firm "failed to comply with its obligation under the OPIC contracts to disclose material information to OPIC," adding that ITT "increased OPIC's risk of loss" by its actions in Chile.

Although he refused to elaborate on these comments, it appeared to most observers to be a reference to the steadily mounting series of disclosures coming from the Senate hearings into ITT's activities in Chile. Those disclosures show that ITT sought actively to prevent Allende's election as President in September 1970.

President Allende says that Chile will not compensate ITT for the expropriated assets. "No one can dream that we are going to pay even half a cent to this multinational company which was on the verge of plunging Chile into civil war," he is quoted as saying.

The OPIC decision was immediately protested by ITT officials, and they promised to carry the matter to arbitration, where the decision could be rejected or amended. But the

Cost Of Oil From Arabs Is High

By HARRY B. ELLIS
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

WASHINGTON, D.C. — President Nixon's energy message fails to spell out for the American people the enormous financial — and possibly diplomatic — cost of buying oil from the Arabs.

Even today the United States pays foreign suppliers, mostly Middle Eastern, more than $5 billion yearly to import oil and gas. And this, so to speak is a drop in the bucket.

Experts say that by 1985 the U.S. may be paying anywhere up to $30 billion each year for foreign fuel to keep its economy moving at the present pace.

Most of this money will flow into Arab coffers. "Shortly," declared a top-ranking American expert, "a few Arab kings and sheikhs will preside over the largest single pool of medium and long-term investment capital in the history of the world."

By 1985, he said, the tiny Persian Gulf sheikhdom of Abu Dhabi — with a population of 70,000 — will have an annual income of $4 billion.

Saudi Arabia, whose town and desert population is variously estimated at between 5 and 11 million persons, may have a $16 billion annual income in little more than a decade.

A White House background paper is somewhat more specific. "By 1985," it says, "if present trends were allowed to continue, the U.S. would have to import from 50 to 60 per cent of (its) total oil supply and 30 to 40 per cent of this may have to be from Eastern Hemisphere (chiefly Arab) sources."

Only if Americans, the paper continues, agree to huge expansion of domestic energy production — at great cost to the pocketbook and possibly the environment — can U.S. dependence on Arab oil finally be reduced.

In the interim, no matter how swiftly the United States moves to boost domestic supplies of oil, coal, and natural gas, the Persian Gulf will become a magnet for many billions of U.S. dollars.

This gives enormous leverage to Arab leaders. Their share of the floating Eurodollar pool, available for quick movement in and out of dollars, will be vast.

LIBYAN OIL RIG — The cost of Mideast oil, like that being pumped from this oil rig in the Libyan desert, will have a high diplomatic, as well as monetary, cost for the United States.

New Dialogue With Chile Is Expected

OPIC action was viewed by observers in Washington as an obvious slap at ITT.

This latest development in the ITT case will undoubtedly have its effects on Chile where many of President Allende's supporters and more recently the President, himself, have publicly expressed the belief that the United States Government was somehow involved in the ITT maneuvering to keep Allende from the Chilean presidency.

For instance, although the Central Intelligence Agency apparently rejected the ITT maneuvering, the CIA was suggesting to ITT and others a different sort of action aimed at the same end.

Testimony before the Senate subcommittee probing the issue shows that the CIA gave ITT some specific hints of how the company could go about creating economic chaos in Chile — and thus in some way work against the Allende presidency.

There has been a feeling in Washington that with such information coming to light, the Allende government would be in no particular hurry to resume its interrupted talks with Washington.

But now that a government agency has ruled against ITT, citing indirectly the maneuvering it carried on in Chile, there is widespread feeling in Washington that the possibility of an early resumption of talks is growing.

Meanwhile, Chilean Foreign Minister Clodomiro Almeyda, while visiting Washington, said that ITT's remaining holdings in Chile — two Sheraton hotels, a telephone equipment manufacturing company, and a variety of other smaller activities — could become targets of government intervention or takeover.

"The present activities of ITT in Chile," he said, "are in a very precarious position."

THE BOREDOM BATTLE — Industries are seeking ways to attain greater satisfaction on assembly lines such as this one in a General Motors plant in Baltimore, Md.

Industries Taking On 'New Look'

By MONTY HOYT
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

ELSAH, Ill. — What to do to wipe out the "blue-collar blues," the "white-collar blahs," the "work-a-day woes"? A ground swell of concern about dull, dehumanizing work is bringing radical changes to the work scene.

Responding to the call for "workers' liberation," some companies have engineered a face-lifting in plant operations. Employees are beginning to work together as teams and assembling an entire product rather than an isolated part; assembly lines in some cases are being replaced and various job enrichment programs are being undertaken.

A recent department of Health, Education, and Welfare study indicated that 20 per cent of American workers were dissatisfied with their jobs because of "dull, repetitive, seemingly meaningless tasks, offering little challenge or autonomy." Independent studies by General Motors found disillusionment especially among young workers ran as high as 35 per cent and had markedly invaded white-collar positions.

Still, union leaders and many workers themselves do not see changing the job structure as the primary answer. "Money or the lack of it is the most important factor whether workers feel alienated or not," said William Winpisinger, the outspoken general vice-president of the International Association of Machinists at a recent conference on "dehumanization on the job" at Principia College here.

"I don't think workers are ever as happy as poets think they ought to be," he quipped. Yes, working conditions could stand improvement, but most workers don't go to the factories "in search of self-fulfillment. They need a paycheck. Work in a facotry or on the assembly line may be dull and dehumanizing to the behavioral scientist, but for the workingman it's bread and butter on the table."

Corporate approaches to humanizing work vary, as the conference brought out:

Sweden's major automobile manufacturer, Volvo, is breaking down the traditional assembly line in a new plant it is building.

"If you just add one dull job to another and call it job enlargement, you're not doing very much," says Berth Jonsson of Volvo's corporate planning department. "We're trying to get vertical job development."

Rather than an assembly line, where each worker performs one task, the new Kalmer plant will stress a team approach.

From 20 to 25 teams, each averaging 17 workers, will divide up the work of assembling the 8,000 components of the cars. One team will be responsible for the electrical system; one for the interior; and so on. Each worker will be encouraged to learn all the skills the team performs, which will be reflected in his paycheck.

The team decides how it will meet the production schedule; there will be very little supervison. However, an advanced quality-control system will give the team feedback within a few hours on its work. "This gives the worker almost immediate recognition for his work," Jonsson stresses.

Chassis will be driven from one work area to another by means of an electric-powered carrier. Instead of facing car bodies at preselected intervals as on an assembly line, work teams will push a button to start or stop the carrier. In this way, they can finish their work at their own speed and name their own work breaks.

The U.S. automobile giant, General Motors, is keeping an eye on the development.

"You can ventilate, put in air-conditioning, better lighting, and pipe in music, but unless you change the quality of human interaction you're not going to make long-term improvements," states Dr. Robin Widery, associate professor of communication at the General Motors Institute.

"We are beginning to focus attention back to individuals and away from machines, rather than just giving it lip-service," he says.

Through seminars, training courses, and consultations, GM has been working with its managers to improve motivation and communications and to tackle the problems of employee dissatisfaction.

"If you start at the top of a system, changes affect the whole organization. But if the changes only affect the bottom of the hierarchy, they never work their way up," Dr. Widgery says.

The Ralston Purina Co., pioneering what it calls an "operations improvement" program for four years, has realized cost savings of $1 million in the first year alone.

"We realized that part of the alienation of employees is that they feel invisible in an organization," states John R. Schmid, director of operations improvement.

Through periodic workshops, a cross section of employes meets for several days to discuss topics such as resistance to change, leadership characteristics, and achieving basic human needs. But crucial to the workshop: each participant must come up with an action plan to implement some change in the work program.

"We're providing an environment where people can speak out. No matter how lowly someone may feel on the job, this is his opportunity to shine. In real terms nothing is sacred, everything can be changed," Schmid stresses.

Another tangible result of the seminars and changes brought about, is that absenteeism company-wide has been cut 50 per cent.

But in spite of such efforts to change work and working conditions, critics like James D. Wright, executive director of the Institute of Workers' Rights and a former steelworker, responds:

"When I think of humanizing work the first thing I think about is money."

Job enrichment, concurs Winpisinger, "is nothing more than the old time-and-motion studies in sheep's clothing."

Proxmire Is Going After Armed Forces 'Servants'

OFFICERS' AIDES — The duties of an officer's aide are many and varied. Here a group of enlisted aides at Ft. Lee, Va., get some hints on flower arranging.

(Christian Science Monitor Photo)

WASHINGTON — In George Washington's day they were called "strikers," because one of their main duties was to "strike" officers' tents, putting them up and taking them down.

Nowadays in the Army they're called "enlisted aides." In the Navy they are "stewards," in the Air Force, "airman aides," in the Marine Corps, "specialists."

But they all do very much the same sort of duty — serving general officers, admirals, and in some cases (Navy) captains as butlers, drivers, cooks, and "maids-of-all-work."

Their duties may include cleaning, washing dishes, taking care of the dog, dusting, vacuuming, polishing, waxing, answering telephones, picking up groceries, shining shoes, arranging flowers, and wrapping the general's gold braid in the tarnish-proof paper, or driving the general and his wife, and picking up the kids from school, or bartending, or baby-sitting.

Although they are enlisted in the armed services, they wear "cook's whites," or black trousers with gray stripes and double breasted waistcoat and black swallowtail coat with satin on the reverse, or just a plain sack suit, depending on what they're doing.

But Sen. William Proxmire, the Wisconsin Democrat, wants to abolish them altogether. He is indignant that men in uniform should perform such services, which he considers demeaning.

Furthermore, he says there is no place in the U.S. armed forces for "this kind of pampering of generals and admirals." He says it's a waste of taxpayers' money and "the American people won't stand for it."

He demands the immediate closing of the Army's Fort Lee school and any similar training in the other services.

At last count, according to the General Accounting Office, there were 1,722 of these "aides" in the various armed services looking after 970 high-ranking officers and drawing a total of $13,231,259 a year in pay.

One-fifth of all the aides were on duty in the Washington area and 467 overseas.

The Army chief of staff, Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, and the chief of naval operations, Adm. Elmo R. Zumwalt Jr., each have eight, the highest numbers, or one more than the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Adm. Thomas H. Moorer. Generally generals are entitled to one "aide" for every star on their shoulders.

The Army, at its school for the enlisted aides at Ft. Lee, Va., maintains a racial balance among its aides, 17 per cent of whom are black. But in the Navy 98 per cent are Filipinos and in the Air Force and Marines more than half are blacks. All the services assert it now is policy to bring about racial balance in this kind of service.

Although Proxmire's eloquence produced snickers in the Senate, the armed services nonetheless have come back with a defense of the time-honored practice. The core of their argument is that generals and admirals are busy people, and, in many cases, their wives are, too, and they don't have time to attend to these domestic chores themselves. They would find it difficult to hire their domestic help from the civilian market because they are so much on the move.

In some cases it is desirable to have servicemen working in a general's home for security reasons. Finally, it is useful for such high-ranking officers to have men in their service who are also prepared to look after them "in the field" when necessary.

At Fort Lee, where 14 instructors put 24 students at a time through the eight-week "enlisted aides" course, the subject looks different through the eyes of men who have spent a lifetime in such service or who have volunteered to be trained for it.

Warrant Officer George C. Yount, who spent 20 years in the personal service of Gen. Douglas MacArthur and has been instructing food advisers and club managers for the Army for the past eight years, calls work as an "enlisted aide" a "pretty good life."

"You get to be part of the household," he said. "The kids get to like you, and the pets like you."

Nick Taddeo of Reading, Pa., who already had been through an Army cooking school of 13 weeks, volunteered for "enlisted aides" to learn "gourmet cooking — things like hors d'oeuvres and canapes."

Sp. 5/c George Sutherland of Montrose, Colo., said he had been in the Army five years and planned to be a 20-year serviceman. "I've been working in mess halls for five years," he said, "and I just felt if I knew more I could please people better."

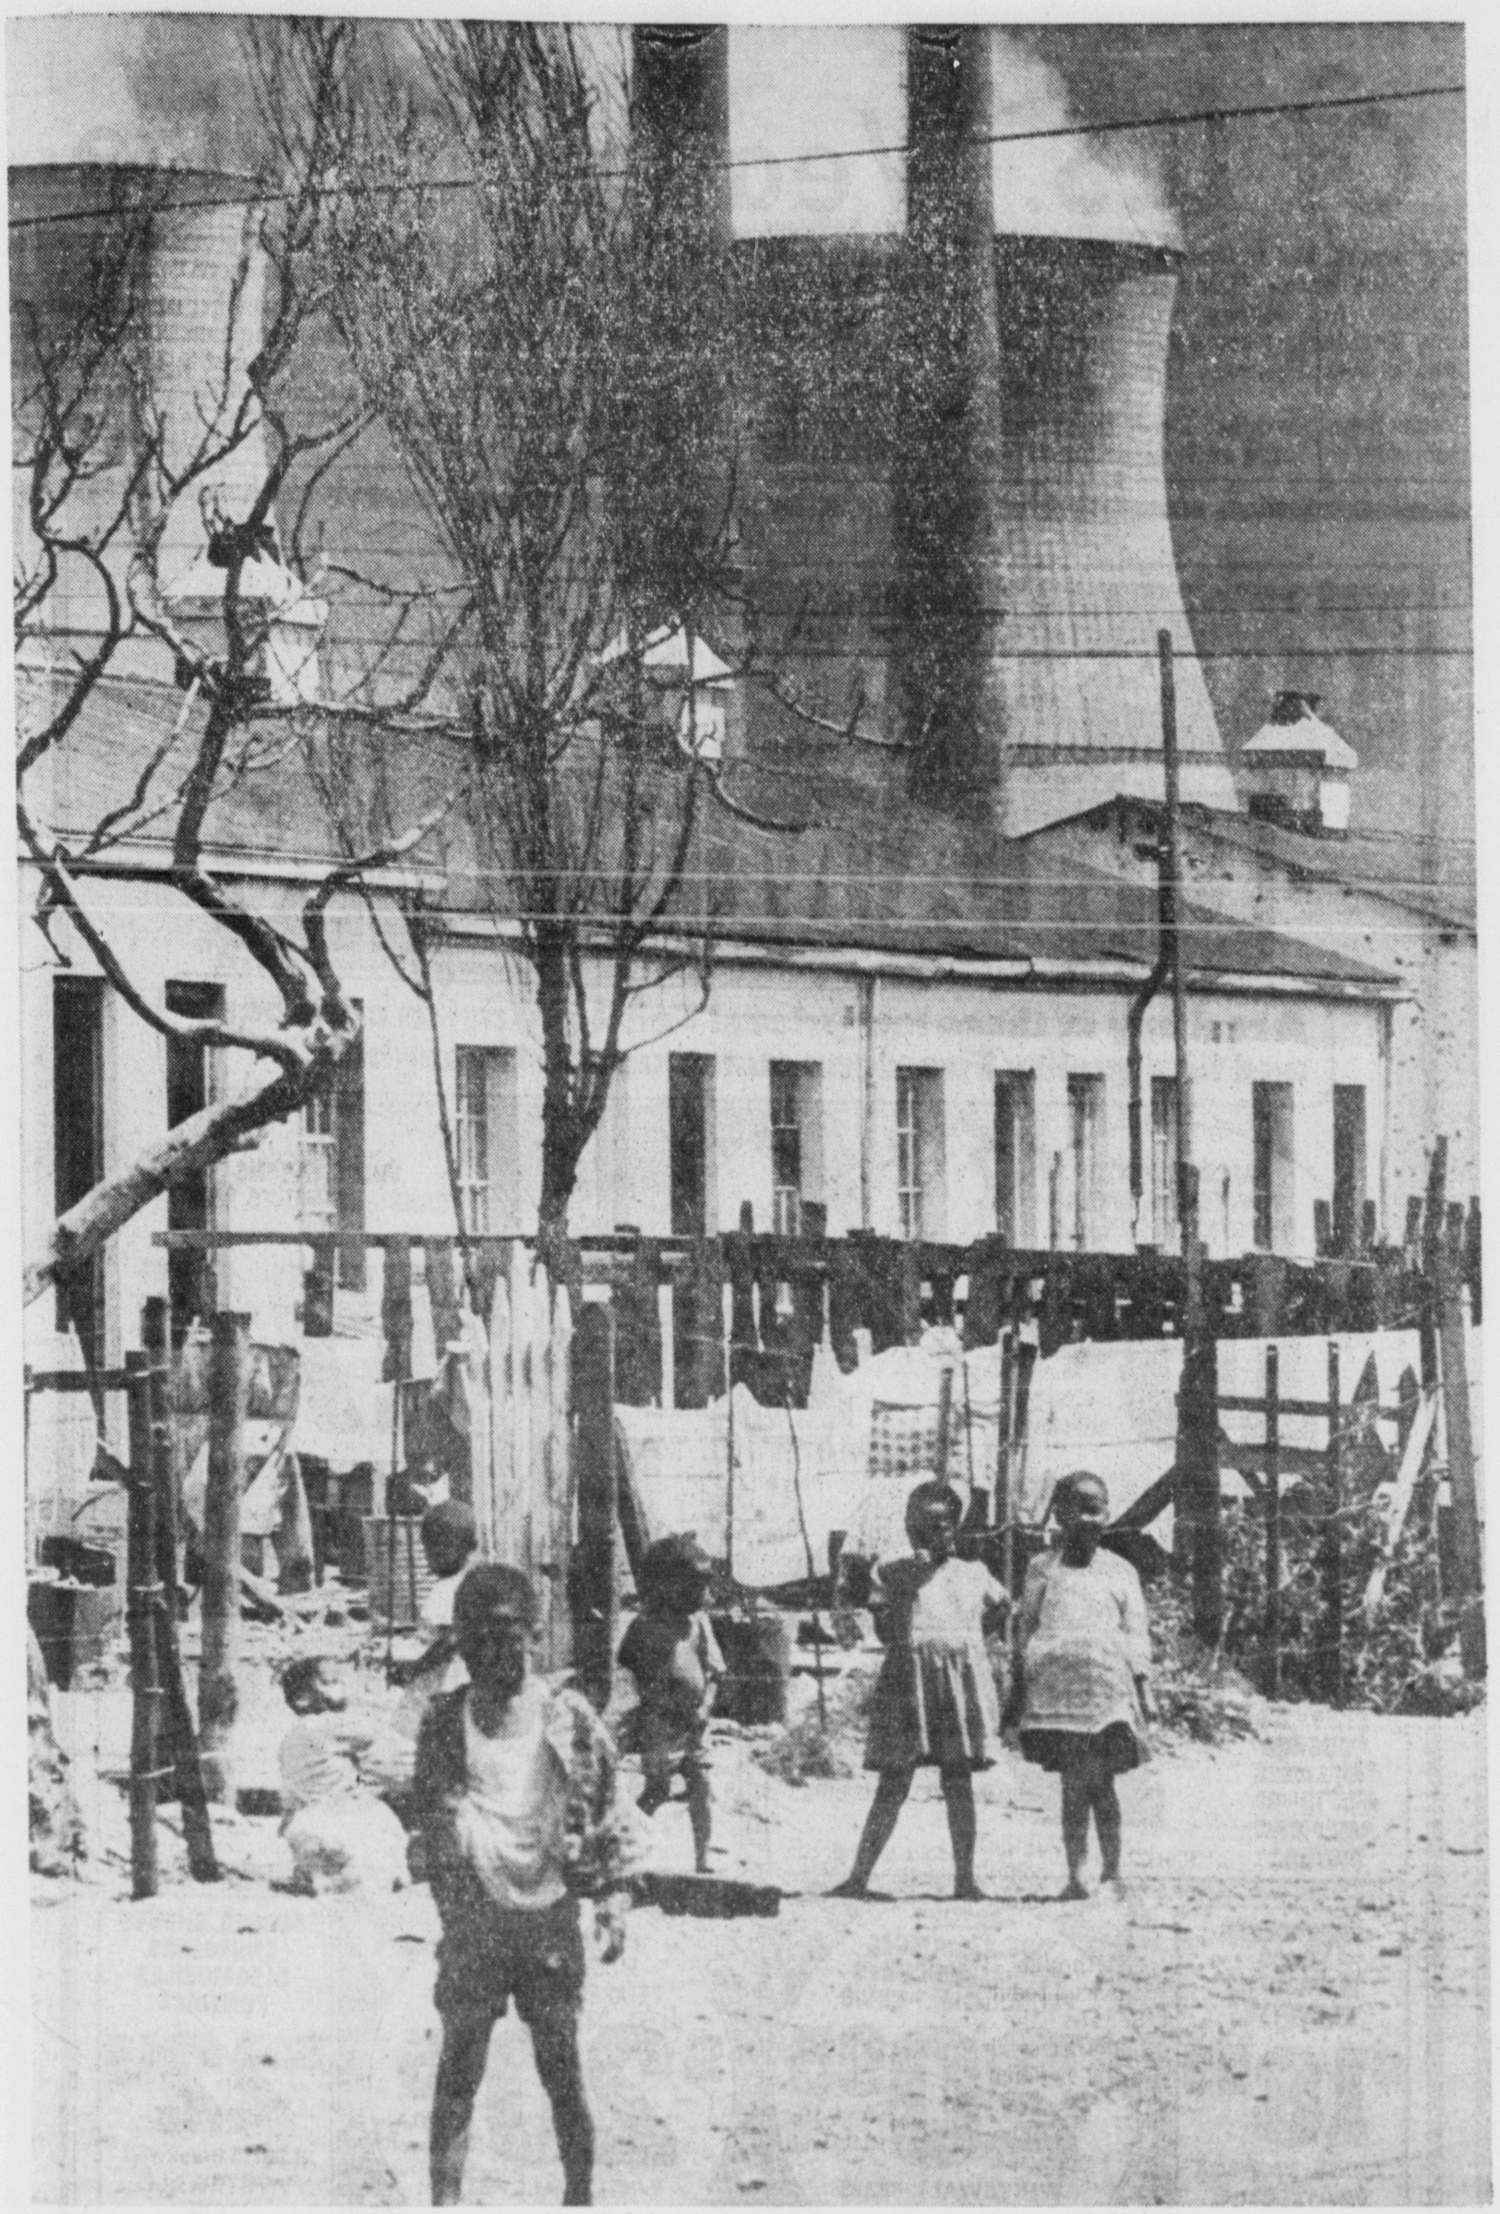
Booklet Is Causing Industry Stir



CHILDREN AT PLAY — South African children play in front of their homes in Cape Town, presently all in a stir over a recently published U.S. State Department booklet proposing guidelines for American industries operating in South Africa.

By FREDERIC HUNTER
The Christian Science Monitor

JOHANNESBURG — A recently published U.S. State Department booklet is causing quite a stir here.

Titled "Employment Practices of U.S. Firms in South Africa," the 10-page booklet proposes a set of guidelines for American companies operating in South Africa. Judging from local press reaction, its most startling suggestion is that the companies should pay their African employees at least $140 a month.

By American standards — which white standards here approximate — this wage seems incredibly low. But it is three times more than many black workers here receive. Such a wage would lift non-white wage earners out of the poverty in which most of them live.

According to the booklet, companies have found that higher wages mean lower turnover of employees and that improved diet increases productivity.

The booklet sets out against the idea, widely prevalent here, that businessmen can do very little to improve the conditions of their African employees. This attitude, critics say, has permitted businessmen, many of whom complain about inefficient manpower usage, to exploit a cheap labor market with hardly a twinge of conscience.

The booklet cites some cases where the suggestions have been successfully implemented. The suggestions include:

Giving equal pay for equal work.

Providing better training for African employees.

Upgrading fringe benefits, including equal sick leave and equal pension benefits.

Providing legal and other assistance to employees.

Opening some jobs reserved for whites to blacks.

Although non-whites constitute the vast majority of the labor force here, they have few legal means to exert bargaining pressures. Prohibited from effective trade union activity, they are at the mercy of wage determinations made exclusively by whites. As a result, the State Department booklet's suggestions seem extraordinary here.

U.S. officials state that the majority of American firms here realize the need to upgrade the conditions of their black workers. But only two years ago John Chettle, the South African Foundation's representative in Washington, wrote, "One gets the impression that all too often the manager of an American enterprise in South Africa is judged purely on the evidence of the balance sheet."

The South African Government was not consulted about publication of the booklet, U.S. officials say. But the booklet is not likely to strain relations between the two countries.

South African leaders realize the importance of foreign capital to their economy.

"Without America's 14 per cent of our foreign investments we would still be okay," one such leader said in a recent interview. "But without it and Britain's 61 per cent we would be in real danger."

Many critics of U.S. wage practices feel the booklet is hardly enough. Those who oppose South Africa's policy of apartheid question what dent the booklet will make.

Weathercasters Are Critical Of U.S. Weather Service

By LANCE CARDEN
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

BOSTON, Mass. — Does the U.S. Natioanl Weather Service cater to a special interest group, rather than the general public?

Some obviously irritated weather forecasters say it does. They say this tendency is reflected in recent weather service budget decisions.

Some Boston-based forecasters have two general grievances with the weather service:

They say the agency does a better job of serving the airline industry than the public.

They accuse weather-service officials of a "head-in-the-sand" approach to forecasting which continues to put time, money, and effort into long-range (longer than four-day) weather forecasts — despite a lack of evidence that these forecasts have much validity.

Dr. Fred Ward, weather forecaster for WNAC-TV in Boston, calls the weather service's five-day and monthly weather forecasts "useless." He charges weather-service officials with "game playing."

"Everyone wants to know what the weather will be next week," Dr. Ward says, "but the fact is that forecasts beyond four days have no demonstrated value."

Norman MacDonald of WBZ-TV in Boston maintains "there is no skill in forecasting temperatures beyond four days, and no skill in precipitation forecasts beyond 2½ days.

"If five-day forecasts are accurate, why revise them every day?" he asks.

MacDonald holds a master's degree from California Institute of Technology and is a member of the research staff of the Meteorology Department at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT). He and Dr. Ward, who completed his doctorate at MIT, are presently writing a book on worldwide wind systems.

They both serve the public as TV weather forecasters, and — as MacDonald puts it — they have long felt "that the general public is the victim" of National Weather Service policies giving airlines a higher priority than the general public.

"The airlines are suppoed to be profit-making companies," MacDonald adds, "yet they get about a third of the weather service effort."

Dr. Ward points out that it is natural, if unfortunate, that the weather service should cater to airline needs, since most weather service field stations are located at airfields and since the Federal Aviation Administration controls one of the major weather service teletype networks.

Of immediate concern is the new weather service budget.

On Jan. 29, when the annual budget was submitted to Congress, it was announced that the National Weather Service would:

Close 45 state and six regional climatology offices across the country, as well as the national climatology office in Washington, D.C.

Eliminate four environmental meteorological support units measuring urban air pollution, and reduce the observation programs of five additional units.

End its Ocean Weather Patrol Ship program with the exception of one ship which will remain on the Atlantic Coast in the otherwise empty triangle between Cape Hatteras, Nantucket, and Bermuda.

Temporarily deactivate its Research Flight Facility at Miami — including the well-known Project Storm Fury studying the effects of hurricane "seeding" in the hope of someday controlling hurricane destruction.

Boston-area private weathercasters are particularly concerned about the loss of weather service climatology offices.

The efforts of these offices will not be duplicated either by the National Climatic Center in Asheville, N.C., or by weather service field stations, says Peter R. Leavitt. Leavitt is vice-president of Northeast Weather Service, Inc., of Bedford, Mass., one of the world's largest weather consulting companies.

The climatology offices have been "invaluable," he says, in interpreting and refining local weather records. Among other things, these public records provide reliable data for the settlement of weather-related legal disputes, for the forecasting of future energy demand by public utilities and fuel oil companies, for the refinement of local variances in storm insurance rates, and for the calculation of exact and money-saving building-design criteria, he explained.

Officials of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA), which includes the National Weather Service, say they have been forced to make drastic cuts in NOAA's budget.

Authorized by Congress to spend approximately $397 million, NOAA's operating budget for fiscal 1973 was cut to some $353.7 million by the Office of Management and Budget (OMB), NOAA officials explain.

Although this figure is still some $17 million above fiscal 1972 program costs, they say the OMB cuts necessitated a reduction of approximately $7 million in various ongoing projects because of new, high-priority programs and responsibilities.

They list improvements in National Satellite and National Disaster Warning Services, on advanced weather computer program at Princeton University, two cooperative international field programs, as well as new responsibilities under the recently passed Marine Protection, Research, and Sanctuaries Act and the Marine Mammals Protection Act among programs demanding some $25 million of NOAA's fiscal 1973 budget.

Boston private weather forecasters say the large national investment in the weather satellite program is not in proportion to the value of these satellites for U. S. weather forecasting.

One does not need to know the weather "way out in the Atlantic" in order to prepare a 3-day U.S. weather forecast, Dr. Ward comments.

"Ships, buoys, and balloons in and around the country can do the job better and cheaper," he says. But, he concedes that — if you think long-range forecasts are valid — the worldwide information provided by satellites becomes more valuable.

One weather-service spokesman commented that the agency is required by law to provide airline weather services.

'The Waltons' Catch TV Viewers Fancy

FAMILY PORTRAIT — Television's Walton's, three generations of them, got together recently to pose for an old-fashioned family portrait.

NEW YORK — In a television season teeming with guns and sirens, the totally unexpected popular success of a quiet series about rural and family values is making network programmers rethink their approach to public taste.

"The Waltons" has not only walked off with the honors, it has been renewed for next year on CBS — even though originally scheduled against sure-fire winner Flip Wilson as a sacrificial "throwaway".

In some families it has created a Thursday-night ritual, in which they gather together to watch "The Waltons" just as the Waltons themselves listen together to Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy. It is the first series in a very long time to win an Emmy. According to executive producer Lee Rich, 346 schools — independently of each other — now make watching "The Waltons" an assignment, with follow-up discussion the next day. And TV people are stunned and proud: an account executive for the show said he had been approached by actors from other series expressing their delight on behalf of the whole industry.

The gentle, warm program is about a family living in the Blue Ridge Mountains of Virginia during the Depression, a loving family struggling to stay together and keep their heads above water while at the same time preserving their values. It deals with innocence, stability, charity, and moral fiber as everyday things of life, in a medium which usually reserves such matters for Sunday mornings and Christmas specials, and it manages to do so without a drop of saccharine.

Occasionally a "throwaway" may be quite a nice show (consider the recently canceled "Julie Andrews Hour" scheduled against unsinkable Mary Tyler Moore). Sometimes it has strong appeal to a limited audience. But it is frequently a dreadful show which richly deserves the ignominy of mid-season cancellation, the customary fate of throwaways. Good or bad, the throwaway is an expedient solution to the programmers' problem of what to do with dead air while a rival blockbuster draws the millions.

CBS decided to use "The Waltons" as a prestigious throwaway. The series evolved from a well-received Christmas special, "The Homecoming," based on Earl Hamner Jr.'s novelette (now translated in 12 languages) about his own family and childhood. It was obviously a "quality" series, unlikely to draw viewers from the gags and guns the ratings indicated they preferred. Accordingly, it was scheduled opposite NBC's Flip Wilson and ABC's "Mod Squad."

To be thrown in against Flip Wilson, a phenomenon himself, is to be thrown to the lions. In addition, "Mod Squad" had been holding its own with a respectable following. The critics generally raved about "The Waltons," using words like "refreshing," "high-quality" and "genuine," and most of them finished their columns by predicting its speedy demise at mid-season.

To the surprise of everyone except Rich, the series placed 46th in the first Nielsen ratings — not great but not the very bottom of the heap either. It fell to 58th out of 62 prime-time shows in the next Nielsen, but then began to climb steadily upward, tying for 23rd place in mid-November (and insuring its continuance for the entire year). On March 1st it did the impossible: it beat Flip Wilson to tie for 11th place. On March 22 it did it again and the series was renewed for 1973-74.

Obviously, it satisfies some hunger in the American viewing public. On the face of it "The Waltons" would seem to have very little going for it. It has no big name stars (Patricia Neal played the mother in "The Homecoming" special, but she was not available for the series). Its cast is technically much too large: It is an industry rule of thumb that large casts confuse the viewers. It has no violence. There isn't a private eye, a cop or a robber in sight. Its action is mostly of the wood-chopping, pie-baking, chore-performing variety.

And yet this is not cornball stuff. Valid and absorbing, it seems to have struck a deep chord in the public for several reasons. The program represents a simple but not unintelligent innocence that is largely absent nowadays. It deals with love in an accepting, practical manner, treading constantly on the edges of sentimentality but never slipping over. It speaks to the contemporary viewer of a less complicated time and place, but it is also very real. The children are not just a passel of kids; each has his own dimension, as have the grandparents.

Most particularly, although John-Boy is perhaps the hero of the series, the entire show hangs and falls on the relationship of the parents, John and Olivia Walton. Played by Ralph Waite and Michael Learned, a former member of the American Conservatory Theater of San Francisco, they are a far cry from your standard TV parents: here is not the father who is either a nitwit or, more likely in recent years, a know-it-all, or the mother who is a shining polyester cipher with no role other than to needle or to worship Daddy. Neither are they simply parent figures for the series' purposes: they stand by themselves as people. They portray a deep, personal intimacy and commitment that is separate from their roles as parents. It is this strong base that makes the lifestyle seem both real and desirable.

Asked if he thought the viewers were motivated to tune in by nostalgia or escapism, Rich replied, "It may be partly because the series is laid in Virginia in the Depression, but I think generally we could be doing a picture here of other people, another family, anywhere, any time, with similar problems and difficulties. Everybody was drawn together trying to fight the Depression, of course. That's one thing that would be different from nowadays, and that being together is very appealing to the audience.

"But I don't think the Depression setting or the rural setting is that important. We don't preach anything. We are telling the story of a family that happens to live in the Depression. They're going to stand together and hold on to what they've got. John-Boy eventually will go to college, but he'll live at home because he can't afford the board.

"Basically I think the viewer is looking for honesty. I think the time of the superhero is past. They recognize that the human being is interesting. I think Cannon (of the CBS series of the same name) is a good example. He's not what you'd expect from a hero a few years ago. I think the Waltons are special. They have foibles, they're not perfect, but they try to solve their problems as a family. Not all the people they meet are good, not all are bad, but the Waltons meet them as a family."

Rich attributes a great deal to the scripts. "If we didn't have the scripts we wouldn't have anything. Everything starts and ends with the script. If you don't have a good script, you can have the finest actors in the world and you're not going to have a good show. It's all due to Earl Hamner. He goes over each and every one of them. And of course our cast is brilliant. They have become like a real family now."

In the time-honored tradition of television, it is to be expected that "The Waltons" will be copied by other series, and indeed a spokesman for ABC indicated that a number of pilots "in the same league" have been offered to his network for the coming season.

"If people want to emulate 'The Waltons,' " said Mr. Rich, "I hope they do it. It may happen next year, but I don't think it will happen this year. The only one I know of is one I'm doing, 'Pomeroy's People.' It's the story of a black preacher living in a little town near Louisville, Kentucky. He's a widower with three children, and it's an integrated town. It will not deal with issues except on a personal level. Earl Hamner wrote it."

As for the success of the series, "Aside from honesty, I think there are a lot of reasons," said Mr. Rich. "Older people watch it to depict a wonderful, warm family. I think people who did not have happy family lives in their childhoods watch it and think, 'That's the way it could be,' or even convince themselves that that's the way it was for them. I think there's a lot of that."

Its success has not surprised Mr. Rich. "I expected it to be a success much more than the networks did, but not as great a success as it is. I had a feeling that 'Mod Squad' in its fifth year could be had, but I never thought it could beat Flip Wilson.

"We've had no problems. Nobody's acted up, nobody's had personality conflicts," he said, and then added simply, "It's been the single most joyous experience of my professional career."
